1,137 MEN HELD OUT OF 10,000 IN DRAFT RAID

Some Sent to Camp, Some to Boards; Many Freed.

An unofficial canvass of all police stations and "detention camps" in Chicago last night showed that 1,137 men of draft age were held for failure to comply with regulations. This is the extent of the real "catch" from a day and a half of rounding up of suspects. Approximately 10,000 men were taken and questioned, the most of them being released after showing they were O. K.

More than 250 were turned over to the various draft boards for immediate service. In the detention rooms in the federal building 400 were detained last night.

At the conclusion of the day's work Maj. Edgar B. Tolman, supervisor of the selective draft work in Chicago, explained that the canvass for slackers, which has for its real purpose the protection of bona fide registered men, has been successful and indicates that Chicago shows a low percentage of draft avoidance.

Aided by Soldiers and Sailors.

The second day of the campaign for the detention of draft evaders began with some 4,000 secret service men cooperating with the police and aided by a large contingent of soldiers and sailors.

The combing process was as thoroughly done as on the night before, when every public and semi-public place was entered and the credentials of every man of draft age inspected. While thousands were halted and questioned, comparatively few were detained.

Most men of draft age held their registration cards and their white classification cards ready for inspection and thus saved themselves the inconvenience of closer investigation. In this connection it has been pointed out by Maj. Tolman that much embarrassment has been visited upon registrants by their own failure to carry both cards.

It is now urged that all men of draft age carry not only their registration cards, but their classification cards as well, as both are necessary for complete identification.

Federal Building Busy.

Perhaps the busiest of the many centers of activity in the canvass yesterday was the federal building, where Hinton G. Clabaugh, chief of the local bureau of investigation for the department of justice, received reports all day.

At noon there were 270 men held in the "detention camp" of the bureau. The serving of the noon meal to the 270 aroused the greatest hilarity, and the men detained made the best of an "indoor picnic."

Out of the thousands interviewed by officials of Clabaugh's staff and by officers of the American Protective league, whose members volunteer assistance to the department of justice, it was reported last night that more than 250 were sent to draft boards for action.

Some Go to Camps.

Many young men thrust aside further formality and investigation by agreeing to be inducted into service at once. These were sent at once to cantonments, great glee being exhibited by the prospective soldiers thereat. "I might never have got a chance had I waited for my turn," said one of those who preferred induction. "This way I'm off to the big doings."

While the secret service operatives clung to their regular sources of supply in the main, there was a gradual extension of the campaign. In Sheridan road, at popular corners, operatives stopped all automobiles, making investigations in some cases and in others taking passengers to nearby police stations. In Rogers Park many were taken from automobiles in Sheridan road and Pratt boulevard.

Several large loop pool halls were raided several times in the course of the day. One, in Madison street, near Dearborn, was entered at noon and also late in the afternoon, a number of suspects being found each time.

Raid Delays Circus.

The Barnum and Bailey circus, which opened an engagement yesterday afternoon at the White City, was obliged to start its performance almost an hour late because it was held up by the raid, in which 120 men, some from out of town were taken as suspected slackers. It started finally at 5 o'clock, with several of the men who did rough labor about the "lot" held for investigation.

About 600 men were detained from

WINS HIS DIVORCE, BUT SHEDS TEARS AT LOSS OF WIFE

Andrews Gave Her the Money to Fight Him in Court.

Edward W. Andrews, broker, won his divorce suit against Mrs. Katherine R. Elliott Andrews yesterday. And when he heard the jury's verdict finding his wife guilty of misconduct he gave way to tears.

"I never realized how cold-blooded it would sound," he said. "I mean—I am thinking of her—of how she must feel. For I love her in spite of her faults."

Mrs. Andrews and Moses C. Meyers, the broker alleged to have been called "cousin" by Mrs. Andrews, were not in court. They had left soon after the jury went to deliberate.

Paying for Wife's Suit.

Not only did Andrews give way to grief over the verdict in his favor—a verdict which blamed his wife—but it developed he has been paying some of the expenses of Mrs. Andrews' litigation. He admitted he had given more than $1,000 to his wife in the last two weeks to help her bring witnesses in her behalf.

During the final arguments Mrs. Andrews exhibited some bitterness in resenting the statements of Attorney Weymouth Kirkland, attorney for Andrews. Twice she arose to interject tart denials.

At one point Mr. Kirkland described in detail the conduct of Mrs. Andrews in a circumstance testified to by witnesses from Daytona, Fla. Mrs. Andrews interrupted.

Woman Cries, "It's a Lie!"

"That's a lie," she cried.

No notice was taken of the interruption and Mr. Kirkland proceeded. Presently he made use of the phrase: "Meyers and his paramour."

This instantly brought an outburst.

"That's a lie," exclaimed Mrs. Andrews.

Mr. Kirkland suggested to the jurors that if the complaint were one against Meyers brought by his wife, there would be no doubt of the outcome; therefore no doubt should exist in the present trial.

The verdict declaring Mrs. Andrews guilty of misconduct automatically grants Andrews a decree, under the ruling of the court. A motion for a new trial immediately was entered by Attorney John Irrman, representing Mrs. Andrews.

Spent Nights at Her Flat.

Evidence of Mrs. Andrews' association with Meyers was introduced in testimony that Meyers frequently spent the night in her flat at 558 East Forty-sixth place. Mrs. Andrews lived in the flat from 1902 until 1905.

Andrews' suit asked the return of $150,000 in stocks and bonds said to be held by Mrs. Andrews.

These securities are declared by her to be her own. In view of the fact that the motion for a new trial is not likely to be heard before October, the question of the stocks and bonds will be held in abeyance.

DRAFT DODGERS KILL AND WOUND TEXAS RANGERS

Beaumont, Tex., July 12.—Alleged draft evaders killed State Ranger J. Dudley White and severely wounded Ranger W. I. Rowe near Broaddus, in the piney woods of San Augustine county, today.

The rangers, accompanied by Sheriff Watts of San Augustine, several deputies, and Sergt. Andrews of the Texas National guard, went to a farmhouse last night with the intention of placing some draft resisters under arrest. The young men could not be found. The posse decided to guard the house.

Shortly after 3 o'clock this morning several shots were fired at the officers from the direction of the house. White fell wounded, but fired several shots at close range at two men before he died. A spirited fight followed and the officers then withdrew. A posse of 100 men is being made up at Lufkin, Tex., to comb the woods for the ranger's slayers.

Army Call for 3,000 Men to Get Spruce for Planes

U-BOAT SEIZES NORWAY SHIP OFF CANADIAN COAST

An Atlantic port, July 12.—A German submarine, appearing 300 miles off Cape Race on July 6, captured the Norwegian bark Manx King and ordered the crew of nineteen to take to the boats, it was learned tonight when the survivors were brought here on a British steamship, which picked them up at sea. The survivors said they did not know what became of the bark, whether it was sunk or converted into a raider by the Germans.

The Manx King, which is a vessel of 1,729 gross tons, left a United States port about two weeks ago. She is the first craft which has been reported as encountering a U-boat so far north in the Atlantic.

The crew explained that they became so excited at meeting a submarine that they promptly obeyed the order to abandon the bark. Pulling away rapidly, they were overtaken by darkness before seeing what disposition had been made of the sailing vessel. None of them reported having heard any explosion.

Farmer's Sons in Army; Two Girls Aid in Harvest

Bloomington, Ill., July 12.—Proving their patriotism, Miss Dorothy Hoag of Chicago and Miss Scotch Duff of Mount Pulaski came to the rescue of D. I. Cooper, a farmer of Mount Pulaski, whose sons were called to war, and finished today a harvest of his wheat crop, shocking eighty acres in four days. They have also agreed to aid in the oats harvest.

St. Paul, Minn., July 12.—Advance in subscription rates was announced by St. Paul papers today. The Pioneer Press, a morning paper which has sold for 2 cents, will now cost 3, and the Dispatch, an afternoon 1 cent paper, will sell for 2 cents. The Minneapolis afternoon papers recently advanced to 2 cents.

Husband Shoots Himself; Wife's Music Yearn Cause

George Oranzo of 617 North May street shot and probably fatally wounded himself last night because, as his wife told the police, she proposed going to a band concert with her sister, Mrs. James Ross of Streator, Ill. He was taken to the county hospital.

John Malone of 4814 Belden avenue committed suicide by inhaling gas.

FOUR WAYS FAIL TO WET DRY SPOT

Time was, as the editors used to say, when the boys in Indiana Harbor, Ind., depended upon funerals from West Hammond, Ill., the hearses being filled with intoxicants to allay their thirst. But that was three weeks ago.

Then they tried transporting it in milk cans and egg crates. But that was two weeks ago.

A bright mind developed the baby carriage style of smuggling liquor from Illinois into Indiana. But the "infants" aroused suspicion. That was a week ago.

Yesterday the Indiana Harbor police spied an industrious old horse plodding along with a load of hay. Upon the load sat a woman in a poke bonnet. It didn't look right. The police found twelve cases of beer in the hay. And now the boys will have to think up a new one.

4 YANKS WANDER TO SWITZERLAND AND BIG WELCOME

Chicago Tribune-New York Times Cable.
[Copyright: 1918.]

GENEVA, July 12.—Four American soldiers, who were on leave, lost their way in France yesterday and crossed the Swiss frontier into the valley of De Joux. They were stopped by some Swiss soldiers, whom they mistook at first for Germans and were terribly depressed at the thought they had been taken prisoners. When their mistake was explained they fraternized joyfully with the Swiss corporal who acted as interpreter. When the corporal announced the identity of the strangers the entire village turned out to see "les Sammies" and loaded them with flowers and fruit. Then the Americans—one of whom declared Europe was so small that a new frontier could be crossed every day—returned happy to France.

ROSENWALD TO GO TO FRANCE AS 'Y' SECRETARY

New York, July 12.—[Special.]—With the twenty trades represented at a Y. M. C. A. luncheon today at the Bankers' club organized with permanent recruiting committees, indications are that the campaign for men for overseas service will far exceed the goal of 1,000 workers. Among those who were passed favorably by the committee was Julius Rosenwald, president of Sears, Roebuck & Co., the big Chicago mail order house.

Mr. Rosenwald was measured for his uniform today. He will serve as a "Y" secretary in one of the Red Triangle huts overseas.

Seventeen More Soldiers Decorated by Gen. Pershing

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, July 12.—[By the Associated Press.]—Seventeen members of the New England division were decorated by Gen. Pershing this afternoon for heroism in engagements in the Toul sector. These were the last of a number cited some time ago to receive the Distinguished Service medal. The ceremony took place during a shower at a picturesque spot in the rear of the Marne front.

Military Service Bill Passed by House in Cuba

HAVANA, July 12.—The bill to establish compulsory military service in Cuba, following four days of bitterest debate, was approved by the house tonight by a vote of 45 to 26.

HOPE OF PEACE NOW GONE, SAYS VON HERTLING

Avers It Is Doomed by the Decision to Crush Kaiserism.

LONDON, July 12.—Debate on the general political situation was opened in the reichstag on Thursday by Imperial Chancellor von Hertling, who discussed the retirement of Dr. Richard von Kuehlmann, the German foreign secretary, the foreign policy of the government, and the economic problems which had arisen because of recent developments in the east. According to a German official wireless message received here, the imperial chancellor said:

"I maintain the standpoint of the imperial reply to the peace note of Pope Benedict. The pacific spirit which inspired this reply has also inspired me. At the time, however, I added that this spirit must not give our enemies free conduct for an interminable continuation of the war.

Wilson for End of Kaiser.

"What have we lived to see, however? While for years there can have been no doubt whatever of our willingness to hold out our hand toward an honorable peace, we have heard until these last few days inciting speeches delivered by enemy statesmen. President Wilson wants war until we are destroyed, and what Mr. Balfour, the British secretary of state for foreign affairs, has said must really drive the flush of anger to the cheeks of every German.

"We feel for the honor of our fatherland, and we cannot allow ourselves to be constantly and openly insulted in this manner, and behind these insults is the desire for our destruction. As long as this desire for our destruction exists, we must endure, together with our faithful nation.

"I am also convinced—I know it—that in the widest circles of our nation the same serious feeling exists everywhere. As long as the desire for our destruction exists we must hold out, and we will hold out, with confidence in our troops, in our army administration, and our magnificent nation, which bears so wonderfully these difficult times, with their great privations and continuous sacrifices.

Eyes Open to "Peace."

"In the direction of our policy nothing will be changed. If, in spite of these hostile statements by these statesmen, any serious efforts or a paving of the way to peace were to show themselves anywhere, then, quite certainly, we would not adopt a negative attitude from the very beginning, but we would examine these seriously meant—I say expressly seriously—efforts immediately with scrupulous care.

"Naturally it is not sufficient when some agent or other approaches us and says to us, 'I can bring about peace negotiations then and there.' But it is necessary for the appointed representatives of the enemy powers, duly authorized by their government, to give us to understand that discussions are possible, discussions which for the time being naturally will be within a limited circle.

"But the statesmen who have spoken up to the present time have not said a word about such possibilities. When such possibilities manifest themselves and when serious inclinations toward peace show themselves on the other side then we will immediately go into them. That is to say, we will not reject them—and we will speak, to begin, within a small circle.

Shared by Army Chief.

"I also can tell you that this standpoint is not merely my own standpoint but that it is shared emphatically by the chief of the army administration. The chief of the army administration also does not conduct war for the sake of war but has said to me that as soon as a serious desire for peace manifests itself on the other side we must follow it up.

"You will be interested to know how we are working on this standpoint and certain problems will appear which the present time forces upon us. Exhaustive discussions took place regarding these questions July 1 and 2 at general headquarters, under the presidency of the kaiser.

"Naturally, I can only announce here quite generally the lines which were laid down at that time. Regarding the east, we stand on the basis of the peace of Brest-Litovsk and we wish to see this peace carried out

FEARING REVOLT, AUSTRIANS SELL THEIR ESTATES

Nobles Let Land Go in Bohemia and in Moravia.

ITALIAN ARMY HEADQUARTERS, July 12.—[By the Associated Press.]—Austrian prisoners confirm the reports that a large number of noblemen are selling off their estates in Bohemia and Moravia because they fear a revolution.

It is said that Count Czernin, former Austro-Hungarian foreign minister, has sold for 3,000,000 crowns all his lands in Bohemia and that the purchaser was a bank with agricultural interests.

It also is stated that Count Henry Clam-Martinic, former premier, expressed the opinion in Vienna that a revolution was probable in Moravia and he, therefore, was selling his lands there.

Turks Rebel; Kill Germans.

ATHENS, July 12.—According to an uncensored private letter dated June 18 which was smuggled out of Smyrna, on the Asia Minor coast, a regiment in the Turkish vilayet of Aidin, southeast of Smyrna, which had been ordered to Mesopotamia, mutinied and murdered its German officers.

Many soldiers from regiments sent to suppress the mutiny joined the rebellious troops, the letter declares.

Talaat Pasha, the Turkish premier, went to Smyrna and granted amnesty to the mutineers, who were given the promise that they would not be sent to the Mesopotamia war area.

Austrians Also Mutiny.

CORFU, July 12.—A serious mutiny among the Austrian troops in one of the occupied districts of Serbia is announced by the Serbian Press bureau here. The garrison at Kraguyevats, the former Serbian arsenal, revolted because of bad food, the statement declares, and many of the officers were killed.

The mutiny was suppressed after a battle in which machine guns and artillery were freely used.

AUSTRIAN WOMAN HERE HELD FOR FEDERAL AGENTS

Aurelia Betkles, 41 years old, an Austrian woman, living at 4638 Malden street, will be turned over to federal officials today. Mrs. Frances Willsey, matron of the East Chicago avenue police station, obtained evidence while searching her yesterday.

The woman was taken into custody in a Wilson avenue motion picture show after refusing to stand while the national anthem was played and otherwise attracting attention to herself. While searching the woman Mrs. Willsey noticed that she was trying to conceal a letter. Mrs. Willsey demanded it, and the woman gave battle. The letter was addressed to President Wilson.

In it was the statement that there are 12,000,000 Germans in the United States, all "with the love of the fatherland in their hearts"; that she has recently traveled much over the country, and that she has noticed an uneasiness among these, and that she felt it her duty to report the situation to "her government."

Tigh, a Turk, Is Highty-Tighty in His Attire

Mharmo Tigh, a Turk from Albania, tossed into jail yesterday, is declared by Francis Borrelli, assistant United States district attorney, to be the most cocky and splendiferous person he has ever met. Tigh, disciple of Mohammed, went to jail wearing a white straw hat with a rich cream colored band, a shirt of Turkey red with white pin stripes, a sky blue necktie, pearl silk gloves, a nippy little cane, and everything else to match.

Tigh has been working in a sugar refinery at Argo, was not registered, and devoutly declared he wished to make a hegira back to Turkey.

Socialist Local Seeks to Honor Rose Stokes

New York, July 12.—The New York local of the Socialist party today nominated as its candidate for the state assembly from the Tenth district Mrs. Rose Pastor Stokes, recently sentenced to ten years in prison for sedition and now out on bail pending an appeal. The nomination is subject to approval by the state committee.

Well, There's a Lot More Work for the Nutcracker

Peter Kotoism of 4124 West Madison street and Emil Torpe of 234 North Cicero avenue, accused of motoring at forty-three miles an hour, were ordered examined as to their sanity by Judge La Buy yesterday.

GERMAN ARMY DRIVEN BACK IN PICARDY

Gains Also Made to the Southwest of Soissons.

(By the Associated Press.)

Striking the Germans on a front that has been quiet for the last six weeks, the French have once more advanced their lines. This new blow at the enemy was launched between Castel and Mailly-Raineval, on the Picardy southeast of Amiens, where there has been but little fighting since the French, by a local attack, pushed the Germans out of Senecat wood late in May.

The attack was along a front of approximately three miles. It swept the Germans back out of the village of Castel and the Anchin farm, about a mile to the south, and cleared out a number of strong enemy positions. The French penetrated the German lines to a depth of more than a mile.

Aided by American Gain.

The American attack on Cantigny, some time ago, advanced the line materially at that point, while the Australians and Americans on July 4 and 6 cut deeply into the German lines at Hamel and Villers Bretonneux, south of the Somme.

The French attack was launched at a point between the positions of the Americans at Cantigny, and the Australians, further south.

The French lines south of Castel have been parallel to and westward of the Avre river. The success gained there carries the French up to the hills to the west of the river and in to positions which appear to dominate the villages of Morisel, on the west bank, and Moreuil on the east bank of the river.

Retake Village of Longpont.

Between the Marne and the Aisne the French have continued their offensive operations. It is reported that the village of Longpont, south of Corcy, has been taken by Gen. Petain's men, who have also made progress north of Corcy, at the Chavigny farm.

East of Faverolles, according to the French official statement, the allied lines have been advanced, this marking a southerly extension of the fighting line.

On the British front there has been spirited fighting, according to the German official report, which indicates that from Ypres around the Lys salient and down in the Picardy sector, as far as Albert, there have been scattering attacks made by the British.

BRITISH IMPROVE POSITION.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, July 12.—[By the Associated Press.]—British operations in the Merris sector since Tuesday have brought the line forward to within about a quarter of a mile west of that important hamlet and secured for the British complete observation of German positions in the village.

On Tuesday Australian units pushed forward northwest of Merris along a front of 1,200 yards to a depth of 250 yards and drove the enemy from the high ground overlooking Merris. Yesterday the British infantry again reached out and claimed another strip of hostile ground west of Merris. This advance reached a maximum depth of about half a mile and extended along a front of 2,200 yards.

As a result the British positions have been greatly improved and a small salient which had been left in the line after Tuesday's attack has been eliminated.

Win by a Quick Raid.

Yesterday's operation was a case of being able to seize an opportunity when it was presented. At one point four Australians ventured across No Man's land and by a quick assault on the enemy's defense line captured between thirty and forty prisoners.

A considerable body of British troops was sent forward to exploit the victory. The British line was pushed forward without much opposition and more than 150 prisoners, with a number of machine guns, had been captured up to today.

Discipline Is Losing.

This morning the operations were still being continued at various points and one strong position was captured southwest of Merris. For some time the British in this sector have had complete control of No Man's land, and the Germans hardly have dared show their heads.

Prisoners say that the discipline of their troops in this zone is not up to the mark. Recently some older men of the Fourth Bavarian division refused point blank to go into the line again when the order was issued by Prince Franz of Bavaria. It appears that the prince previously had made them disgruntled by several severe lectures because they had allowed the British to capture so many prisoners.

HOW GAINS WERE WON

BY G. H. PERRIS.

Chicago Tribune-New York Times Cable.
[Copyright: 1918.]

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES, July 12.—The village of Longpont, on the edge of Villers Cotterets forest and in the saucer of Savieres valley, was recovered without great difficulty last night, and this success, with the capture of Corcy, two miles farther south, its chateau and railway station and the farms of St. Paul and Javages, practically completes the scheme of local operations by which the French army has obtained a strong defensive front between the Aisne and the Ourcq.

To the extent of four-fifths this new front is defined by the valley of Retz from the Aisne to St. Pierre Aigle and the valley of Savieres. From Longpont to the Ourcq two deep ravines are constituting the frontier that will not easily be broken. Between them we hold the high plateau of Chavigny farm, blocking the high road from Soissons to Villers Coterets.

Gain on Other Lines.

On the other two main lines of the German thrust toward Paris there is also considerable change for the better in the period of the enemy's inactivity since the last arrest of the offensive.

On the south the French and Americans have pushed forward and greatly strengthend their positions near Chateau Thierry and in Clignon valley. On the north of the Oise the barrage across the Compiegne road has been reinforced by the capture of the hills carrying Porte and Loges farms, which have given useful views of the German lines.

Nothing appears to diminish the significance of these successes, marked by taking thousands of prisoners and by other enemy losses more severe than our own.

Says Grip Cripples Many.

One of the prisoners taken north of Compiegne, an officer, who seems worthy of credence, says the epidemic of Spanish grip has made serious ravages among the German troops of this sector. In his battalion 103 men had already been evacuated. In companies of neighboring regiments there is an average of from thirty-five to fifty men under medical treatment.

There are many other reasons why Gen. Ludendorff should suffer useful positions to be lost and Gen. Hindenburg should counsel patience to his correspondents. Recent army orders signed by Von Hutier and Marwitz show clearly there is a fall of morale in the armies of these commanders and an increase in the cases of open disobedience.

The fighting qualities of American troops are admitted, though grudgingly, in the German press, nevertheless the German mass of maneuver must be used and the blow may fall at any moment. The French army has all its eyes open.

GERMAN DELAY FORCED

Washington, D. C., July 12.—The conviction that the German high command has encountered serious obstacles in pressing the offensive on the western front is gaining ground in the minds of officials here. They cannot believe that renewal of the attack would be deferred voluntarily when it is obvious that every day's additional delay works against the ultimate success of the whole purpose of forcing a military decision this year, to which the Germans are committed.

Secretary Baker said today that nothing definite is known here as to the reasons that have compelled the German delay. He made it clear, however, that the time that has elapsed since the last German effort and the failure of the enemy to react against repeated successful local counter attacks by French, British, and American troops were accepted as conclusive evidence that the German offensive was being held in check by some consideration other than the purely practical one of preparing the storm troops.

Allied Pressure Kept Up.

Meanwhile, the steady pressure of local operations by the allies along the entire battle area from Ypres to Reims continues. Not a day has passed now for more than a week in which some territory has not been wrested from the enemy, and it is reported that nearly 6,000 prisoners have been taken.

The similarity of the tactics employed by both the French and British armies is taken here to indicate that the "nibbling" process is part of a definite plan being carried out by Gen. Foch, supreme commander, probably to harass the enemy in his preparations and feel out the German lines to locate the points from which he plans to strike.

Cause of Delay Mystery.

Opinion varies as to the possible causes of the German delay. Beyond doubt the collapse of the Austrian offensive in Italy and the disastrous results to the Austrian army have great bearing.

The flood of reports of hunger, dissatisfaction, and even mutiny in the Austrian army, coupled with civil food riots at various points, the upheaval of the ministry of the dual monarchy, the further confusion in Russia, and the fact that Germany itself is passing through a ministerial crisis are pointed to as justifying the assumption that internal conditions are holding up the German drive.

If these are the only considerations, it is argued, and there is no shortage of man power or munitions to be dealt with, it is obvious that the internal situation of the central powers is serious. It is not believed that there are other reasons that could have induced the German general staff to hold up its offensive in France when in full stride and thus give the allies time for rest and recruitment and America time to rush additional troops to France to augment the million there on July 1.

Baker Explains War Film Contract to Congress

Washington, July 12.—Secretary Baker informed the house today that contracts for exhibiting in this country official films showing activities of the American Expeditionary Forces has been given the Hearst-Pathe service and that $5,000 is paid the government for 2,000 feet of films each week. This amount is divided with the allied nations. The contract was awarded on competitive bids, Mr. Baker said, and there is no monopoly on the use of the pictures.

PERSHING TELLS WAR MOVEMENT ON WHOLE FRONT

Cannon and Patrols Are Busy at Many Points on Line.

Washington, D. C., July 12.—Five American airplanes which went on a bombing expedition have failed to return, Gen. Pershing's communique reported today. Gen. Pershing's communique gave no details, but yesterday's report from Berlin, which came by way of London, declared that the five machines were part of a squadron of six which started out to bomb Coblenz.

The crews of the airplanes, the German report said, were taken prisoner.

Following is the text of Gen. Pershing's report:

"Section A—In the Vosges a raid attempted by the enemy broke down with losses before our lines had been reached. The day passed quietly at other points. As the result of a bombing expedition last evening five of our machines are missing.

Quiet on Picardy Line.

"Section B—In Picardy the enemy was quiet on July 5 to 6. His artillery fire was considerably below the average. The vicinity of Coullemelle was his principal objective. The German air forces engaged in little activity. One of our planes brought down an enemy observation balloon. An ammunition dump was exploded in the German rear areas.

"Our troops in the Marne sector experienced a quiet day July 8 to 9. The enemy's artillery activity was slightly less than on the days preceding. Most of the shells were of small and of medium caliber, some of them containing shrapnel. Our artillery was very active and drew considerable fire from the enemy batteries. The balance of his fire was harassing and destructive.

"The heaviest fire continues to come from the Brasles sector, in the rear areas, which movement continues active. There was an increase in the enemy's machine gun fire. Our batteries destroyed two ammunition dumps and a dump containing sky-rockets and flares.

Forces Active in Lorraine.

"In Lorraine our forces were particularly active on July 7 to 8. We easily dispersed two enemy patrols; our artillery fire was in excess of the enemy's; our anti-aircraft batteries were active against his normal aerial activity, and we sent out successful patrols. One of our patroling parties penetrated the third German line. Another of our patrols penetrated the enemy's entanglements and reconnoitered his advanced positions.

"In the Munster section the enemy's patrols and our own continued active on July 7. Three enemy patrols, two of which were wire cutting parties, were driven off by our troops. The enemy's trench mortar fire was heavier than usual, both in caliber and number of shells. The only hostile plane which made an afternoon flight was driven back by our fire. Our patrols were active all along the sector.

"The Munster sector was again quiet on July 8. The enemy artillery fire decreased. The German air forces showed a slight increase in reconnaissance and observation flights. One of our reconnaissance patrols penetrated the enemy's second line trench and reconnoitered his position there.

Quiet on Altkirch Sector.

"On July 8 the Altkirch sector was quiet. There was a decided increase over the two preceding days in the enemy's artillery fire, which comprised shells of light, medium, and heavy caliber. His airplanes were increasingly active. One of them was attacked by an allied plane over No Man's land, and after much machine gun fire had been exchanged the enemy plane was seen to burst into flames. A man fell from it, and a few seconds later the gasoline tank exploded and the machine fell to the ground in the enemy's rear area. Our troops continued their patrol activity all along the sector.

"The Thann sector was very quiet on July 6 to 8. Several patrols attempting to raid our lines were driven back. The enemy's air forces were not particularly active on July 6, but his activity was marked on July 8. On this date we drove back two planes over Muhlbach.

"In the Woevre the day July 6 to 7 was exceptionally quiet."

"THINGS GO WELL, HAVE PATIENCE": VON HINDENBURG

AMSTERDAM, July 12.—Field Marshal von Hindenburg recently wrote a reassuring letter concerning the war to Gen. von Recht, president of the Fatherland party at Naumburg, according to the Cologne Gazette.

"Things are going well," Von Hindenburg wrote, "only our friends the arm chair strategists, must allow us a breathing space, which cannot be dispensed with nowadays, when battles last eight days or longer, when the entire army can no longer be concentrated on a single battle field, and when both great powers of the world are able to produce artillery which can enter into action with full force simultaneously on the entire front. Therefore, patience!"

Rumors of His Illness.

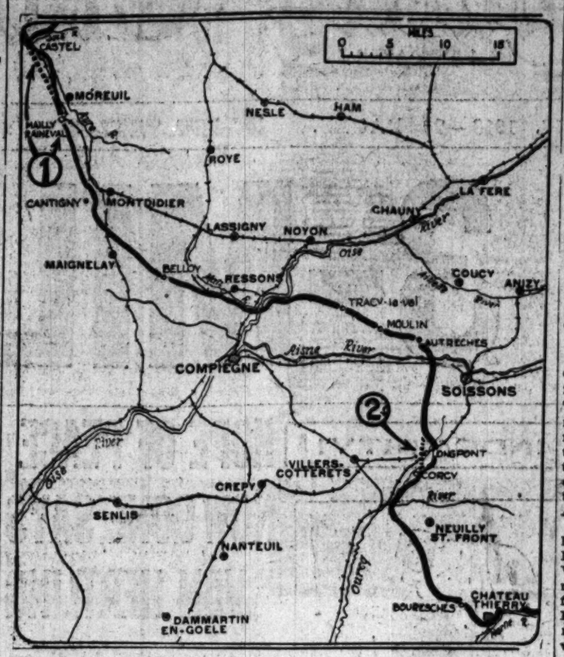

LONDON, July 12.—A Dutch traveler from Germany, says a dispatch from The Hague to the Exchange Telegraph company, declares the rumor has spread all over Germany that Field Marshal von Hindenburg is ill and is unable to participate in the work at the army headquarters. The military duties there have been taken over entirely by First Quartermaster General Ludendorff. German newspapers, the traveler says, are not permitted to mention the rumor.

Explains Delay in Blow.

PARIS, July 12.—For the purpose of allaying the German people's impatience regarding the delay in resumption of the offensive, Field Marshal Hindenburg is reported to have written to a pan-German leader:

"We have the time prepared. But because our adversary is so strong it is important that nothing shall be left to chance."

TWO FRENCH SUCCESSES

1—French forces late yesterday advanced more than one mile on a three mile front, capturing Castel village, the Anchin farm, and a number of other German positions.

2—Southwest of Soissons the French captured the village of Longpont and continued their progress north of Chavigny farm and east of Faverolles. Javage farm, northeast of Faverolles, was occupied.

AMERICANS HAVE DASH, MORALE, UNSHAKEN NERVE

So States Secret Report of German Intelligence Officer.

Washington, D. C., July 12.—Gen. Pershing reports the following extracts from a German document recently captured. It is the formal report of a German intelligence officer at the headquarters of the seventh German army and is dated June 17, 1918:

Intelligence officer of the supreme command at army headquarters, No. 7. J. Number. Thirty-five hundred twenty-eight.

Army headquarters, June 17, 1918.

Second American infantry division.

Examination of prisoners from the Fifth, Sixth, Ninth, and Twenty-third regiments captured from June 5 to 14 in the Bouresches sector.

PRINCIPAL POINTS OF INFORMATION.

Purpose of the Attacks.

The prisoners were not informed of the purpose of the attacks. The orders for the attacks on Belleau woods were made known only a few hours before the attacks took place.

Fighting Value.

The Second American division may be classified as a very good division, perhaps even as assault troops. The various attacks of both regiments on Belleau woods were carried out with dash and recklessness. The moral effect of our firearms did not materially check the advance of the infantry; the nerves of the Americans are still unshaken.

Value of the Individual.

The individual soldiers are very good. They are healthy, vigorous, and physically well developed men of ages ranging from 18 to 28, who at present lack only necessary training to make them redoubtable opponents. The troops are fresh and full of straightforward confidence. A remark of one of the prisoners is indicative of their spirit: "We kill or get killed."

Method of Attack.

In both attacks on Belleau woods, which were carried out by one or two battalions, the following method of attack was adopted:

Three or four lines of skirmishers at about thirty to fifty paces distance; rather close behind these, isolated assault parties in platoon column. Abundant equipment of automatic rifles and hand grenades. The assault parties carried forward machine guns and were ordered to penetrate the German position at a weak point, to swing laterally and to attack the strong points from the rear.

GENERAL.

Morale.

The prisoners in general make an alert and pleasing impression; regarding military matters, however, they do not show the slightest interest. Their superiors keep them purposely without knowledge of military subjects; for example, most of them have never seen a map. They are no longer able to describe the villages and roads through which they marched. Their ideas on the organization of their unit are entirely confused. For example, one of them claimed that his brigade has six regiments, his division twenty-four. They still regard the war from the point of view of the "big brother," who comes to help his hard-pressed brethren and is therefore welcomed everywhere. A certain moral background is not lacking; the majority of the prisoners simply took as a matter of course that they have come to Europe in order to defend their country.

Only a few of the troops are of pure American origin; the majority is of German, Dutch and Italian parentage, but these semi-Americans, almost all of whom were born in America and never have been in Europe, fully feel themselves to be true-born sons of their country.

VON BERG,
Lieutenant and intelligence officer.

Capt. Archie Roosevelt Undergoes an Operation

PARIS, July 12.—Capt. Archie Roosevelt, who was twice wounded by shrapnel last March, has undergone an operation for the purpose of readjusting the nerves in his left arm, which was partially paralyzed. He has been transferred to the hospital at Neuilly. He is cheerful and resents the prospect of being invalided home, which is a possibility.

CLAIM AUSTRIA IS CRUMBLING; BERAT SEIZED

Allies Form One Line from Ægean to Adriatic.

ROME, July 11.—[By the Associated Press.]—"Austria is about to crumble away," is the opinion of political and military observers here after the publication of the latest reports from Albania and the Balkans, where the entente allies have succeeded in perfecting a single front, extending from the Adriatic sea to Saloniki, on the Ægean sea, a distance of 200 miles.

British monitors and Italian destroyers are coöperating with the Italian troops, which are penetrating into the heart of Albania. These forces are flanked by French troops north of Koritsa, while further east the Greek army, which is daily growing in efficiency, threatens the Bulgarian positions.

In Albania there are many Serbians and Montenegrins who have expressed their impatience to reënter the struggle to reconquer their native countries. The Jugo-Slavs and the Czecho-Slovaks there are said to believe their compatriots in the interior of Austria will be of assistance if the allied offensive continues successful.

BERAT HAS BEEN TAKEN.

Washington, D. C., July 13.—[Special.]—An official report received from Rome today said that Berat, the chief city of southern Albania, had been captured by the allied armies.

The dispatch added that the Italian and French troops were continuing their advance along the whole sixty mile front and had captured many more Austrians and large supplies of war materials.

PARIS REPORTS ADVANCES.

PARIS, July 12.—The official report in regard to operations in Albania says:

"In Albania our troops continue to progress. On the right bank of the Devoli river we have occupied the heights of Kayany. Upon the left bank of the river we have cleared the whole mountainous region between the Devoli and the Tomorica with the exception of the heights which dominate the confluence of these streams, where the enemy continues his resistance. The total number of prisoners which have fallen into our hands is more than 400."

Ground Being Cleared Up.

ROME, July 12.—The official report in regard to operations in Albania says:

"In Albania our troops are continuing the work of clearing the ground from which the Austrians were driven and gathering booty. Three cannon, eight mountain guns, four trench guns, and two trench mortars have been found."

DISPUTE STOPS GERMAN LEADER FOR AUSTRIANS

Chicago Tribune-New York Times Cable.
[Copyright: 1918.]

ROME, July 12.—The report that Gen. von Below has been appointed commander in chief of the Austrian forces is now denied.

The truth seems to be that, after the disaster on the Piave, stern German reproaches were poured on Vienna. Emperor Charles then proposed that Germans should assume the direction of the new offensive against Italy on condition that they would send also more material help in the shape of twelve German divisions. Thus helped, Austria, it was hoped, would be sure to wipe out the ignominy of the former failure.

These proposals were accepted at Berlin, but lately, for unknown reasons, Gen. Ludendorff declared he could not spare twelve divisions for the Italian front; whereupon Austria replied that she was willing to accept a German general backed by German troops, but refuses to accept a general without troops.

People are speculating here whether Germany fears complications in Russia, or whether she is unwilling to risk the demoralization of her troops by contact with the Austrians, or whether she is getting uneasy at the advent of such large numbers of American troops in France.

GERMANS UNITED TO GET ALL, SAYS EX-REICHSTAGER

If They Can't Grab All, They Want to Get as Much as They Can.

Chicago Tribune-New York Times Cable.

PARIS, July 12.—There are two Hindenburg lines. One is the physical military front line of the German armies. The other is the political, but no less real. It is the front line inclosing the maximum of what all the Germans hope to get out of the war. It includes practically all of continental Europe, much of Asia, and has a farreaching curve taking in a big section of Africa and Asia.

The Abbe Wetterle sketched such a line today when asked to comment on Hertling's speech in the reichstag. Wetterle is now in Paris. He was a member of the reichstag from Alsace for sixteen years and an associate of Hertling. His comments on developments in Berlin are always worth while.

Interior Politics.

"Chancellor Hertling," said Wetterle, "was talking interior politics in his latest utterances. It had nothing to do with foreign affairs. The most interesting thing in it was his emphasis on the fact that Von Hintze was not yet actually appointed to succeed Kuehlmann as minister of foreign affairs and could not be appointed until he said so. That was merely Hertling's attempt to save his face with the politicians. For the same purpose he insisted in the speech that no matter who was minister of foreign affairs, Hertling would determine all the interior and exterior politics of Germany.

"But this whole business is a comedy and all the groups of the reichstag understand it and are content to go through the motions of the comedy.

Germany Brigand State.

"The only way an outsider can understand Germany is to get rid of the delusion that it is a political state at all now. On the contrary, all Germany must be considered as a military unity and nothing else. Its whole population, civilian as well as military, women as well as men, must be considered as a fighting army determined to get everything it can from the rest of the world.

"There is no party or group in Germany committed to peace in the sense that peace is a matter of sentiment, humanity, or international justice. The only difference of opinion as to the time for ending the war concerns the question, when can it be ended with Germany making the maximum gain? On the main point of getting the most they can out of the war, all the German parties are absolutely united. So it is necessary to think of all Germans as brigands and consider their acts and words in the reichstag and elsewhere not in terms of normal statecraft, but in terms of physical aggression, and to discuss their politics in terms of military operations.

Four Lines of Action.

For example, the German people have four lines of operations. The first is their Hindenburg line, not an actual line of troop positions, but the line including the uttermost pan-German dreams. It means the retaining of Belgium, northeastern France, Alsace, Lorraine, great sections of Russia and the Balkans, the Bagdad project, and the colonial development of both hemispheres. Nobody in Germany wants anything less than that.

"Being driven in from the figurative Hindenburg line, the Germans have their second or so-called Naumann line. That is the Mittel Europa idea, only a little less extravagant than the first line project. Many more Germans have hope of achieving the Naumann plan than the all inclusive pan-Germanism.

A Third Line.

"Retreating from the second, Mittel Europa line, they are prepared to drop back to the Schilemann-Erzberger line and quit the war without annexations. And still further back, but within the German calculations for the future, is the minority internationalists' plan or Haase line.

"But the point for the allies to remember there is no political disagreement in Germany as to the relative merits of these four lines. All they want is a victory that they shall be enabled to finish the war on the Hindenburg pan-German line. No German would take less as a matter of justice, only as a matter of compulsion."

300,000 U. S. MEN AT FRONT JULY 1 HOUSE LEARNS

Washington, D. C., July 12.—[Special.]—There were eleven divisions of American troops, aggregating more than 300,000 men, in the front line trenches in France on July 1, according to information given to the house military affairs committee today at its weekly conference with the war council.

The committee was told that a large percentage of the rest of the 1,000,000 men there have reached a stage of training sufficient to justify their use on the firing line, should the next German offensive attain menacing proportions.

The troop movement to France is being maintained at the rapid pace set in June, the committee was advised. The fears that there has been a slowing down during the last week or two were allayed by this information. More efficient transport service has been established. Ships are being unloaded rapidly and remain in port only three days on the average, members of the committee said on their return to the capitol.

Belgian King and Queen Fly Back Across Channel

HAVRE, France, July 12.—King Albert and Queen Elizabeth of Belgium arrived here today from England in a hydro-airplane. Previously they had flown to England to attend the silver wedding anniversary celebration of King George and Queen Mary.

BATTLE STATEMENTS

PARIS REPORT

PARIS, July 12.—Our troops this morning launched a brilliant attack on a front of five kilometers between Castel and north of Mailly-Raineval. All of our objectives were reached and we have occupied the village of Castel, the Anchin farm, and a number of strongly fortified enemy positions. French troops have penetrated the enemy lines to a depth of two kilometers and have taken more than 500 prisoners.

Our troops continued their progress north of Chavigny farm and east of Faverolles. Last night our troops occupied the village of Longpont and the Javage farm.

Two raids, one north of Montdidier and the other in Champagne, resulted in the capture of fifteen prisoners.

The German artillery was rather active on the left bank of the Meuse (Verdun region).

LONDON REPORT.

LONDON, July 12.—In the successful minor enterprise taken by us yesterday southwest of Merris we captured more than 120 prisoners and ten machine guns.

A raid attempted by the enemy yesterday south of Bucquoy was repulsed.

We carried out a successful raid northeast of Merris.

During the night Welsh troops raided the German trenches in the vicinity of Hamel and captured sixteen prisoners and a machine gun in addition to destroying many dugouts and inflicting casualties on the enemy. Successful raids were carried out by us also near Meteren. Further prisoners were taken by our troops in these engagements and also in patrol encounters in the neighborhood of Gavrelle and in the Kemmel sector.

A raid attempted by the enemy this morning in the neighborhood of Bucquoy, southwest of Arras, was driven off with loss to the enemy.

Except for some hostile artillery activity in the Hinges sector and at other points, there is nothing further to report from the British front.

BERLIN REPORT

BERLIN, July 12.—[Via London.]—The sixth airplane of the American squadron which attempted to fly to Coblenz, as reported yesterday, has fallen into our hands after being shot down.

On the battle front the artillery activity revived yesterday evening and increased during the night to violent surprise attacks on battle positions and regions behind the front. Southwest of Ypres and Bailleul and north of Albert strong thrusts and frequent reconnaissances launched by the enemy were repulsed. Between the Aisne and the Marne the activity on the part of the French continued lively.

We captured prisoners in forefield engagements at the forest of Villers Cotterets. In the region of Reims we drove back enemy reconnoitering thrusts.

There were local engagements today southwest of Bailleul and on the western bank of the Avre.

ROME REPORT

ROME, July 12.—Along the front in northern Italy there has been intermittent artillery fire. In the Arsa valley our patrols destroyed two small enemy posts and captured a few prisoners. An attempted enemy attack at Cornone failed with heavy losses.

FRENCH CHAMBER, IN UPROAR, OUSTS SOCIALIST BILL

Trick Exposed During Debate on Bank of France.

PARIS, July 12.—Thanks to a smart but unscrupulous trick the Socialists in the chamber last night came within an ace of bringing about the fall of the energetic Clemenceau government.

The incident occurred during the twelfth of a long series of debates on the renewal of the charter of the Bank of France, in which the Socialists are assisting, with the object of hampering the government. Most of these sessions have been characterized by very thin houses, but actual presence is unnecessary, as frequently votes are by proxy.

Center and Right Absent.

At yesterday's session there was a fair number of Socialist members present, but the conservative benches were practically empty.

The first division of the sitting was on an amendment to renew the charter for fifteen years, instead of twenty-five. This was rejected by a vote of 340 to 170, and soon afterwards the main proposition of renewing charter for the full term of twenty-five years was adopted by 327 to 135. The critical period of the debate came with a fresh Socialist amendment purposing to give the government power to terminate or modify the charter at the expiration of the first ten years of the new period.

Finance Minister Klotz said the government would regard the rejection of the amendment as lack of confidence. When the moment came to take the division, Mistral, one of the Socialist members, demanded a vote taken by the roll call of the members present and not by the usual method of depositing signed bulletins in the urns.

Had this maneuver been successful there is no doubt the government would have fallen, as a large number of the members, regarding the main question decided, had left the house, and the Socialists were undoubtedly in the majority.

Shy Several Votes.

M. Renoult, presiding, in replying to the demands for public voting, said the request must be signed by fifty members who had been present at the roll call. Signers were secured amid an indescribable tumult. Contributing to the excitement was an incident in which some of the deputies accused the Socialists of replying to the name of a member who was absent. It was finally revealed that only forty-nine members had signed the petition for public voting, of whom only forty-five, all Socialists, had been present at the roll call.

"Consequently," said Renoult, "the vote will be taken in the ordinary way."

The anger of the Socialists at thus seeing their cleverly laid plan go wrong was intensely funny. Most of them expressed their disgust by bad tempered yells and shouts to the enormous delight of the center and right, who expressed their joy by madly banging down the lids of their desks amid repeated peals of exasperating laughter.

Several Socialist amendments were rejected by substantial majorities.

PRO-IRISH

Countess, Here for Benefit of Irish War Sufferers, Says They Need Talk by T. R.

They need Col. Roosevelt in Ireland, according to the Countess of Kingston, who has just come to this country from Ireland, and who spent a half hour in Chicago yesterday on her way to Elgin.

"The Irish situation? How can I tell? It changes over night," she said in reply to a question. "There is, of course, some agitation. The German propaganda is very active, but I do not believe there is any very serious opposition to conscription. What would help Ireland a great deal would be a visit from your Mr. Roosevelt. He's been asked to come over and talk for the recruiting and I do wish he would."

The countess, who was one of the distinguished visitors in Chicago at the time of the allied bazaar, has returned with her Shamrock Fund War exhibit for the benefit of Irish soldiers disabled in the war. This she is showing today in Elgin and will exhibit in many of the smaller cities, coming later with it to Chicago. It comprises over 100 official photographs and interesting war trophies.

HUNGRY TURKS ARE VICTIMS OF NEW CAMOUFLAGE

LONDON, July 12.—[British Wireless Service.]—A dispatch from Constantinople, dated July 4, describes one of the methods used by the Turkish government to make the population of the city believe that wheat was arriving there from the Ukraine.

Several ships left Constantinople by day and proceeded during the night to a port on the Black sea, where stores of wheat were held for the Turkish army. This wheat was taken aboard and the ships returned to Constantinople, where it was brought ashore. It was announced that this was a grain shipment from the Ukraine.

The authorities added, however, that the army was short of wheat. During the night the grain was returned to the Black sea port from which it had come.

GERMANS AGAIN WHINE FOR HALT IN AIR RAIDING

Only Women and Children Suffer, Landtag of Baden Told.

BULLETIN.

BERLIN, via London, July 12.—All six of the American airplanes which attempted to bombard Coblenz yesterday have fallen into German hands. The capture of five was reported yesterday and an official report issued today said that the one remaining machine had been shot down.

GENEVA, July 12.—Another campaign has been undertaken along the Rhine in order to prevent allied bombardment of Rhine towns.

The landtag of the Duchy of Baden has been asked to pass a resolution requesting the government of the grand duchy to exercise its influence with the imperial authorities to come to an arrangement with the belligerents to abandon on both sides the aerial bombardment of towns outside the zone of military operations.

In a speech in the langtag in favor of the proposition Deputy Narun declared that aerial attacks on localities behind the front serve no military purpose, and that only innocent women and children suffer.

Bomb Constantinople.

LONDON, July 12.—Air force contingents acting with the British navy dropped a half ton of bombs upon the City of Constantinople on July 7, it was announced by the admiralty today.

Dies of Wounds.

PARIS, July 12.—James H. Baughan of Washington, D. C., a member of the Lafayette escadrille, whose airplane was shot down on July 1, died in a French hospital on July 2. He was patrolling over the German lines with his squadron and was shot down while engaged in combat with several German machines.

U. S. NAVAL LAUNCH SUNK.

Washington, D. C., July 12.—An American naval launch, after aiding a French destroyer in towing a disabled American seaplane to safety, was sunk by German shore batteries, losing two of her crew, probably drowned, and two taken prisoner by the enemy.

Naval Airman Killed.

Babylon, N. Y., July 10.—While making a final flight in training for a commission, Chief Quartermaster William Fraser Beham, a naval aviator, was killed when his hydro-airplane fell 500 feet into Great South bay, near here today. The airman was crushed under the wreckage of his machine.

WAR ON TURKEY LIKELY TO COME AT ANY MINUTE

Washington, D. C., July 12.—[Special.]—The United States is likely to declare war upon Turkey soon unless the sublime porte disavows and makes reparation for the act of Turkish troops in seizing the American consulate and sacking the American Missionary hospital at Tabriz, Persia.

It has been established that Turkish troops committed these outrages and President Wilson is awaiting an explanation from the Ottoman government. This information came from the Spanish government. It is known that the Spanish flag was flying over the American hospital when the attack was made.

The president is not disposed to temporize with Turkey, which many of his advisers already believe should have been included long ago in the list of enemies of the United States.

PURPLE SPATS, CREEL, LEWIS, COLOR SENATE

And Amid the Smoke Way Is Paved for Vote on Wire Control Bill.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., July 12.—[Special.]—After a day of acrid debate, centering on the danger of adding to the government's censorship powers, the senate paved the way tonight for a vote tomorrow on the resolution authorizing the president to take over the telegraph and telephone lines. Adoption of the measure by a substantial margin was regarded as a certainty by administration leaders tonight.

The most scathing contribution to the debate was made by Senator Sherman of Illinois, who called attention to the possibility of the appointment of George Creel, chairman of the committee on public information, as supervisor of the press wires.

The senator denounced Mr. Creel and Secretary of War Baker in the most vehement language. He referred to Mr. Creel's literary style as the "phosphorescence of a deceased fish."

Lewis Stirs Up Trouble.

Senator Lewis of Illinois stirred up a hornet's nest of controversy when he charged the Republicans with employing obstructionist tactics against war measures. He declared President Wilson stood ready to exercise his powers as commander in chief and would take over the wires even if the pending resolution were defeated.

Senators Wadsworth of New York and Smoot of Utah, Republicans, flatly contradicted Senator Lewis' charge of obstruction and pointed to the record of the Republicans on all war measures. The most effective reply to Senator Lewis' assertion, however, was made by Senator Reed of Missouri, a Democrat.

"I affirm that there has been no obstruction in this body to any war measure," Senator Reed said. "I make that statement flatly and I defy any one on earth to contradict me."

Sherman Scorches Press Bureau.

Senator Sherman said that undoubtedly the press wires would be placed under the control of a censor. "Who is the censor now?" he said. "A person named Creel."

"The committee is subdivided into twenty-one branches," he continued. "Creel is the parent trunk, which forks so near the ground no saw timber can be got out of it. Moving pictures and professors of elocution synchronize themselves in voice and action. Speakers are classified into a 'four minute squad,' and those who run an oratorical platform marathon.

Stirred by Lavender Spats.

"The four minute recruits are taken into a hall where there is no 'pitiless publicity' and instructed by the elocutionist furnished by Creel how to deliver a strong message. His gestures and inflection are shorn of their barbaric crudeness and pronunciation reduced to current vernacular.

"The 'long distance men' are usually hardened miscreants who scorn instruction, even from Creel himself. They comprise some who can talk for hours without obtaining any permanent relief. Among the latter, however, were some who had a chronic propensity to part their names and hair in the middle and wear lavender spats in the corn belt.

Offered Himself as Model.

"Mr. Creel suffered intensely from their refusal to harmonize themselves with the western landscape. He furnished them without avail an inspiration and a model in himself. They were all together at the capitol, where he communicated to them the genuine afflatus which comes only from personal contact and the overmastering impulse generated by the presence of such an audience. Nothing short of a sublimated psychology, linked with an unprecedented cerebral agitation could have stimulated to such fervent thanks for our unpreparedness for war.

"The moving picture feature is most industriously developed. It has also developed that one moving picture concern is given a monopoly of war films in the United States. A scenario department assimilates the output and does the 'sign writing.' Mr. Creel and his dramatic genius censor it so the public will consume the proper article.

"The idea is to create healthful mental condition among the populace. This could not be done, of course, by letting every concern have the film indiscriminately.

"Nearly Prostrated Mr. Creel."

"A distinct yearning among the proletariat for sensational matter of a pronounced chrome yellow has nearly prostrated Mr. Creel. Nothing has so disturbed him save his discovery, a few years ago, that the origin of our federal constitution was so disreputable as to make him think it ought to be abolished by a direct action, automatic pure democracy similar to the one Russia is now enjoying. On June 13, 1918, in the house appropriations subcommittee hearings he still thought so.

"The statute of limitations he has set up against offenses seven years old has not yet run against his June, 1918, statement. Anyhow, the conversion of Creel into an essential pillar of stable government makes the resurrection of Lazarus seem commonplace.

The Yellow Journals.

"Mr. Creel now attributes the morbid appetite for highly seasoned news to a reprehensible type of journalism to which he contributed 10,000 words daily before he was regenerated. The style was bizarre. It aimed at shock rather than sense and usually hit its mark.

"If it were respectable it was miserable. It cannot be denatured without being defunct, decent without being dead. Its brilliancy is the glow of putrescence. It shines with the fitful glimmer of decay, like the phosphorescence of a deceased fish.

"There is in such a newspaper no binding force for civil society. In peace it is a pestilence, in war a skulking menace. The dissolution of the ties of stable government is its purpose and revolution is its goal.

"A flier on airplane news absorbed his next effort. He it was who inserted in a thrilling serial dubbed 'The Official Bulletin' language which led the unsophisticated citizen to believe hundreds of aircraft had gone to France and thousands more would be ready within a few days. The European sky was to be blackened with them in a little while.

"He was told of the gap between the fact and fiction before it was published. Yet it appeared, and Mr. Creel laid it upon an individual named Strunsky.

Incited Anger of Holland.

"The Von Igel revelations were given him to prepare copy for publication. His handiwork relating to Holland brought an instant and indignant protest from the Netherlands minister. Diplomatic matters in an undigested state, it is noticeable, have not been referred to by him since.

"Great creative ability and a high voltage imagination do not impress the state department as promotive of international harmony among free peoples.

"He says himself that any trashy or stupid stuff is relegated to the garbage can. How does he keep out of it himself?

Calls Creel a Toadeater.

"The latest exploit of this public functionary is a feature service article dated July 7, 1918. From proof sheets we learn it was sent out by the committee on public information. The style and familiar nausea reminds one of overindulgence in pawpaws. It identifies unmistakably the toadeater whence it came.

"The subject is the secretary of war. His wearing apparel, gait, how his brain functions, his manner of saying 'yes' or 'no,' of making a complete tour of the brown davenports lining the wall, giving to each occupant a succinct judicial answer, are minutely sketched.

"Without warning the startling information that he thinks clearly under all circumstances and is never ambiguous is hurtled out. He selects his words fastidiously, shading his meaning like one of the old masters mixed his colors.

Like a Circus Juggler.

"The reader's head buzzes when he is told the secretary can keep three or four stories told him by as many men, up in his dome all at one time. (Instinctively we think of the juggler who entranced our boyish attention by keeping up a gorgeous maze of whirling balls with no perceptible effort except a fixed smile.)

"Suddenly he appears mingling with ambassadors, the wise, the good, fair forms and hoary seers; he turns aside in the twinkling of an eye to meditate while contractors hang in midair and profiteers wildly clutch their pocketbooks in deafening silence.

"Yes, or no, comes with a decisive ring in his voice and hundreds of millions of dollars gush from the treasury at his nod.

"Then the earth temporarily resumes its customary revolutions. Five stenographers then rush in. He dictates to nearly all of them at once.

That Briar Root Pipe.

"Immense bundles of documents of state appear in which he immerses himself, lost in a profound vacuum of sublimated thought. The shorthanders flee madly from the incarnated human tempest, waving their notebooks ominously.

"Now the landscape fades away in a haze of tobacco smoke. Gradually the scene reveals a briar root pipe with the secretary of war attached curled up in a deep soft armchair, reading his Theocritus and Juvenal, or a biography of Tom Johnson and 3 cent carfares.

"From this deep dream of peace this overripe Boswell blazes the film with Baker's trip to war-swept France. We are permitted to gaze upon the greatest secretary of war the world ever saw. Stanton struggles dimly into view merely as a basis of comparison to enable our staggering mentality to gain a last look of Baker walking serene on the summit of inaccessible grandeur before we lapse into unconsciousness.

"The peerless strategist and warrior finishes the moving theater by remaining for hours in trenches and dugouts in mortal peril from bursting shell and scattering shrapnel. Here the dazed audience disperse.

"After enduring this from Creel the terrors of a Hun invasion are considerably mitigated. We await our fate with calmness and fortitude. Nothing can be worse on either side of the grave."

FRIENDS OF THE POILU

The above group of girls will sell programs at the meeting tomorrow night at the Auditorium, in celebration of Bastille day, the French national holiday, the proceeds to go to the aid of the American fund for French wounded. The boy is one of the actors in the "Fête de la Bastille," which will be given this afternoon and evening in the gardens of Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Brewster, in Lake Forest, for the benefit of the fatherless children of France.

Pershing Awards Crosses for Great Deeds of Bravery

Washington, D. C., July 12.—Gen. Pershing has awarded distinguished service crosses to the following officers and men of the American expeditionary forces for the acts of gallantry set forth after their names:

Lieut. Col. Logan Feland, marines: "During the operations at Bois de Belleau, from June 6 to June 14, 1918, distinguished himself by his energy, courage, and disregard for personal safety in voluntarily leading troops into and on through heavy artillery and machine gun fire. His efforts contributed largely to our successes at this point."

All Names of Men and Units.

Maj. J. S. Turrill, marines: "At Bois de Belleau on June 6, 1918, displayed extraordinary heroism when, in leading his men to the attack, he constantly exposed himself to danger, ever setting a splendid example to his men."

First Sergt. Benjamin James, field artillery: "During the action of April 21, 1918, when shell struck the gunpit of a battery, although seriously wounded in the chest and legs by fragments, he obtained stretchers for the other men, doing everything possible for their comfort until he fell. He declined medical attention until all others had been looked after, setting a splendid example of self-sacrifice."

Private Willard S. Pauley, machine gun battalion: "Showed the greatest determination and courage at Bois de Belleau, on June 2, 1918, when he maintained communication between the firing line and his headquarters by visual signaling. Knocked down twice, he remained at his post in the open for several hours under heavy shell fire."

Corporal James R. Thornley, infantry: "Wounded early in the Seicheprey engagement on the morning of April 20, 1918, he displayed great gallantry and devotion to duty in continuing to urge his men to defend their positions, aiding greatly in the defense of the same by climbing a tree and from there shouting directions as to the enemy's location."

Private H. R. Johnson, field artillery: "For exceptional bravery and devotion to duty on April 20, 1918, when, although wounded in the arm and leg, he continued, while under heavy shell fire, to repair the telephone lines, and succeeded in reëstablishing communications."

Private J. C. Parent, field artillery: "For faithfulness and great coolness in the execution of his duty on April 20, 1918, when, although severely wounded in the head and left leg, he continued, under heavy shell fire, to repair the telephone lines and succeeded in reëstablishing communication."

Private Edward L. Dion, infantry: "Displayed extraordinary heroism in defending his post during the Seicheprey engagement on the morning of April 20, 1918. Although completely surrounded by the enemy on several occasions, he fought them off with grenades and rifle fire, finally succeeded in driving them away, after which he carried a wounded comrade through a rain of shrapnel to a first aid station and returned to his post."

Private Jeremiah K. Tryon, infantry: "Displayed unusual daring and courage during the Seicheprey engagement on the morning of April 20, 1918, when, under heavy artillery fire, he climbed out of his trench in the front line on to the top and killed a sniper who was pouring destructive fire into our trenches."

Posthumous Awards.

The commander in chief has also awarded distinguished service crosses posthumously to the following enlisted men for the following acts of gallantry:

Sergt. Joshua H. Broadhead, field artillery: "Displayed exceptional bravery and devotion to duty during the action of April 20, 1918, when, although wounded early in the engagement, he refused to leave his section, remaining on duty and keeping his gun in action until killed later in the day."

Private First Class Frank P. Gordon: "Displayed conspicuous courage on April 20, 1918, in voluntarily going to the aid of a wounded comrade, during which action he and the man he was assisting were killed."

NEW WIRE UNION WILL NOT STRIKE DURING THE WAR

The policy of arbitration of all disputes with no strikes during the war was decided upon yesterday by the newly organized Association of Western Union Employés, sixteen delegates of which are meeting in the Great Northern hotel daily to establish a constitution.

A "no strike" clause will be included in the laws of the organization, it was agreed yesterday after President Newcomb Carlton promised Thursday that the company would enter into a fair contract under which differences could be settled by a disinterested arbitration board.

A rumor that the delegates had already asked a 30 per cent increase of wage from the company was denied last night by B. E. Black of St. Louis, chairman of the convention.

"We do not contemplate anything of the kind, at least until we have established ourselves on a working basis with the company," said Black.

"The workers feel that they are not represented in the Commercial Telegraphers' union and they have a great deal of confidence in the sixteen delegates they elected to form the organization."

CHOLERA RAGES IN PETROGRAD; DUE TO HUNGER

LONDON, July 12.—Owing to the grave shortage in food, cholera is on the increase in Petrograd, and hundreds of persons are daily falling victims to it, says a Russian wireless dispatch received today.

M. Zinoviev, head of the Petrograd committee, representing the Russian council of commissioners, in an appeal to the councils in the corn provinces of Russia and to the railway officials, said:

"Every day many hundreds of persons are falling victims to disease. It is impossible to do anything to combat the epidemic as we are unable to furnish even a quarter of a pound of bread a day and are forced to give herrings instead of bread.

"It will be very difficult to carry on until the next harvest. Help us to do so by sending corn and everything you can. All kinds of food are of the greatest importance.

"We beg the railway officials to do everything in their power with a view to speeding the dispatch of food to Petrograd. It is the duty of the councils in the corn provinces to feed Petrograd."

FLY THE TRICOLOR TOMORROW, FOR IT'S FRANCE'S DAY

Great Celebration of Fall of Bastille to Be Held Here.

Final arrangements for the observance of Bastille day tomorrow were completed yesterday afternoon at a meeting at the La Salle hotel. Nelson N. Lampert, chairman of the committee in charge of the celebration, presided, and H. H. Merrick was secretary of the meeting.

In addition to the great meeting at the Auditorium tomorrow night, at 8 o'clock, at which James W. Gerard, former ambassador to Germany; Carl Vrooman, assistant secretary of agriculture, representing the president, and Rabbi Stephen S. Wise of New York, will be the principal speakers, there will be French flag raising exercises on the lake front, east of the Art institute, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

To Sing the "Marseillaise."

On the lake front Lieut. Georges Fischaire, the French ace, will sing the "Marseillaise" and will fly over the field. The soldiers and sailors' pavilion on the lake front will be dedicated, Capt. William A. Moffett of Great Lakes being in charge of this ceremony, while there will also be exhibition drills by jackies and home guards. A salute of twenty-one guns will be fired at the flag raising ceremonies by warships in the lake.

Ministers of the city, who met the committee at yesterday's meeting, pledged the holding of patriotic services in city churches during the morning.

The Chicago Association of Commerce, through its president, Lucius Teter, Robert B. Beach, and H. H. Merrick, and the State Council of Defense, through L. E. Myers, have requested that the flying of French and American flags be general throughout the city tomorrow. The doors at the Auditorium will open at 6:30 at night and admission will be free, with no seats reserved.

Pledge Great Celebration.

At yesterday's meeting A. Barthelemy, French consul; Horace Nugent, British consul; Henry Nussle, Swiss consul; Felix J. Streyckmans, representing the Belgian consul; H. Pesas, Greek consul; Bishop Samuel Fallows, Rabbi Cohen, the Rev. Ernest A. Bell, the Rev. Pasquale Ricciardi de Carlo, the Rev. W. B. Millard, the Rev. Fr. J. F. McNamee, John T. Stockton, H. H. Gross, H. H. Merrick, Homer J. Buckley, John F. Smulski, and Mrs. Mary Wood for the Ladies of the G. A. R., all spoke pledging themselves to aid in making the celebration the greatest of its kind every held in Chicago.

To correct a misapprehension, it was insistently pointed out that there would be no celebration today (Saturday).

Senate Urges Observance of "Bastille Day" July 14

Washington, D. C., July 12.—A resolution by Senator Walsh of Montana urging American citizens to observe Bastille day on July 14 as "a mark of special regard for our ally" France, and extending to that country the fraternal greetings of the United States, was adopted unanimously today by the senate. A copy will be transmitted to the French government by the secretary of state.

FRENCHMAN LEADS GREEK ARMY.

PARIS, July 12.—[Havas Agency.]—Gen. A. Gramat of the French army has been commissioned chief of the general staff of the Greek army.

WILL COST U. S. $1,000,000,000 TO HELP RUSSIA

BULLETIN.

LONDON, July 12.—Lieut. Gen. Horvath, vice president and general manager of the Chinese Eastern railway, having declared himself premier of a temporary Siberian government, has been proclaimed provisional ruler of Siberia, according to a dispatch to the Mail from Harbin.

Washington, D. C., July 12.—[Special.]—President Wilson has been informed by government experts that it will cost at least $1,000,000,000 to carry out a moderate program of economic rehabilitation in Russia. This would include the supplying of machinery, agricultural implements, and foodstuffs.

While the president is still working on his plan of peaceful intervention, it is becoming daily more apparent that the United States and the allies are not yet in agreement on a program. The allies contend that if the president undertakes to rehabilitate Russia without sending an army to drive out the Germans he will simply be building up Russian industries and agriculture for the benefit of the enemy.

The insistence with which allied and Russian spokesmen declare that any help for Russia must include military aid to be effective has led to the conviction in important quarters here that Japan is now preparing for the dispatching of an expedition to Siberia, which would have for its purpose the relief of the Czecho-Slovaks as well as assistance to Russia.

Might Recover Money.

Whether the United States, upon whom the financial burden of intervention in Russia is most likely to fall, will bear it single handed and without obligations from Russia is not known. It was stated in a semi-official quarter today that two means are presented by which America may recover after the war the greater part of the vast expenditures required. These are afforded by the organization of the Siberian government and by the formation of another separate government in the province of Vologda, whose territories reach to the northern coast.

Recognition by the United States of those governments would be requisite before negotiations for a loan could be undertaken with them and recognition would carry with it as an essential counterpart military assistance, as both new governments are threatened by the Bolsheviki and German machinations and armies.

It is not doubted there that the British and French forces along the Murman and Archangel railroads running into the interior from Kola and Archangel will give immediate help to the new government in that region. The Czecho-Slovak troops in Siberia, it is believed, will be able to control the situation for some time before the Bolsheviki and German-Hungarians shall be able to overpower them, thus giving sufficient opportunity to the Siberian government to perfect its organization.

PEASANTS MARCH ON MOSCOW.

PARIS, July 12.—[Havas Agency.]—M. Tchernoff, a leader of the Russian social revolutionists, is marching on Moscow at the head of numerous bands of unarmed peasants, says a dispatch from Stockholm to the Matin. Part of his force has arrived in the outskirts of the Bolshevik capital.

[A dispatch received in Paris on July 9 reported that M. Tchernoff and three other members of the Kerensky cabinet had been arrested in Moscow as alleged leaders of a revolt against the Bolsheviki. German reports have declared that the social revolutionists were responsible for the abortive revolt.]

Germany's claim for indemnity from Russia amounts to $3,500,000,000, according to a report printed in the Berlin Vossische Zeitung of the work done by the mixed commission named to take up consideration of claims growing out of the conclusion of the Brest-Litovsk peace. Immediate settlement of the claim is asked, it is stated.

Hint at Action in Arctics.

AMSTERDAM, July 12.—German official circles are of the opinion, says a Berlin dispatch to the Rhenische Westfaelische Zeitung of Essen that in event of civil war breaking out in Russia, the vital interests of Germany would force her to act on her own account in order to eject the British in the north.

[The reference here is evidently to the Murman coast region, where allied forces have been landed for the protection of supplies sent to Russia by the entente.]

Intervention by Japan in Siberia, adds the dispatch, is regarded as of secondary importance, because Russia, having no interests divergent with those of Japan, would soon succeed in arriving at an understanding with her.

Arrest Mirbach Slayer.

LONDON, July 12.—One of the murderers of Gen. Count von Mirbach, German ambassador to Russia, was arrested Thursday, according to a Moscow dispatch to the Frankfurter Zeitun, which is transmitted from Copenhagen by the Exchange Telegraph company.

Col. Sergius Cyon, a Russian army officer who has arrived at Stockholm, says M. Manos, a banker, was arrested in Petrograd some days ago, according to a dispatch from Copenhagen to the Exchange Telegraph company. Several documents and $1,000,000 discovered in the house where the banker was apprehended proved, said the Russian officer, that Manos had been in direct communication with the late Count von Mirbach, the German ambassador at Moscow, who was intimately connected with the monarchists.

HELD FOR INTERNMENT.

Robert Julius Eckhardt, 34 years old, 2392 Southport avenue, was held for internment yesterday as an enemy alien. It is charged that he ignored the order to register.

PRISONERS

9 More Officers and 29 More Enlisted Men, and Camps Where Located, Reported.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 12.—The names of nine additional officers and twenty-nine enlisted men of the American expeditionary forces held prisoners in Germany were announced tonight by the war department.

Among them is Frank Bretschneider of 1612 Loomis street, Chicago.

The names were transmitted by the Spanish ambassador at Berlin through the American legation at Berne and are as follows:

Camp Bad Stuer—Sub. Lieut. Harold Willis, Paris, France.

Camp Langensalza—Lieuts. Julien N. Dow, Neoga, Ill.; Frank K. Miller, Madera, Pa.; Samuel Miller, Lakeville, Pa.

Camp Karlsruhe — Lieuts. James Frank Crawford, Warsaw, N. Y.; Louis M. Edens, Cabool, Mo.; Maurice Snowden Redmond, Pittsburgh; Lieut. Aviator John Joseph Merdith, Philadelphia.

Camp Heidelberg—Lieut. A. Eneas Mackenzie, Portland, Ore.

Camp Darmstadt — Sergt. Robert Walker, Jersey City, N. J.; Corporals Lee H. Whitehead, Jeffery, Ky.; Patrick F. Meehan, Springfield, Mass.; Privates Clarence Edward Newton, Cincinnati, O.; Emmit John Prosser, Minneapolis, Kas.; James Puntillo, Newark, N. J.; Carmenlo Puopolo, Avon, Mass.; Rocco Summa, Woodberry, Conn.; Harry Svitak, Philadelphia; William C. Sweeny, South Boston, Mass.; David L. Watkins, Sonora, Ky.; Homer Akers, Norwood, Mo.; Edward Bennett, Harrisburg, Ill.; Arsene Bergeron, Turner Falls, Mass.; Frank Bretschneider, 1612 Loomis street, Chicago; Filipo Daniels, Lynn, Mass.; Russell Dodson, Vinton-Dale, Pa.; Edward J. Doherty, Newton Center, Mass.; Owen Dougherty, Eddystone, Pa.; Melville S. Harger, Battle Creek, Mich.; Carl Holst, Allston, Mass.; George Korman, Newark, N. J.; Alexsander Kraukuszeski, Schenectady, N. Y.; Jeremiah Lehane, New York City; Wilfred Marquies, Fall River, Mass.; Roy R. Mason, Gainesville, Fla.; Frank John Meyer, Reading, O.; James N. Muldoon, Brighton, Mass.

Camp Limburg—Private Fred Hickman, Logootee, Ind.

The war department announced that the American minister at Berne stated that Lieuts. Edens and Redmond had been reported as transferred from Camp Karlsruhe to a camp at Villingen.

WHISTLES SCORN FOR OUR ARMIES TO HIDE POWERS

German Claims They Are Not There and Cannot Fight.

AMSTERDAM, July 12.—[By the Associated Press.]—The military contributor to the Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung, in discussing Secretary of War Baker's recent announcement as to the number of American soldiers sent overseas, evidently writes from official inspiration.

His arguments are similar to those of Lieut. Gen. von Ardenne, who, in the Duesseldorf Nachrichten last Tuesday, asserted that he did not believe the figures of American man power, and that numbers do not count, anyhow.

"We are unable to verify the accuracy of Secretary Baker's figures. However, they are only intended to throw dust into the eyes of the world. The large number claimed for the last three months seems to us quite impossible in view of the shortage of enemy tonnage," the Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung's contributor argues.

Asserts "It Can't Be Done."

He then presents a calculation of his own and comes to the conclusion: "It can't be done."

"Let us assume that Secretary Baker's figures are correct," he continues. "We need not be alarmed. A nation which has fought a world of enemies four years cannot be frightened by the American bogy. We are unimpressed. They are only cannon fodder and not the equals of our war proved, unconquerable troops.

"What is a million of Americans compared to the 10,000,000 well trained and equipped Russians who have fallen out of the battle line? Where could the Americans have raised the requisite number of officers and noncommissioned officers so expeditiously?"

Says Equipment Fails.

The writer then goes on to argue that what England failed to do, America cannot accomplish. He declares that the American fighting men cannot be properly equipped because the American war material manufacturers are swindlers.

"Moreover, our experience with the American soldiers has not served to fill us with overmuch respect for them, although many doubtless are regulars and comparatively well trained," he says. "We would not be afraid of 5,000,000 of them. They do not know what they are fighting for."

After similar criticisms of the Americans as fighting men, the military contributor arrives at the following conclusion:

"We do not believe that there is a large number of them in the battle line —and even if it were true we will whip them, anyhow."

Bonnet Rouge Men Begin Their Terms in Prison

Chicago Tribune-New York Times Cable. [Copyright: 1918.]

PARIS, July 12.—The supreme court having returned the appeal entered on behalf of the prisoners belonging to the Bonnet Rouge gang, the four men, Marion, Landau, Goldsky, and Joucla, who were all sentenced to long jail sentences, have begun to serve their prison terms. The fifth man, Duval, who was sentenced to be shot, signed this morning the customary plea for mercy, which will be considered by the president of the republic.

Great Britain Granted New Credit of $175,000,000

Washington, D. C., July 12.—Great Britain was granted today an additional credit of $175,000,000 by the treasury department, making the total loans to her to date $3,345,000,000 and the total credits to the allies $6,266,530,000.

HUGHES REPORT TO SHOW SERIOUS AIRCRAFT WASTE

Investigation Has Centered About Big Plants in Dayton.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., July 12.—[Special.]—Investigation of the aircraft situation by former Justice Charles E. Hughes is known to be assuming a serious aspect, and developments of an important nature are expected following Mr. Hughes' report to the president.

It is known that tremendous waste of money, of time, and of manufacturing resources has been disclosed, and there are intimations that profiteering of a character which cannot be satisfactorily explained is included in the list of charges against some of the men formerly identified with aircraft production.

Mr. Hughes has been conducting an investigation at Dayton, O., the home of the Dayton-Wright Airplane company, and was joined there recently by the attorney general. They are inquiring into the relations existing between Col. Deeds, recently relieved of aircraft construction duties, and the heads of the Dayton-Wright company and other contractors in the Dayton district.

Col. Deeds' Varied Interests.

The fact that Col. Deeds, before entering the government airplane production service, had been connected with companies which have shared largely in the airplane contracts and that other companies which have figured on a large scale in government aircraft production contracts have as stockholders men who were formerly closely affiliated with Col. Deeds, appears to be the chief basis of most of the criticism unearthed by the fedral investigators.

Col. Deeds, for example, was one of the chief owners of the company manufacturing the Delco ignition and lighting system adopted for government airplanes. One of his partners, a Mr. Kettering, was formerly with Col. Deeds in the United Cash Register company. They organized the Domestic Engineering company and then, with a Mr. Talcott, established the Dayton-Wright Airplane company. After accepting his government position Col. Deds said that he had withdrawn entirely from the Dayton-Wright company.

One Company's Quick Rise.

The Dayton-Wright company took over the Domestic Engineering company. The latter, at the beginning of the war, consisted of little more than a laboratory for aircraft experiments, but soon was assured of contracts amounting to between $26,000,000 and $28,000,000.

When the government wanted an aircraft field near Dayton it took over 2,000 acres of land, the control of which had been acquired by Col. Deeds and by him transferred to the Dayton Metal Products company. For the construction of aviation field buildings and their supplies contracts were awarded to companies which, it developed, were financed by the Dayton Metal Products company.

OFFICER ADMITS GREAT U. S. ARMY WORRIES HUNS

GENEVA, Switzerland, Thursday, July 11.—The military critic of the Tribune de Geneva says he recently met a high German officer who declared that, although the German newspapers had been prohibited from mentioning American military matters, except the taking of prisoners, the American invasion of Europe and the great aid being rendered by the Americans to the entente allies is causing much anxiety at German imperial headquarters.

People cannot understand, the German officer said, why the successful German submarine warfare announced by the reichstag is unable to prevent a million Americans landing in France. The Germans, he added, are learning the truth only through foreign newspapers.

OFFICER WRITES OF CHICAGOAN'S DEATH IN BATTLE

One Wounded Man Gives High Praise to Red Cross.

The army and marine casualty lists of yesterday contained the names of no Chicagoans, but two were announced privately in letters to relatives as having been killed. Two were wounded.

Private Raymond Rexford Eames of the Sixty-sixth company, Sixth regiment, marines, was killed in action on June 29, according to word received yesterday by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Eames of Blue Island. The young man enlisted last June and had taken part in numerous actions on the western front. He has a brother in the artillery branch.

Law Student Killed.

Corporal Homer Grossman, son of Mrs. O. J. Vogl, 1133 Columbia avenue, was reported killed in action on June 11 during an American attack. Young Grossman was 20 years old, enlisted in May, 1917, and crossed to France in July. At the time of his enlistment he was studying at the Chicago Kent College of Law. He enlisted first in the regular army at the time of the Mexican trouble and was honorably discharged.

The news of his death was conveyed in a letter from Lieut. Clive E. Murry of the company to which Grossman belonged. "On this occasion the Germans were driven from their positions by the great fighting of men like your son who were willing to give their lives for their country and loved ones, Lieut. Murry wrote. "Your son was one of my most trusted noncommissioned officers, and his loss has left a place in the hearts of the men in the platoon and myself which will be hard to fill. His record was the very best, and during the ten months he served in my platoon he never faltered in his duty, accepting the unpleasant task with the smile and cheerful expression which endeared him to his superiors and inferiors alike."

Wounded and Gassed.

Corporal Roy Johnson, son of Eugene Johnson, 1361 East Sixty-second street, is reported wounded and gassed, in a letter received yesterday by his mother. He is a member of the Seventy-ninth company, Sixth regiment, marines, enlisted June, 1917, and went over in January of this year. Before enlisting he was an interior decorator employed by Marshall Field & Co.

In the letter he said: "I am coming along fine, just as well as can be expected for a 'gas' case. We are located in a beautiful part of France and the hospital is great. It is such a treat to sleep on a bed with white sheets and eat good food once more. We also have shower baths and moving pictures, so we consider ourselves in luck.

"The Red Cross is doing a wonderful work over here and I have had a very good chance to tell just how much they would be missed. It just seems as though they could not do enough to make us comfortable. I have seen them in action on the field, bringing in the wounded under fire and the untiring work of the members at the front is something wonderful. So if you want to keep on doing your part at home just keep up the support of the Red Cross.

"I hear that our regiment has won the Legion of Honor from the French government, and there is only one French regiment at the present time wearing the red cord; so you can see what the French think of us. And believe me, we have earned it."

Letter Announces Wound.

Private John A. McWilliams, son of John McWilliams of 1317 Early avenue, has been slightly wounded, according to a letter received yesterday from France by his father. In June, 1917, he gave up his position in the wholesale store of Marshall Field & Co. to enlist in the Ninety-fifth company, Sixth regiment, marines, and left for France in September. He is 21 years old, and was last heard from in May.

Dental Surgeon Weedon Osborne, brother of Miss Elizabeth Osborne, 6353 Sheridan road, who was mentioned yesterday as killed in action and being awarded the distinguished service medal posthumously, left the University of Colorado, where he was instructor in dental surgery, in March, 1917, and entered the navy as dental surgeon. He was 25 years old and a graduate of Northwestern university. An older brother, Elemo, 28 years old, is at Fort Leavenworth with the signal corps.

Private John D. Quan, son of Mrs. J. Quan, 7158 Aberdeen street, was mentioned on Thursday as severely wounded.

Officially Reported Prisoner.

Official notification was received yesterday that Private Frank Bretschneider, brother of Anton Bretschneider, 2813 Loomis street, who was reported as having been captured on May 7, is a prisoner at Camp Darmstadt, Germany.

Yesterday's Canadian overseas casualty list contained the name of J. Barnes of Chicago as accidentally killed.

James R. McConnell and Andrew Courtney Campbell, Chicagoans killed in air battles in France, have been honored with the medal of the Aero Club of America with thirty other aviators. Campbell was a son of A. Courtney Campbell Sr. of Kenilworth.

McConnell, a sergeant pilot, was brought down behind the German lines in March, 1917. He was born in Chicago, the son of Judge S. P. McConnell. The family lived in recent years at Carthage, N. C.

War Insurance Paid Only in Monthly Installments

Washington, D. C., July 12.—Widespread impression that insurance of men in the military service is paid in a lump sum after their death led the war department to make the announcement today that payments of benefits under the war risk insurance act are made over a period of twenty years. The insurance is payable, on the death of the insured, on the basis of $5.75 per month for each $1,000 of insurance for 240 monthly installments. For the maximum of $10,000 the beneficiary would receive a payment of $57.50 per month for twenty years.

LETTER FROM EX-CZAR SAYS HE ESCAPED DEATH

STOCKHOLM, July 12.—What is accepted here generally as proof that Nicholas Romanoff and his family were not murdered when they were removed from Ekaterinburg is an alleged letter from the former czar to one of his former generals, publishd in the Novo Vlademosti.

"We are living in need," the letter says. "Even books are denied us. We receive only letters written in Russian and which have been subjected to the strictest censorship.

"When we left Ekaterinburg a group of bandits sought to do us violence. Alex [Grand Duke Alexis, the former czarevitch] was badly affected. Only the presence of mind of Yakovloff and the hand of Providence saved our lives. Alex is seriously ill in bed." Alexis' illness is confirmed from other sources.

"Prisoner of the Mahdi" Dies in German Sanitarium

AMSTERDAM, July 12.—Karl Neufeld, known as "The Prisoner of the Mahdi," has died in a sanitarium near Berlin, according to advices reaching here.

[Karl Neufeld was rescued from a Mahdist jail at Omdurman in September, 1898, where he had been a prisoner for ten years and subjected to horrible torture. His rescuers were British troops commanded by Lord Kitchener.

During his imprisonment Neufeld gained a fluent knowledge of Arabic and Mohammedan customs. After his release he made pilgrimages to Mecca and successfully passed a searching examination on the Koran when his claim to being a Mohammedan was disputed.

At this time he spread the prevailing belief among uninformed Mohammedans that Emperor William is the grand caliph of the European Mohammedans and went to war to free them from Christian oppression.]

in a loyal manner. That is the wish of the German imperial administration and it is supported in this by the chief of the army administration.

Confidence in Russia.

"However, the difficulty of the execution of the peace of Brest-Litovsk does not lie on our side, but in the fact that conditions in Russia are still exceedingly uncertain. We are inclined to believe in the loyalty of the present Russian government, and especially in the loyalty of the representative of the Russian government in Berlin.

"But we may not, and cannot, assume unconditionally that the present Russian government has the power to carry through everywhere the loyal promises made to us. We do not at all wish to create difficulties for the present Russian government, but, as conditions now are, there are incessant developments and endless frictions in the frontier region. However, our principle is that we stand on the basis of peace made at Brest-Litovsk and we will carry out this peace loyally and will deal loyally with the present government.

"They are still under the depressing influence of a terrible crime in Moscow. The murder of our ambassador there was an act in violation of international law than which a worse could never cry to Heaven.

"All indications point to the fact that the accursed deed was instigated by the entente allies in order to involve us in fresh war with the present Russian government—a state of things which we are most anxious to avoid. We do not want fresh war with Russia. The present Russian government desires peace and needs peace, and we are giving her our support in this peaceful disposition and aim.

"On the other hand, it is true that political currents of very varied tendencies are circulating in the Russian empire—movements having the most diverse aims, including the monarchist movement of the Constitutional Democrats and the movements of the Social Revolutionaries. We will not commit ourselves to any political counter current, but are giving careful attention to the course Russia is steering."

Resignation of Kuehlmann.

In connection with this point, the imperial chancellor passed to a review of the political situation in the west. He then spoke of the reasons which led to the resignation of Dr. Von Kuehlmann, and concluded:

"The name of the man who is proposed as Dr. Von Kuehlmann's successor is known to you. Admiral Von Hintze possesses a thorough knowledge of Russian affairs which is a matter of great importance in the present situation. But it goes without saying that I will give my counter signature to the appointment of Admiral Von Hintze only on condition that he follows my line of policy and not his own.

"However, as far as I am concerned, I already have a sure guarantee for this in Admiral Von Hintze's promise. I will direct the line of foreign policy and the secretary of state for foreign affairs has merely to carry out my policy. The proposed secretary of state for foreign affairs is absolutely clear on this point.

"The course with which the great majority of the reichstag declared itself to be in agreement in November of last year will still be followed."

For Moral Conquest.

AMSTERDAM, July 12.—During a debate Wednesday in the Prussian upper house Dr. Bernhard Dernburg, former German minister of colonial affairs, argued that a peace was never concluded on the battlefield alone. Without the coöperation of diplomacy, he said, no peace could be attained.

If Prussia, said Dr. Dernburg, is to maintain her leading position she must make and continue to make moral conquests.

"I am rather doubtful whether she has succeeded in this," he added.

There were shouts of contradiction at this, and the extremist Junker, Herr Oldenburg-Januichau, replied with a flamboyant discourse on the greatness of the house of Hohenzollern, whose members, he said, "had ever educated themselves and their people to fight and die for the state.

1,137 MEN HELD OUT OF 10,000 IN DRAFT RAIDS

Some Sent to Camp and Some to Their Local Boards.

the raid of the night before, many of these being regarded as evaders and others as men who were unable to give such an account of themselves or produce such credentials as would justify their immediate release.

The search for slackers in the suburbs north and west has been proceeding vigorously, but on the north shore with no returns. In Evanston one man was held until he remembered that his card was in his vest pocket.

In Cicero eighty-two were taken and all released except twelve, who will be turned over to the government.

System of Passes.

In order that the raid might be accompanied by as little inconvenience as possible, a system of passes was adopted yesterday. Men who satisfied their examiners that they were not draft evaders were given passes good for a specified time, which rendered them immune from arrest during that period. In most cases these passes were good until such time as the men could produce their credentials, or, having lost them, could obtain others from their draft boards. In cases of men who lived out of the city, arrangements were made for telegraphing their local draft boards or families, and passes for such time as would enable their credentials to be sent on here were given them. In many cases where men asserted their white classification cards were at home, the passes were only for a few hours, to enable them to procure the cards.

Local Boards Rushed.

The various local draft boards throughout the city were kept working busily all day yesterday and late into the night. They will continue to do so throughout the drive, and in many cases they have requisitioned extra help. The procedure has been for men who are picked up, when they assert they have complied with the law, but cannot produce their white classification cards, to telephone to their local draft boards for corroboration of their claims.

No official estimate would be made yesterday by Hinton G. Clabaugh of the exact number of draft evaders who had been picked up in the drive, but department of justice officials estimated it variously at from 10 to 15 per cent of the number arrested.

None of the actual evaders thus far taken have been arraigned before a federal commissioner. This will probably not be done until the conclusion of the drive. The drive caused considerable confusion and some anxiety in many families because of the nonarrival of members at their wonted time. In some cases, where wives had been apprised of their husband's arrest, they hurried to them, and, when the men were released, there were quite affecting family reunions outside police stations and other places where suspects were held.

Chairman A. R. Johnstone of draft board No. 4 said that more than 400 men were questioned in that headquarters with the result that two deserters were found and a small number of technical evaders, these being men who had misunderstood the draft directions.

Discharged Canadian Sought in Check Case

Sergt. Henry Tate, a discharged Canadian soldier wounded in service, is being sought following the arrest and confession of Alexander Dennison of 1403 East Forty-seventh street, who admitted passing a number of bad checks. Dennison said he received the checks from Tate and believed them good.

It was said Tate had been employed for a time with the Western relief fund, later disappearing and taking with him some checks signed in blank by Arthur W. Newton, vice president of the First National bank, treasurer of the fund.

Dennison was accused of operating a confidence game.

Faulty Questionnaire Sets Agents After Realty Man

Federal agents are searching for Jacob Grosby of 4918 North Albany avenue, said to be a wealthy real estate dealer, whose name is said to have been used in information given the draft officials. Grosby is supposed to have misrepresented the facts in connection with his questionnaire, being placed in class 4 as a farmer. Last night his brother told detectives that he had gone to Michigan, but that he was not concerned in the draft, being 33 years old.

WILSON VETOES $2.40 WHEAT TO HALT $12 FLOUR

Says New Price Would Bring Big Increase in Cost of Living.

Washington, D. C., July 12.—President Wilson vetoed the annual agricultural appropriation bill, containing an amendment increasing the price of wheat to $2.40 a bushel, today.

The president's messages said the increase in the price of wheat would add $2 to the cost of a barrel of flour and would add $387,000,000 to the price of the 900,000,000 bushel crop of 1918 wheat. It also would cause a corresponding increase in the price of Canadian wheat, the message said, and would add very materially to the general high cost of living.

The President's Message.

The president's message follows:

"I regret to return without my signature so important a measure as H. R. 9054, entitled 'An Act Making Appropriations for the Department of Agriculture for the Fiscal Year Ending June 30, 1919,' but I feel constrained to do so because of my earnest dissent, from the point of view of principle as well as wise expediency, from the provisions of that part of section 14 which prescribes a uniform minimum price for No. 2 northern spring wheat of $2.40 a bushel.

"I dissent upon principle because I believe that such inelastic legislative price provisions are insusceptible of being administered in a way that will be advantageous either to the producer or to the consumer, establishing as they do arbitrary levels which are quite independent of the normal market conditions, and because I believe that the present method of regulation by conference with all concerned has resulted in the most satisfactory manner, considering the complexity and variety of the subject matter dealt with.

"It is evident that the present method of determining the price to be paid for wheat has had the most stimulating effect upon production, the estimated crop of spring wheat for this year exceeding all high records in a very remarkable and gratifying way. By an overwhelming majority of the farmers of the United States the price administratively fixed has been regarded as fair and liberal, and objections to it have come only from those sections of the country where, unfortunately, it has in recent years proved impossible to rely upon climatic conditions to produce a full crop of wheat and where, therefore, many disappointments to the farmer have proven to be unavoidable.

Not Necessary to Buy Farmers.

"Personally, I do not believe that the farmers of the country depend upon the stimulation of price to do their utmost to serve the nation and the world at this time of crisis by exerting themselves to an extraordinary degree to produce the largest and best crops possible. Their patriotic spirit in this matter has been worthy of all praise and has shown them playing a most admirable and gratifying part in the full mobilization of the resources of the country.

"To a very greatly increased production of wheat they have added an increased production of almost every other important grain, so that our granaries are likely to overflow, and the anxiety of the nations arrayed against Germany with regard to their food supplies has been relieved.

"The administrative method of agreeing upon a fair price has this very great advantage, which any element of rigidity would in large part destroy—namely, the advantage of flexibility, of rendering possible at every stage and in the view of every change of experience a readjustment which will be fair alike to producer and consumer.

Adds $2 a Barrel to Flour.

"A fixed minimum price of $2.40 a bushel would, it is estimated, add $2 a barrel to the price of flour; in other words, raise the price of flour from the present price of $10.50 to $12.50 at the mill; and inasmuch as we are anticipating a crop of approximately 900,000,000 bushels of wheat, this increase would be equivalent to the immense sum of $387,000,000.

"Such an increase in the price of wheat in the United States would force a corresponding increase in the price of Canadian wheat. The allied governments would, of course, be obliged to make all of their purchases at the increased figure, and the whole scale of their financial operations in this country, in which the government of the United States is directly assisting, would be thereby correspondingly enlarged.

"The increase would also add very materially to the cost of living, and there would inevitably ensue an increase in the wages paid in practically every industry in the country. These added financial and economic difficulties, affecting practically the whole world, cannot, I assume, have been in contemplation by the congress in passing this legislation.

TRAINING CAMPS

Applications for Places in New Schools for Officers Come in Slowly.

ALTHOUGH the war department has completed arrangements to train 4,000 students a month in officers' training camps during the next four months, fewer than 100 inquiries have been received from prospective candidates in the Chicago district, according to information given out yesterday by Lieut. L. J. Williams, commandant at Northwestern university headquarters.

Two reasons were assigned by Lieut. Williams for the condition. The first is that so far formal application blanks have not been received from Washington, and the second is that announcements of the camps have not been general.

All applications, according to a pamphlet of instructions, must be made to Lieut. L. J. Williams at the office of the commandant at Northwestern university, Evanston, Ill.

There will be three classes of eligible men; first, enlisted men of the regular army, the national army and the national guard, except coast artillery, signal corps and labor units; second, civilians within the draft age who receive special permission from their exemption board and a limited number of civilians beyond draft age who are not 40 years old.

Accepted candidates will enlist as first class privates and receive a private's pay during training, after which, if successful, they will be placed on a reserve list and commissioned when needed.

Forty students and six members of the University of Chicago faculty will enter the training camp at Fort Sheridan on July 18. The camp will continue until Sept. 16. Two members of the faculty have been chosen for the work, H. O. "Pat" Page, assistant coach, and Daniel Hoffer, a gymnasium instructor.

A course of military training is to be given at the University of Chicago next winter for all the men students. It will be compulsory.

DENY ALLINSON SHIRKER HAVEN IN FARM WORK

Chicago Draft Evader Is Refused That Option by Investigators.

Camp Grant, Ill., July 12.—[Special.]—Farm furloughs, the safe and bullet proof haven offered conscientious objectors by the investigating board appointed to deal from a civilian standpoint with military slackers, will not open to Brent Dow Allinson, Clark W. Getts, or Maurice Tinsky, the three prisoners from Chicago, whose cases in Camp Grant are the center of public interest.

Recommendations received from the investigating board failed to carry names of the slackers in question among the long list of objectors thought to be sincere in their stand.

It is understood a number of the milder cases of slacking will be allowed to apply for the farm work in preference to military service and may be turned over to agricultural operators for duty during the remainder of the war.

Allinson Deigned to Plow.

When the investigating board, which included Judge Julian Mack of Chicago and Dean Strong of Columbia university, held its session in Camp Grant Allinson, Getts, and Tinsky were called in company with the platoon of objectors in camp and were asked if they would care to take farm furloughs instead of performing their military duty.

Allinson said he would condescend to plow the fields in safety. Getts wanted time to think the proposal over. Tinsky was willing to be farmed out.

Allinson and Getts were at that time awaiting court martial sentences and Tinsky had been summoned for trial, the cases having been put through the court on desertion and draft evasion charges.

Helps Morale of Drafted Men.

Military men who understand the grave influence leniency in the three cases would have on the morale of the national army and upon future draft contingents feared that the board would recommend the easy way out.

The fact that the war department board does not intend to interfere with the wheels of military justice in camp is a comforting disclosure to officers and men of the Blackhawk division.

Officers of the Eighty-sixth division are objecting to the activities of two lawyers, one in Chicago, the other in Rockford, who are charging allen soldiers fees for getting them out of the service. The officers say aliens who have been drafted can procure their discharge without legal aid by applying to commanding officers.

BOOZE OR COAL, MINE OWNERS TELL WILSON

Declare 'Dry' Law Means Additional 100,000,000 Tons Needed by U. S.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

Washington, D. C., July 12.—[Special.]—A sensational warning by the National Coal association that booze is seriously curtailing coal production gave additional impetus tonight to the movement for prohibition of the liquor traffic for the remainder of the war. In an official statement the association, composed of nearly all the bituminous operators, said that "nation-wide prohibition for the period of the war is absolutely essential to speeding up the mines sufficiently to produce the 100,000,000 additional tons of coal the country will require this winter.

An appeal to put "bone dry" prohibition into effect at once was addressed by the association to Fuel Administrator Garfield, who has laid it before President Wilson and every senator and representative.

"The liquor traffic is curtailing coal production," the coal association says, "and the country cannot expect to keep booze in the mining sections now and have enough coal later on."

Indorsed by Farrington.

Frank Farrington, president of the Illinois workers, is quoted as agreeing with the operators on the necessity of immediate prohibition and as having so informed President Wilson and Dr. Garfield.

"It is now up to congress to make a clean cut choice between booze for the mining communities and coal for the war and the public," A. R. Hamilton, chairman of the association's coal production committee, said.

The warning uttered by the operators in the face of the growing prospect of a coal famine next winter, even worse than that of last winter, upset all calculations for war-time prohibition legislation. Several "dry" leaders at the capitol said that congress would be derelict in its duty if it should delay longer the passage of the bill making the country bone dry on Jan. 1 next.

Seek Date for Vote.

Advocates and opponents in the senate of the proposal for national war-time prohibition negotiated today for an agreement to vote on the "bone dry" rider to the $11,000,000 emergency agricultural appropriation bill.

The prohibition leaders suggested a formal agreement to vote Aug. 20 on condition that they allow the bill to go over until after a summer vacation recess or adjournment of congress. A counter proposal was that the bill go over and be given privileged status for continuous consideration after the vacation until a vote is reached.

Congressional leaders plan to consult with President Wilson on the prohibition question, particularly regarding considerations of revenue loss to the government and the effect on the new revenue bill.

Calls Prohibition Essential.

In announcing its attitude on the liquor question the National Coal association said:

"Nation-wide prohibition for the period of the war is absolutely essential, in the opinion of the National Coal association, representing bituminous coal operators with an annual production of nearly 400,000,000 tons, to make effective any plans for speeding up the mines sufficiently to get the 100,000,000 additional tons of coal the country will need this winter.

"A definite program for increased coal production, placed formally before the United States fuel administration as the best thought of the industry, carries with it the recommendation that nation-wide prohibition be put into effect at once. The coal production committee of the National Coal association, which formulated the program, also has addressed a letter to each member of congress advising him of the recommendation.

Booze or Coal.

"In the opinion of the representative committee of operators, which comprises in its membership delegates from virtually every large coal producing field in the nation, the country cannot have both booze and sufficient coal this winter. Nor can the country keep booze in the mining sections now and have enough coal later on. The liquor traffic is curtailing coal production and the time has come to eliminate it if there is to be the substantial increase in coal output the war program demands.

"This conclusion was reached unanimously after thorough and painstaking investigation by the committee. The National Coal association is informed that the conclusion is not only the judgment of the operators but it is concurred in by Frank Farrington, president of the United Mine Workers of American for the state of Illinois.

"It is understood that Fuel Administrator Garfield has transmitted the recommendation of the National Coal association to President Wilson, who now has it under consideration."

Based on Production Comparisons.

The coal production committee's recommendation to the association was:

"Regardless of political affiliations of the members of the association and leaving out of consideration the moral issues involved, and basing its opinion entirely on economic and patriotic grounds, the committee unanimously and unqualifiedly believes that national prohibition for the period of the war is absolutely necessary to make effective this or any other plan for increased coal production. A comparison of the records of production of mines in wet and dry territories furnishes ample proof of the need of prohibition. The various instances cited to you need not be repeated here, but they typify the experience of operators throughout the entire country."

FEROCIOUS EYES WON GUYNEMER UNDYING FAME

Painting of Farre Shows Soul of the Great French Ace.

BY LOUIS ALBERT LAMB.

By a curious stroke of luck Chicago will be able to celebrate two historic anniversaries of George Guynemer's career during the exhibition of Lieut. Henri Farré's aviation paintings at the Art institute. Next Friday, July 19, falls the third anniversary of the first victory of Corporal-Pilot (later captain) Guynemer, whose officially controlled record of fifty-three aerial victories remains unequaled. Sunday, July 21, is the third anniversary of the first citation of the "ace of aces," carrying with it the French military medal with the yellow ribbon and also the war cross with a palm.

Lieut. Farré's canvas at the Art institute faithfully represents the terrible fight which is thus tersely summed up in the text of the citation to the order of the army, as follows:

"Corporal-Pilot Guynemer, pilot full of determination and daring. Volunteer for the most dangerous missions. After a desperate pursuit gave battle to a German airplane, resulting in the downing of the enemy in flames."

Frail as a Youth.

For a boy of 20 years and 6 months that was an exploit of the first order, especially as he had been in the service less than eight months, after either three or five rejections. Henry Bordeaux says he was rejected three times. Jacques Mortane, aviation expert of the Petit Parisien, says five times.

What is undisputed is that George Guynemer was born on Christmas eve, 1894, at Paris; was educated at Compiegne and Paris; was so frail that he had to interrupt his studies many times and at the mobilization in August, 1914, he had been taken to Biarritz to recuperate for his entry at the polytechnique. In vain he tried to get into the army. Not even his father's influence could help him.

Finally in desperation he went to the aviation captain at the Pau school and by sheer force of will extracted acceptance as an apprentice mechanician. From November to January he wiped grease, cleaned cylinders, swept out garages and dissected airplanes. His other occupation was asking questions; and he drove the pilots to distraction with his insatiable curiosity.

"Made Believe" Flying.

Whenever he had a chance he would climb into the cockpit of a machine in the hangar and "make believe he was flying," manipulating the controls and haranguing the machine, just as Tod Sloan harangued the horses on the track.

The impossible thing happened when he applied for apprenticeship as a pilot; he was accepted! To this day nobody has been able to explain this reversal of all the laws of destiny. His unendurable fire of eye and his terrifying will power seem to explain it, if anything can.

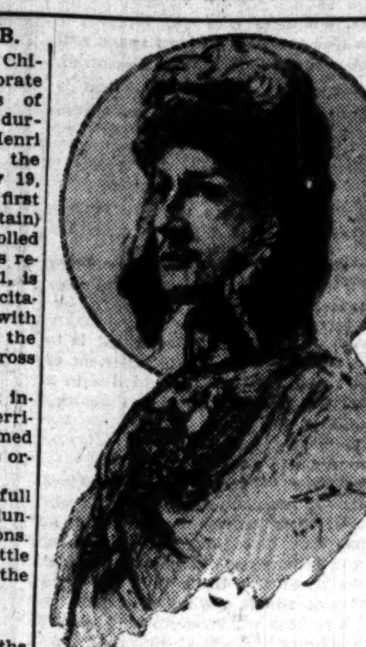

On Jan. 27, 1915, the apprentice pilot began his air studies with—a snow shovel! On March 11 he had done all the required "stunts"—distance, altitude, turns, volplanes without power, and landings without "breaking wood." He got his license and was sent to Vedrines for "polishing off."

His First Flight.

On the first flight he made as pilot he smashed a fuselage. June 8 he was assigned to the Stork squadron. On the 19th Vedrines gave him permission to go up as pilot in command. The archives of the Stork squadron carry the official story in Guynemer's own handwriting, thus:

"Sortie with Guerder. Boche sighted at Coeuvres and overhauled at Pierrefonds. Fired one band. Gun jammed, then cleared. The Boche ran away and landed near Laon. At Coucy we took a look around and saw an Aviatik flying at 3,200 meters towards Soissons.

"We followed him and as soon as he was over our lines we made a nose dive and got under him at fifty meters, behind and to the left. At the first volley we saw the Aviatik take a sudden list. Explosion in the apparatus. He replied with a carbine. Bullet in our wing and a ball grazed the head and hand of Guerder. At our last shot the pilot crumpled up in the fuselage. The observer put up his hands. The Aviatik fell nose down, in flames, between the trenches."—Bordeaux: "Life of Guynemer."

CAPT. GEORGES GUYNEMER.

Perpetuates Dramatic Instinct.

Lieut. Farré's painting perpetuates the dramatic instant when the German pilot, killed by Guerder's last shot, left the machine without control; and the German observer, standing in his place "hands up" in token of surrender, saw the "essence" tank burst into flames. Surrender to death, for even then the machine was going into the fatal "vrille," or nose dive, that would end in annihilation 11,000 feet below.

The painting, however, stops at that instant, and does not tell all the story. This fight was witnessed by the two armies. When Guynemer landed at Carrière l'Evêque the Germans shelled him and his own comrades of the Two Hundred and Thirty-eighth infantry, Lieut. Col. Maillard, paid him military honors.

Henry Bordeaux records an amusing incident of the landing. Guynemer wore flying togs much too large for his lean shanks, and when he descended from the cockpit he tripped on the baggy, fur lined breeches. German shrapnel was exploding all over the landing field, but Guynemer sat down very coolly in the midst of the shell fire and removed his "altitude suit." After that he mounted the plane and sailed into safety out of the fire zone.

Sits Down Mid Shell Fire.

An official letter from Lieut. Col. Maillard, in the name of the officers and men of the Two Hundred and Thirty-eighth, congratulating Guynemer and Guerder, gives eyewitness attestation of the vertical fall of the German plane; and the Military Medal citation gives additional confirmation. The amazing heroism of the exploit was not even mentioned by Guynemer, though fully established by the mechanician, Guerder.

When the machine gun jammed Guynemer was less than 100 feet from the German plane and taking the enemy's fire at point blank range. Guerder reached for his carbine, but Guynemer shouted directions for the clearing of the jam. For two minutes Guynemer held his plane in position, so close to the Aviatik that he could see the recoil of the German gun. Then Guerder resumed firing with the Lewis and the victory was won.

Lieut. Farré's unfinished portrait of Guynemer is worthy of close study because it is the only likeness of the hero in existence which gives any inkling of the terrible ferocity of his gaze.

It was the tawny gold and black eye of the lioness at bay. It was the eye St. Simon described—"the eye that knocks one down." It was hypnotic, compelling, fear inspiring.

It was the transfixing look of Prince Bismarck which made soldiers and statesmen quail. Guynemer's look—and that alone—broke down the iron regulations of the French army and obtained his enlistment, despite infirmity, physique, and a multiple record of rejection.

Won Fame on a Look.

It was that look alone which made Commandant Brocard retain him after the unlucky smashing of an apparatus on his first apprentice flight. It was that look which made his adversaries in the air turn tail and run away in a panic. He dominated the greatest airplane engineers of France with his eyes. Why, some of his comrades actually believe that Guynemer's visual fire exploded the gasoline in the enemy's tank!

This is the outstanding point about Lieut. Farré's portrait. It is really a portrait of Guynemer's soul—"a soul so powerful," as Commandant Brocard said in his letter to Deputy Lasies, "that I knew it would destroy its frail envelope."

There Ahead of Death.

Talking one day to Jacques Mortane, Guynemer said:

"People talk about my victories, but they forget my hard knocks. The public takes me for the luckiest of pilots, not remembering, as I do, that I have been downed seven times and wounded twice. There is no invulnerable chasing pilot. I am asking myself to this day why I was not killed on Sept. 23, 1916.

"By all odds, I should have been buried then. But my hour had not yet struck. I was at the rendezvous in advance of death. At 3,000 meters a shell exploded in one of my wings. The canvas, rent by the explosion, was incessantly torn by the wind. My machine was entirely beyond control, could not sustain me, and fell with terrifying swiftness, plunging through space.

"I vrilled, staggered, plunged. I was certain of my doom; but I had only one fear—that I might fall inside the Boche lines. I could not force my will on the machine. It would not obey my commands. The wind, happily, carried me into our lines.

Shoulder Belt Saves Life.

"At 1,600 meters I made desperate efforts to recover. Nothing doing. The controls were useless. The meteor would not slow up. The ground drew me like a magnet. I shut my eyes. I heard a crash. I looked. I was sticking in the ground like a pylon. I had hit at more than 180 kilometers an hour.

"I felt myself. Not a wound, not the slightest wound. Nothing but a little scratch on the face. I believe that my shoulder belt which held me in my seat saved my life. As an offset the belt cut into my shoulders. In spite of that I am grateful, as otherwise I should not now be telling you the most tragic of my impressions."

The Death of Guynemer.

The death of Guynemer, his apotheosis, his assumption? Little is known for sure except this: He and Bozon-Verduraz went up at 8 o'clock on Sept. 11, 1917, from Dunkirk. Eight Germans attacked them. Guynemer attacked one at 13,000 feet. The rest retreated, Bozon-Verduraz chasing them.

The Germans assert that Guynemer's body was identified at Poelcapelle, but was not buried, because of the intense British artillery fire raging over the sector for three days. When the English captured Poelcapelle no trace of body, grave, or airplane could be found. The French peasants believe that Guynemer was snatched up into heaven in a chariot of fire, like Elijah.

Lieut. Farré's paintings will enable any one to "visualize" the heroic life of the "ace of aces" with a vividness unequaled in all the history of warfare. These pictures and the French official documents fully establish his right to glory.

FILM OF FRENCH FLYERS AN 'ACE' OF A MOVIE SHOW

Remarkable Achievement by Farre and Others at Art Institute.

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

Beautiful as are the paintings by Lieut. Farré of scenes on the aviation fields and in actual aerial practice, perhaps more stirring are the moving pictures of these same scenes now being shown in Fullerton hall of the Art institute. With a show of confidence mostly assumed for the occasion, the shades of Mae Tinée hanging heavily over my head, I tried to review in a calm and critical manner the film of the aviators of France. But I couldn't. It was impossible. From the first picture the audience, myself included, was swept from its dispassionate feet and carried along in a glow of enthusiastic interest that did not slacken even when the lights went on.

Remarkable Achievement.

It is a remarkable achievement, this that has been accomplished by Lieut. Farré and his fellow artists. The story of the flying corps opens with the teaching of the fledgling pupil to master his machine. Little by little his progress is shown till he stands, a row of him, fully trained pilots ready for the firing line.

There, leaving him, the pictures turn to the masters of the air, men who have won their spurs in combat with the Boche. All the tricks of flying are shown. There are swift plunges through thick blankets of clouds down, down to the open sky below, and tail spins and nose dives, and summersaults where the planes turn over and over in air till one holds one's breath dreading the fatal accident that by a hair's breadth swerves away.

Beautiful "Flying Fish."

One or two of the pictures are colored. Exquisitely beautiful is the "hydroplane at sunset." The flying fish swoops down a path of silver cut through the blue of the water in the trail of the red sun disappearing over the sea's rim. For these hydroairplanes are flying fish. Graceful they are, with regular outline and a quirky tail like a dolphin. The modern horses of Neptune, they flash through the crest of the waves, spurning the foam behind them, and strike away into the upper world of clouds.

Touches of humor are not lacking. The mascots of the flying corps are ready with bells on. A comfortable spaniel and a lively fox terrier share honors with the nondescript dog that jumps carelessly over his master's stick—that master being one of the most famous of French aces.

And pathos is there. Many eyes were wet when the stretches of No Man's land and the front lines of the French army were shown as seen from the planes. Nothing but bare, barren country for miles and miles, with zigzagging narrow lines as the only sign that living men do live amidst such desolation.

Portraits Win Applause.

The portraits of French aces were received with applause. One lad of 18 had downed eight German machines. Capt. Guynemer led in number. He, before he fell over the German lines, downed seventy-seven Boche aeroplanes, fifty-five of which are officially recorded.

The scenes showing the work of the American fund for French wounded in France are interesting. This fund has done and is doing a splendid work. The proceeds from this exhibition go in part to the fund, and the rest to the orphans of French aviators dead on the field of honor.

SOCIETY WELCOMES FRENCH GUESTS FAMOUS IN AIR

The sky fighters of France here with the French official exhibition of paintings of battles in the air being shown in the Art institute were welcomed yesterday afternoon at a reception given in Fullerton hall by the workers of the American fund for French wounded. The exhibition was opened by M. Antonin Barthelemy, the French consul, who spoke of the splendid work the A. F. F. W. under the direction of Mrs. Russell Tyson was doing and then introduced Commandant Joseph Tulasne, chief of the French Aviation Mission in America.

Commandant Tulasne made a short talk and introduced Lieut. Henri Farré, the aviator-artist who painted the canvases now on exhibiton; Lieut. Georges Flachaire, a famous French ace, and Lieut. Joseph Dobelle, who sang the "Marseillaise." Lieut. Flachaire told, in the charming literal English that most of our French guests speak, of how he brought down his first German plane, and, according to his account, conquering a hun plane is really one of the easiest feats in the world.

However, after seeing the interesting and thrilling moving pictures which followed Lieut. Flachaire's talk, the audience was inclined to disagree with his modest opinions about fighting in the air.

Mrs. William Prescott Hunt and her sister, Miss Marie J. Rozet, were hostesses and were assisted by Mrs. William E. Clarke, Mrs. George F. Brown Jr., Mrs. Keith Spalding, Mrs. Benjamin Carpenter, Mrs. C. Dana Corbin, Mrs. William H. Hubbard, Mrs. Hugh J. McBirney, Miss Naomi Donnelley, Miss Mabel Dick, and Mrs. L. Hamilton McCormick. Miss Courtney Letts, Miss Katherine Ingalls, Miss Edith Cummings, Miss Ginevra King, Miss Lucretia Green, Miss Helen Hoyne, Miss Marion Farnsworth, Miss Martha Granger, Miss Barbara Granger, Miss Edith Rosenfield, and other young girls sold souvenir programs.

Upstairs in the galleries, where the paintings were on exhibition Lieut. Farre was kept busy autographing reproductions of his portrait of Capt. Georges Guynemer. Mrs. Jacob Baur and Mrs. George Halleck Taylor were in charge of the sale of the prints.

Among those at the reception were Mrs. Arthur Meeker, Mrs. Cyrus Hall McCormick, Mrs. Walter A. Crowdus, Mrs. Charles Barney Goodspeed, Miss Kathryne Linn, Mrs. John Andrews King, Miss Josephine Palmer, Capt. and Mrs. William A. Moffett, Gen. and Mrs. Thomas A. Barry, Miss Carolyn Tyler, Mrs. Thomas W. Hinde, Mrs. Julius Rosenwald, Mrs. Archibald E. Freer, Mrs. James A. Patten, Mrs. Hale Holden, Mrs. Kenneth Sawyer Goodman, Mrs. Cyrus Bentley, Miss Betty Hoyt, Miss Isabelle Robbins, Miss Margaret Pullman, Mrs. Knowlton Ames, Mrs. George McKinlock, Mrs. Moses Wentworth, Mrs. Addison Stillwell, and Mrs. John D. McGowan.

The exhibition will be open daily until July 31 from 11 o'clock in the morning until 10 o'clock in the evening. Mothers of Chicago aviators will receive with Mrs. William E. Clarke today.

LUTHERANS UNITE THROUGHOUT U. S. STARTING NOV. 15

Atlantic City, N. J., July 12.—Representatives of the various Lutheran organizations of the nation today completed plans for a merger to take place on Nov. 15 in New York at a special jubilee celebration.

The consolidation will take in the general council and general synod of the Lutheran church and the United Synod of the Lutheran church of the south. The new body will be known as the United Lutheran Church of America, and leading delegates say it will save $1,000,000 annually, enable the combination of churches in communities, and release pastors for work elsewhere. About 1,300,000 communicants will be affected.

Boards are to be consolidated under charters to be taken out in the state where the new headquarters are to be established. The board of publication will have its headquarters in Philadelphia, foreign mission board in Baltimore, home missions board in Pittsburgh, inner mission board in Chicago, board of education in Washington, and the Virgin islands and South America board in New York.

British Admiralty Denies Story of U-Boat Horror

LONDON, July 12.—Charges made by Naval Paymaster Collingwood Hughes that a captain of a captured derelict German submarine left four British seamen on board the U-boat when he knew that it was about to be destroyed by a patrol boat were unauthorized, according to a statement issued by the British admiralty tonight. The statement reads:

"There is no information in the possession of the admiralty in confirmation of the statements made by Mr. Hughes, which were made entirely without authority."

WAR CHIEFS GIVE COMMISSIONS TO ARMY ASPIRANTS

Many Chicagoans Win Shoulder Bars in New List.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., July 12.—[Special.]—The following Chicagoans were given commissions in the reserve and national army by the war department today.

Reserve corps—Captains, ordnance department—Dent Parrett, 1966 East Seventy-second place; Richard Dougan, 6034 Kenwood avenue.

Second lieutenants, ordnance—Maurice A. Barancik, 9000 Buffalo avenue; Harold J. Bradley, 5323 Hyde Park boulevard; Robert Briggs, 5806 Lowe avenue; Ralph O. Cornwell, 6339 Woodlawn avenue; Charles R. Goold, 2219 Cottage Grove avenue; Edward F. J. Linberg, 1011 Townsend street; Arthur F. Malinowski, 821 Oakdale avenue; Herbert C. Otis, 5431 Woodlawn avenue; Earl E. Smith, 28 West Nineteenth street, Chicago Heights; Ernest S. Smith, 1544 Jonquil terrace.

Captain, medical—Phillip C. W. Johannes, 6836 South Union avenue.

First lieutenants, medical—George C. Fenn, 25 Illinois street, Chicago Heights; Albert W. Haeffner, 4022 West Twenty-second street; Joseph L. Truedel, 7725 Burnham avenue.

Second lieutenants, coast artillery corps—Ernest Huber Jr., 1822 Estes avenue; Arthur M. Kaindl, 2600 Chicago avenue; Jacob H. Markham, 1137 South Mozart street; Frederick W. Martin, 2451 Cortez street; Oren W. Rynearson, 4127 Berkeley avenue; Donald C. Wehrly, 5549 Sheridan road; Harry E. White, 5758 South Aberdeen street; Harvey Ellis, 815 Forest avenue, Evanston.

National army—Captain, quartermaster—Weeley Williams, 1942 Kenilworth avenue.

First lieutenants, quartermaster—Frank J. Brackett, 226 West Jackson street; Clarence R. Manzer, 105 South La Salle street.

Second lieutenant, quartermaster—Walter A. Myer, 1433 Rascher avenue; Joseph P. Vovesny, 1616 West Eighteenth street; George W. Wilson, 5127 Hyde Park boulevard.

Second lieutenant, sanitary corps—Joseph Donner, 6426 Marshfield avenue.

Second lieutenant, engineer corps—William S. Dunderdale, Chicago.

Second lieutenants, coast artillery corps—Arthur C. Haines, 7130 Rhodes avenue; David Smith, 809 Lexington street, Oak Park, Ill.

RUMELY'S FRIEND QUITS NEW YORK TRIBUNE POST

New York, July 12.—[Special.]—Dr. Ernest Henry Gruening, managing editor of the New York Tribune, severed his connection with that newspaper tonight. The resignation was entirely unexpected and reason behind it was not made public by the Tribune. The following statement was issued at the Tribune office:

"The connection of Dr. Ernest Henry Gruening of Bath Shore, L. I., with the New York Tribune ceased this evening. The reasons are purely internal."

Dr. Gruening's town home is at 324 West One Hundred and Third street. That is also the apartment in which Dr. Edward A. Rumely, former publisher of the Evening Mail, lived.

Seeking senate investigation into the acts which brought about his arrest by the federal government on a charge of perjury, Dr. Rumely today sent a telegram to Senator King of Utah in which he said:

"I waive immunity and will willingly place at your disposal all the facts in my possession."

U. S. ON TRAIL OF 100 MILLION HUN CORRUPTION FUND

In New York Alone 16 Banks Were Depositaries of Money.

New York, July 12.—[Special.]—The corruption fund which the German government planted in the United States shortly after the beginning of the war and most of which was used up by Bernstorff, Dr. Albert, Dernburg, Boy-Ed, Von Papen, Rintelen, and other high ranking plotters and propagandists, amounted to more than $100,000,000, according to a statement made by Deputy Attorney General Alfred L. Becker today.

Furthermore, Attorney General Lewis has the list of the banks in which most of this fund was deposited and public accountants and federal agents are now at work trying to trace the payments that were made by Bernstorff, Albert, and others in their various deals to create pro-German sentiment and to do damage to American and allied property in this country.

Follow Circle of Checks.

It was by following the "circle" around which the checks traveled that the authorities were able to get at the bottom of the Bolo Pasha plot and to establish the fact that the New York Evening Mail was bought for propaganda purposes by the German government.

"The investigation to determine to whom this money went," said Mr. Becker, "has been under way for the last two months and to date we have established the fact that in New York City alone sixteen banking institutions acted as depositaries of the German corruption fund, which amounted not to $30,000,000, as has been stated, but to more than $100,000,000. Very little of the money was sent from Germany. Most of it was raised here in the United States through the sale of German war bonds, and I may add that we have the names of several thousand persons who were purchasers of these bonds.

Completed Inquiry.

"We have completed the investigation of the accounts in the sixteen banks referred to, and are now tracing the checks made out by Bernstorff, Albert, and others. In practically every instance the checks were made payable to 'cash' in order to conceal their disposition. To trace them to their final destination is not an easy matter, but it can be done, as was proved in the Bolo Pasha case, in which the payments to Bolo traveled through several banks and passed through various hands before the money finally reached him.

"We are now calling in the recipients of the checks and questioning each one closely in the effort to find those into whose pockets the money finally found its way."

Shortage of Farm Labor Halts State Guard Camp

Springfield, Ill., July 12.—[Special.]—Because of the shortage in farm labor and the necessity for continuous work in the fields, the annual encampment of the Illinois state guard will not be held this year. Gov. Lowden, after a conference with members of the State Council of Defense authorized a statement tonight that the encampment, which would have been held in Springfield, be called off.

CARSON SAYS BRITISH TORTURE THE ULSTERITES

BELFAST, July 12.—[By the Associated Press.]—Sir Edward H. Carson, leader of the Irish Unionist party, in addressing a meeting of Orangemen here today, said that the position of the Ulster leader was one of grave anxiety. The government was constantly torturing and terrorizing the Ulsterites, Sir Edward declared, and in the midst of this great world war the indignity was put upon them of being threatened with subjection to those who had not the faintest conception of what the words "freedom and liberty" meant.

Many brave Ulster Orangemen now were sleeping their last sleep in France and Flanders, he said, and before they left their home shores the government gave them a promise that as long as they remained away and the war lasted there would be no question raised of home rule.

"We will, Sir Edward declared, "keep that promise so far as we are concerned; we will keep that promise to our dead brethren, come what will."

He said he was sorry to see that some men of his own party in England apparently were weakening on the question of home rule and Ulster. At present everything paled into insignificance when compared with the war, he agreed, and there was no use in winning Ulster if they lost in France and Flanders. The duty of the Ulsterites was not to allow themselves to be held back from the great conflict by anything in the nature of an offensive toward those who govern them, Sir Edward pointed out.

ICE DRIVERS ADD TO RATES, CHARGE

Blame for overcharges in deliveries of ice were shifted from dealers to drivers at a hearing yesterday afternoon before the bureau of investigation of the United States food administration. The dealers were called in by A. S. Adams, chief of the bureau, because it was found that in numerous cases fifty pounds of ice had been sold for 25 cents instead of 24, and customers were forced to pay 50 cents for 100 pounds instead of 48 cents.

Peddlers of ice were told yesterday that they, too, must sell ice at 48 cents for 100 pounds. Every dealer who does not manufacture his own ice is classed by the food administration as a peddler.

O'LEARY ADMITS TRYING TO SEND CASEMENT TO U. S.

New York, July 12.—Jeremiah A. O'Leary, the Sinn Fein leader indicted for conspiracy to commit treason, admitted in the federal court here today that in September, 1914, he tried to get Sir Roger Casement, later executed by the British government for high treason, to head an Irish press bureau in this country.

This admission was made when Jeremiah was called to the stand again to day to testify at the retrial of his brother, John J. O'Leary, a New York lawyer, who is accused of aiding him to escape on the eve of his trial for publication of alleged seditious articles in the Bull.

Jeremiah denied that he had indorsed the sinking of the Lusitania or the invasion of Belgium.

After he was questioned regarding his opposition to the United States entering the war, Jeremiah was asked why the American Truth society, of which he was president, has ceased to make entries in a book of money received after this country had declared war.

"I ordered it stopped," said O'Leary. "On our office doors were marks of 'jimmies,' marks as if a rat had been gnawing at it. I became afraid agents of the department of justice or some secret service men would break in and steal it and then try to prove I had received German money. I would have no book to show where all the money had come from, so I took the book to my home as protection to myself."

JACKIES TO HELP ST. VINCENT FUND

Several hundred jackies from the Great Lakes station will be at Comiskey park, Thirty-fifth street and Shields avenue, this afternoon to play musical selections, drill and otherwise participate in the military field day entertainment for the benefit of the babies of St. Vincent's Infant asylum.

In addition to the military features there will be a number of athletic events, including a baseball game and a soccer football game.

Mrs. William D. McJunkin is in charge of the entertainment. The program will start at 2 p. m.

A score or more of pretty girls, members of the Young Ladies' auxiliary of St. Vincent's Infant asylum, and headed by Miss Gertrude Nealy, will sell programs, candy, peanuts and flowers.

FAILED TO BUCKLE BELT, REASON OF MITCHEL DEATH

Washington, D. C., July 12.—Failure to buckle his safety belt and the "peculiar quicksnap" of his scout plane when it was nosed over for a glide apparently caused the death of Maj. John Purroy Mitchel, says the official report on the accident at Gerstner Field, La., received today at the war department.

The official report from Maj. Kirby, commandant of Gerstner field, follows:

"The board found that Maj. J. P. Mitchel, R. C. A. S., while flying a scout airplane, signal corps, No. 41372, at Gerstner field, Lake Charles, La., at about 8:05 a. m. on July 6, 1918, fell out of said airplane at an altitude of about 500 feet, when said airplane nosed down sharply and was killed instantaneously. Said airplane was found about half mile south of hangar 24, a total wreck, and Maj. Mitchel's body was found about 500 yards nearer hangar No. 24.

"The board also finds that death occurred in line of duty and not because of his own misconduct. The accident investigation officer reports that safety belt was found unbuckled and intact, with no evidence of any strain having been placed upon it. The fire extinguisher was found seventy yards from the body on line with ship. Body bounded ten feet in opposite direction to ship on line with it.

"The consensus of opinion of witnesses is that he failed to buckle safety belt and upon nosing over for glide was thrown out by the peculiar quick snap of the scout when the stick pushed too far forward."

Woman Seized as Chief of Strike Rioters

Anna Scnzek of 1206 Florence avenue, Evanston, was arrested yesterday as the leader of a group of striking employés of the Mark Manufacturing company, Evanston, after the strikers had thrown bricks and otherwise attempted to prevent other workmen from entering the plant.

Frank Mantenf of 1726 Lyons street, foreman of the plant, was seriously injured on Thursday night when he was attacked by a group of workmen.

Representatives of the 700 employés of the company will meet with Clayton Mark, one of the owners; Charles Bordon, superintendent; and Mayor Harry P. Pearsons at 10 o'clock this morning in an effort to settle differences.

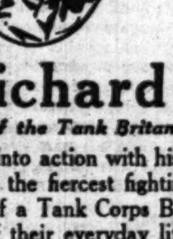

MARINE DRIVE NETS ONLY 35 HUN BUSTERS

Thirty-five pugnacious aspirants to get "into it" in the right place constituted the total number of recruits who were dispatched by the marines last night to their training camp at Paris Island, N. C. The offices remained open and the bally-hooing invitation brigade, aided by a fife and drum corps of Spanish war veterans, continued their efforts far into the night, with parades through all of the loop streets.

The main office issued a call yesterday for 300 women to aid the recruiting work, each woman pledged to procure one man per month. Mrs. Martha Abe, the first to volunteer, addressed five meetings during the noon hour. The women will have charge of regular recruiting meetings and rallies. The mission is ready to establish a woman's headquarters at 224 South Clark street.

Those desirous of messing up the sons of Teutonia may apply at any of the three loop stations, 224 South Clark street, 108 East Jackson boulevard, and 140 West Jackson boulevard.

THROUGH AMERICA IN A RECRUITING TANK

Captain Richard Haigh

Commander of the Tank Britannia

Captain Haigh went into action with his tank at Arras and at Ypres, in some of the fiercest fighting of the war. His story of the making of a Tank Corps Battalion, of the comedies and tragedies of their everyday life, is told with a wealth of human interest.

His book—the first to be written by a Tank Commander about the Tanks—is refreshing in its simplicity and freedom from all exaggeration. Ask your bookseller today for

HENRY FORD'S CANDIDACY.

A French philosopher under the monarchy said of an appointment: "The place called for a mathematician, so they appointed a dancing master." The habit is less one of monarchies than it is of democracies. Until a dynasty begins to peter out in early senility and wanton irresponsibility it takes good care of its own interests, which frequently are also the interests of the state.

In democracies there is peculiarly insistent belief that if a man is, say, a surgeon of celebrity and can snip out an appendix with celerity his opinions upon the tariff, turnips, or tuberoses is, because of his surgical ability, given extraordinary value. We think that Thomas Edison, because he invented a phonograph, must have important and valuable thoughts on military and diplomatic subjects.

Particular achievement indicates to us universal genius, as if John D. Rockefeller were equipped, by the Standard Oil company, to be authoritative upon any issue of foreign relations.

A man may have a remarkable mechanical talent and yet believe that the moon is made of green cheese. If we commissioned him to write a text on astronomy for the schools we should be applying a common political method.

Henry Ford knew how to develop an industry around a good gasoline engine and by applying a liberal wage policy to his employés he has grown in wealth and reputation. Therefore, because he can make an automobile, it becomes a moral obligation upon the Republican party in Michigan to accept him from the Democrats as United States senator.

The gasoline engine and a liberal wage policy do not entirely equip Mr. Ford for the duties of the United States senate at this time. The leaders of the United States will deal for some time to come with the biggest questions of statecraft which ever have confronted the nation.

The relations of the United States to other nations must be determined. The policies of the United States for its own development, its security, in its relation to associations of nations, in its agreements with nations, economic and military, must be fixed.

Sanity and rationality will have to contend with illusions sickened with Utopianism. If the United States comes out of its perplexities a strong and secure nation it will be because level headed men, tempering their altruism with their knowledge of reality, have charge of the national destinies.

Mr. Ford as a candidate for the United States senate must be regarded not in relation to his success with a gasoline engine nor to his liberal wage policy. He must be examined in relation to what he has done in such appearances as he has made as a public character, in such aspects as reveal his thought upon public questions, such as indicate how he thinks and what he would do with regard to the questions the United States senate will handle.

We find that Mr. Ford has revealed himself twice. Once when he sent that gigantic ark of asininity, the Peace Ship, loaded with the country's cranks, Utopians, dreamers, and whiskered whimsicalities, to Europe to get the boys out of the trenches.

That was Henry Ford's first appearance as a publicist, and we must say that a state which would select the skipper of that ark to represent it in a solemn conclave of men charged with serious national responsibility, affecting this and other generations, would be loony.

"Get the boys out of the trenches by Christmas," was the first public policy of Henry Ford and his ideal of the way to get them out was to go to Europe and ask them to come out.

Mr. Ford's second act of public policy was to devote some of his enormous wealth in support of an advertising campaign charging that munition makers were trying to get this country into war and that if the country prepared against its imminent danger it would be betrayed to the bloodsuckers.

We do not believe that anything Mr. Ford can do now in war activity can compensate for the damage this campaign, utterly uncalled for, utterly outside his personal field, did against the best interests of the country.

It again revealed in public affairs the impractical visionary and this time in a vindictive fashion, trying to influence Americans against the clamorous demands of national security. That was Henry Ford's second declaration of public policy. That is his public record, and if there is a moral obligation upon Michigan to the rest of the country it is to keep this man out of the United States senate until the time may come when the United States senate has nothing to discuss which in the slightest fashion could affect the lives of people now living or of people to come.

THE AMERICAN FARMER.

On the American farm one of the great battles of history is being fought throughout the world conflict.

It is being fought and it is being won.

Writing in THE TRIBUNE today, Henry M. Hyde visualizes from direct observation the dry reports of the crop experts, painting a picture of the conditions spread before the traveler through the agricultural west that is as thrilling as martial music. Deeper than the drums of a conqueror is the sound of the wind in the standing grain of this midcontinent. Significant as the rattle of machine guns is the sound of harvesters at work on crops so huge that they mean strength and good heart for all our allied armies and for the peoples behind them who stand with us for victory.

Lately the enemy has met the American soldier and sailor, the clean, gay, resolute, hard fighting young American. Our allies have felt the recreating strength on the battlefield of this fresh, unwearied flood of spiritual and physical vitality and power. We should like them to see another American fighter, the man or the woman on the American farm, standing on his victorious battlefield today. For the will and intelligence, the patriotic devotion and enthusiasm of the American farmer sustain today the cause we fight for with an inexhaustible power. We should like our allies to look over miles of middle western farms at this time and look into the faces of the freemen and freewomen who have brought them to their utmost production, not for self, but for a great cause. To England, to France, to Italy, to all our allies that would be a vision of power as inspiring as the sight of armies.

All honor to the men and women of the American farm. They have fought in the great war of freedom and their strength will flow into the battle and make victory certain.

HUNTING OUT SLACKERS.

The raid upon slackers being conducted in the streets and public places, theaters, moving picture houses, ball parks, railway stations, etc., by hundreds of agents of the federal government reveals how lost the individual is in the American scheme.

With its absurdities and inconveniences, we prefer this looseness of social organization to the close police scrutiny which some European countries put upon the individual for state purposes; but without hurting the liberties or even the susceptibilities of American citizens some scheme which would make an American a better identified individual could be devised.

The American mass is so loosely organized that if it were not for the voluntary registration in the poll books about the only record of a citizen's existence would be in the city directories. American human records are so faulty that frequently the lack of them proves an embarrassment to a person trying to establish a complete identity, particularly with respect to the past.

The official acknowledgment that a citizen is dead is sometimes the only official intimation that he had been alive. A general registration of all persons in the United States would tighten up the social organization. It would not be a tyrannical practice to require that a householder reëstablishing himself should identify himself to the proper authorities. There need be no unjust interference with personal movement and individual liberty, even if the identity of the person is fixed officially.

Various processes of government demand knowledge of the whereabouts of citizens. The raids for slackers in the streets of Chicago indicate how little certain the government is of the whereabouts of men liable to military service. A good deal of annoyance has been caused men by this raking out, an annoyance which no one particularly minds but which is a typical result of a careless method of dealing with the human record.

PUNCTURING THE WAR DRUM.

The task of the German military power at home, and among other domestic tasks, is to keep the pulse of the people beating to the beat of the war drum. It is not a German task peculiarly. The other nations have it. The war drum beats for complete victory, for satisfying prospects of conquering marches and triumphal arches. If a people are not stimulated to keep all this in the vision they do not fight with aggressive ardor.

Dr. Richard von Kuehlmann, the German foreign secretary who has been permitted to resign, brought this privilege to his door by saying that Germany could not expect to win the desired victory by military operations. The German military command knows that. It may reasonably hope to improve the German position, but it cannot reasonably hope, if the best expectations of the military command were realized, to sit at a peace conference in possession of the power it had when it dictated what France had to accept in 1871.

What the gentlemen of the German high command say in their own intimacy and what they say for the benefit of the German populace are things having no relation to each other. Von Kuehlmann in a moment of weakness opened the door.

Germany thus heard that the objective in the drives sacrificing so many soldiers was a trump card, not a decisive victory. The army was to draw another card for German diplomacy. The enthusiasm with which men will fight to improve the game of diplomacy is so moderated that it might operate as a chill.

MR. THOMPSON AND THE GAS CASE.

The renewed indication that the city administration has been seeking to obstruct the work of the attorneys and engineers in the prosecution of the case against the gas company will only serve to strengthen public opinion as to the sort of mayor we have in office. It is hardly conceivable that his appointees would hold up payment on vouchers for this service if they were not acting with his sanction and consent.

It was, however, Mr. Thompson's sworn pledge that he would support the gas litigation with all his power. During the early part of his administration he at least gave the appearance of being desirous of fulfilling that pledge.

What has happened in the meantime? Why has Donald Richberg, who was formerly quite acceptable to the administration, now become persona non grata? Why should the administration go out of its way to impede the course of litigation when it seems to be progressing to a favorable conclusion?

Editorial of the Day

CHAPLAIN GOULD SPEAKS UP.

[From the Key West Camouflage (Navy).]

Could the mongers of atrocity tales and retaliations know that it is detrimental to military efficiency, they might, in some measure, be silenced. The extravagant haters, authorities find, are damaging to morale. Chaplain Gould serves well the interests of this camp in his emphasis on the president's wish to fight clean.

Recent treason trials in France produced evidence showing that German paid agents have spread extreme and violent "anti-German" propaganda among the more impressionable elements of the population. Germany has paid gold to arouse among certain groups of the allies violent and emotional hatreds against Germany. Through the so called defeatist journals Bolo in Germany's pay attempted to spread doctrines of extreme retaliation, wild atrocity tales, hate mongering, the practical obliteration of Germany as a nation of the earth.

Jeffries, it has been said, lost his last fight from too much hatred. While he smothered his wits in savage passion seeking an immediate knockout, Johnson, with a golden smile, waited, and watched, and used his head. The German defeatist propaganda—defeatist meaning extreme retaliation by the allies upon Germany—is aimed to induce a similar psychology.

Germany is the only gainer by our hate orators. She quotes them in the reichstag to improve the morale, the last ditch attitude, of her people. She counts on them to reverse, as most ignorant emotionalists reverse, at the critical moment. She knows that they will confuse our intelligence and muddle the issue on which we are fighting.

Instead of asserting loudly that thirteen Americans and a bulldog can lick all Germany, and remaining complacently ignorant of everything but hearsay and rumor, these orators will serve the country better by getting a map and studying day by day the big facts of the situation. They will learn that the best and coolest brains are needed for this emergency.

GUFFLE FOR GOLFERS.

Mr. Donald MacBawbee, the famous professional at Prairie Dog, lays much emphasis on the matter of stance. Two ways of confronting the ball, he says, are the ramrod stance and the cab-horse stance. The first is to be avoided, as several cases are recorded of players who have broken a leg in swinging. The cab-horse stance is easy, graceful, and relaxing. As an arch is stronger than a straight line, the firmest of all stances, says Mr. MacBawbee, is the hoop stance, but this is possible only for very bowlegged golfers. For this stance he advises that the feet be placed rather near each other.

THE PIPESMOKE CARRY.

XVII.

"Only at gathered eve knew we
The marvels of the day."

Sundown and striding shadows. An evening of rare beauty descends on the valley; moonlight, and the mist rising from the river; a forest as enchanted as Undine's encircles me. The ban of silence that the day imposed is lifted from the Brule, which babbles of unravished solitudes and mysteries. Always this river has bewitched me. Even now, seen through pipesmoke, its charm is as potent as on that blessed morning when I first looked on it, a brown flood flecked with the foam of countless falls and rapids.

Supper and the pipe contemplative, and the pleasant recapitulation of the obstacles surmounted in the day's work. This is the chief joy of a woodland voyage; and the harder the day, the deeper the peace that broods over the camp-fire. One would not, indeed, unless the need were urgent, retrace some arduous trails; but before the cedar's blaze their thorns are forgiven and forgot, and one chooses to remember only the cloud in fleets, the autumn finery of the hills, the flash of wings, the wayside pool and flower.

Into the weaving of this gay tapestry some sober threads of thought may come. A man may reflect that his life is made up of many carries; that he sets out with a brave array of companions, who fall away with the years; and that middle age finds him footing the trail with a single comrade, sharing with her the good and the ill, the rough and the smooth, the sunlight and the shadow, the heat of the day and the cool of the evening. Then, if heaven be so unkind, he must make the last and longest carry alone. Happy the man who has so ordered his life that he can go this solitary way serene and unafraid.

Now darkens even the western skyline. The mists rise and the stars show in the river. I am glad that I know the names of many of these stars. The tent-opening frames the Chair of Cassiopeia, and I fall to thinking of "That starred Ethiop woman, that strove

To set her beauty's praise above
The sea-nymphs, and their powers offended."

An owl hoots across the lake, a muskrat splashes in the river, the brook brawls under the hill.
All's well in the valley.

THE STRANGER.

(Robert Nichols, in The New Statesman.)

Never am I so alone
As when I walk amid a crowd:
Blurred masks of stern or grinning stone,
Unmeaning eyes and voices loud.

Gaze dares not encounter gaze,
Humbled I turn my head aside,
When suddenly there is a face
Pale, subdued, and grievous-eyed.

Ah, I know that visage meek,
Those trembling lips, those eyes which shine
But swerve from that which they would seek
With an air piteous, divine!

There is not a line or scar,
Seal of a sorrow or disgrace,
But I know its fellows are Burned in my heart and on my face.

Speak! O speak! Thou art the one!
But thou hast passed with sad head bowed,
And never am I so alone
As I walk amid the crowd.

NO, Sylvia; the Albanians are not a pink-eyed people. You are probably thinking of the Albatrosses.

Charles J. Patten is home from Kansas City, where he took a course in a traitor school at that place.

"A LANGUAGE rises or falls with the morale of the people who speak it," says the head of the English department of the United States Naval academy. Therefore:

"The attempts made in the public schools of the United States to eliminate German are not arbitrary and unwarranted. There may be here and there frothy and extreme manifestations of this spirit, but, on the whole, the movement against the German language is the expression of a universal law which German scholars have themselves upheld and by which they will have to abide. The sense of disillusionment about Germany is so acute, the revulsion against her Kultur is so widespread, the certainty of her waning power and prestige, if she continues in her present course, is so assured, that no student of language should view with surprise or disapproval the growing protest against her speech. You might as well attempt to stop the movement that is sweeping English and French into a wider world service than either language has known before. It is the same principle: these two languages have become, par excellence, the trustees of what is best in the past and the torchbearers of what is best for the future."

EXTRACTED FROM JOSLIN'S DIABETIC MANUAL.

FOR one diabetic who knows too much about his disease there are unquestionably ninety-nine who know too little.

Diabetes is statistically four times as prevalent now as it was in 1890.

Between 1800 and 1810 the per capita consumption of sugar in the United States was eleven pounds a year. Between 1910 and 1917 it was seventy-three pounds. In 1916 it was ninety pounds, according to Mr. Hoover. Diabetes is susceptible to treatment and the downward course of a patient usually can be promptly checked.

The patient who knows the most, conditions being equal, can live the longest.

In the treatment of diabetes brains count. But knowledge alone cannot save the diabetic. It is a disease which tests the character, for, in addition to wisdom to successfully combat it, the patient must possess honesty, self-control, and courage.

That man who gives up an active outdoor life and is promoted to an office chair by this change becomes a promising candidate for diabetes.

There is real danger in the candy habit.

The responsibility for maintaining his urine sugar free must rest in large measure upon the patient himself. He is his own nurse, doctor's assistant and chemist.

No disease is known to me the statistics of which, during the last three years, show an advance in treatment comparable to the advance in the treatment of diabetes, as shown by the statistics of the Massachusetts general, the Corey Hill, and the New England Deaconess hospitals.

Hodgson advises that the diabetic should be kept mentally indolent and physically active.

Pedometers are to be encouraged. It is better to discuss how far you have walked than how little you have eaten.

Forget you have diabetes and do not talk about it with others.

It is almost as dangerous for a diabetic to get angry as for a man with angina pectoris.

Wear warm clothes instead of staying by the radiator or in an overheated room.

Fat unbalanced by adequate quantities of other foods is a poison.

I wish I knew of a good drug for diabetic patients. It would save me so much time and talk.

Many of the diabetic breads on the market contain more starch than ordinary bread does.

An early diagnosis in diabetes is as important as in tuberculosis.

For the intelligent patient with moderately severe or severe diabetes, who is honest, energetic, and has self-control, the span of life can be lengthened, his comfort maintained, and his efficiency in large part preserved.

Drugs are not prescribed for the purpose of lowering the sugar in the urine in the most famous of our large hospitals. On the other hand, I have observed that drugs are recommended by physicians who do not test their patients' urine for sugar nor know how much carbohydrates they are eating, and by physicians who do not use laboratories or large, well equipped hospitals.

All individuals who have a tendency toward diabetes should be especially urged to take vacations.

The object of diabetic treatment is to enable the patient, by rearrangement of his diet and habits of life, to live in a manner similar to that of the healthy individual.

REDUCING.

A. S. writes: "I am very anxious to lose about fifty popnds. I am told that one glass of milk each mealtime and at bedtime will be sufficient nourishment and will reduce me five pounds a week. [1] Is there any truth in that? And would just the four glasses of milk be enough to keep my strength and health? I live a quiet life, am 42 years old, and have passed through menopause. The following remedy is published for reducing large busts: Iodide of potassium, three grams; vaseline, fifty grams; lanolin, fifty grams; tincture of benzoin, twenty drops. Rubbed upon the breasts for several months.

"[2] Is there any real good in it? Anything harmful? I cannot tell you how anxious I am for your reply. That fifty pounds extra must go, it is a real burden; but I want your advice before taking a milk diet, so please answer soon."

REPLY.

1. Four glasses of milk a day will not nourish you. If you take the milk cure do not continue it over six weeks. A better plan is to eat no bread, pastries, desserts, sweets, no vegetables containing more than 10 per cent starch. Eat very sparingly of cereals. Eat freely of meat, fat and watery vegetables. Try to lose two pounds a week.
2. There is no good in it and no harm.

KEEPING IN TRIM.

M. D. writes: "I will suggest a plan whereby any young or old man who wants to keep himself young or in trim can do so and gain the esteem of over 200 subscribers. It will not interfere with his regular employment and will help combat the high cost of living. Let him apply to the newspaper distributer in his vicinity and carry a newspaper route. He can exercise his arms and his aim by throwing newspapers on the third floor or higher. It will cure flat feet or fallen arches and also it will improve the figure and appetite, and it is a sure cure for obesity. I hope to be the creator of this useful and necessary fad.

REPLY.

Here's hoping that you will start something.

DYSPNŒA.

D. F. G. writes: "I had been employed as chemist by a committee for five weeks when I suddenly had an attack of dyspnœa. After a thorough examination my physician ordered me to leave my present position, as he attributes my ailment to my working with maize. I did not heed the doctor's orders, thinking that perhaps I should develop immunity, as was likely, according to the physician's opinion. Recently, however, I had another and more serious attack, from which I am still suffering. Will you kindly give the causes of dyspnœa and some of the treatments. Also please state if it is advisable to remain while trying to cure it medicinally?"

REPLY.

I judge that you have become sensitized to corn protein. Your attacks may be asthmatic or they may be due to an œdema of your air passages—something like the condition of the skin known as urticaria or nettlerash. Treatment by medicine is not likely to help you. Perhaps you can find some physician with laboratory training and equipment who will be willing to try to desensitize you. To continue your present employment would be hazardous if your dyspnœa or spells of difficult breathing are due to swellings in your upper air passages. A swelling might strangle you.

LABOR POLICIES LAID DOWN BY WAR BOARD

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., July 12.—[Special.]—The national war labor board, in two important decisions today affecting the questions of hours and wages of labor, forecast the adoption of a general policy providing for high minimum wages and the basic eight hour day in all industries during the war.

Actions taken today by the labor board, which were regarded as an index of the general policy to be adopted, were:

Fixing a minimum wage of 40 cents an hour in eight plants at Waynesboro, Pa.

Applying the eight hour day to two plants at East Cambridge, Mass., and one at Buffalo, N. Y.

Adopting resolutions urging increased employment of women to release men for military service and end the shortage of labor in essential war industries.

In announcing the first decision applying the 40 cents an hour minimum wage at the Waynesboro plants, and fixing this wage as the minimum rate to be paid "any class of workers, including common laborers," the board announced:

"The board now has under consideration the question of determining the living wage, which, under its principles, must be the minimum rate of wage to permit the worker and his family to subsist in health and reasonable comfort. Final determination of the question was made a special order of business for Tuesday, July 23."

The 40 cent rate applied is far in excess of the demands to gain which the men recently went on strike. The minimum rate demanded was 30 cents an hour. Common laborers at the Waynesboro plant have been paid as low as 22 cents an hour. The increase to men in this class will be 81 per cent.

The withdrawal of a quarter of a million men each month from the industries, the board explains, necessitates widespread recourse to the labor of women. The board then announces its principles as follows:

"First—The shortage of labor in essential war industries should be met in part by further introducing women into occupations easily filled by them, such as clerical and cashier service and accounting and as sales clerks and floorwalkers in mercantile establishments, including, among others, department stores, specialty stores, shoe stores, men's furnishing stores, florists' shops, jewelry stores, drug stores, soda water fountains, etc.

"Second—Women should not be employed to replace men in occupations or places of employment clearly unfit for women owing to physical or moral conditions, as, for instance, in barrooms and saloons, in pool rooms, in or about mines, smelters, and quarries, on furnace work, in glass works, etc.

"Third—1. The introduction of women into war industries or into employments involving special hazards, such as the use of industrial poisons should be guided by the standards as to health, comfort, and safety. 2. The introduction of women into new occupations, such as street railway service, public messenger service, etc., should be guided by regulations concerning hours of labor, night work, etc. 3. The recruiting of mothers of young children for war industries should be discouraged.

"Fourth—Older men should be more generally employed. They constitute a largely unused labor reserve."

NEW TIME TABLE NOT A PUZZLE

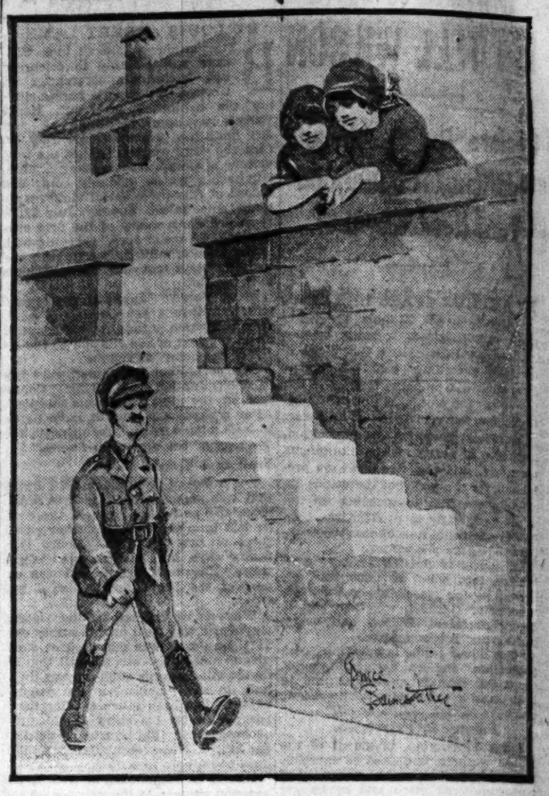

Two notable innovations that will affect the traveling public are soon to be put out by the railroad administration. One is a timetable so arranged that it can be deciphered by any traveler without the aid of a lawyer. The other is a scripbook, to be issued Aug. 1.

A traveler, provided with the new folder and scrip, finds that a train for his destination leaves at a specified hour. He can board the train and travel on his scripbook, without using money or bothering about a ticket. The conductor will tear off a yard or more or scrip, at the rate of 3 cents a mile, and scrip will be accepted in the diner and in the Pullman cars, as well as by the porter for tips. If the traveler wishes, he can present the scrip at his hotel; it will be accepted and redeemed later.

The folder will be indexed. The traveler merely looks in the index for the name of the city where he is to board the train. On referring to the proper page he will find the time when trains leave for all points. The folder, which will be unusually compact, is being compiled by a committee of railroad men.

"ARICIA'S LAUGHING MAIDS"

[By Capt. Bairnsfather in the London Bystander.]

There are times when it is hard to keep one's attention fixed solely on the war.

BORROW ON SECOND MORTGAGE.

Chicago, July 9.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—There is a mortgage on my property that has just fallen due, and which I am unable to pay. The holders are individuals who are well off and do not need the money. The security is ample. Is there any way to keep them from attempting to take away my property? I am making payments on Liberty bonds and cannot pay off the mortgage until a little later on. C. W. C.

They are entitled to their money under the agreements in the mortgage. If your payments on the Liberty loans will pay the mortgage you might arrange some way to use them in payment. Borrow money by a second mortgage and pay your bonds up in full and then sell or borrow on them.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

MUST PAY FEES.

Chicago, July 9.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—Some time ago I bought from a man some farm land subject to a first mortgage only. After I had the land for a while I found out that there was a second mortgage of $64 on the land, and I sued the man. The judge ordered him to pay me the $64. I paid my lawyer $5 and he now asks for $2 more. Is it necessary to pay the lawyer this money after the judge ordered the man to pay me? K. M.

If the $5 and $2 items are fees they are less than the ordinary charge and you should pay them. If they are court costs you can expect to get them back, and for that reason should not object to advancing the money.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

ALIEN OWNERSHIP OF REAL ESTATE.

Chicago, July 9.—[To the Legal Friend of the people.]—1. Is there a law in Illinois relating to the ownership of real estate by an alien? 2. If so, how long has it been in force, and [3] what are the terms of same? 4. If such ownership is limited to a term of years, determined by law, what steps are taken by the state to keep records of same? N. H. S.

1. There is.
2. Since 1897.
3. Must not hold title more than six years, etc.
4. Practically none.

FORCING SETTLEMENT OF ESTATE.

Chicago, July 10.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—When an administrator of an estate, under bonds, continually delays final settlement and distribution of the proceeds of same, [1] what procedure is advisable and legal for the heirs to take that settlement may be obtained? [2] Is it the duty of the judge of probate or surrogate to take action in such cases? [3] Which party pays the expenses? G. S. D.

1. Citing the administrator into court.
2. In general, yes, but they may be too pressed with other matters to take the initiative.
3. If you hire a lawyer you would have to pay him.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

LEGAL PLACE OF RESIDENCE.

Chicago, July 9.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—I was born and raised in Chicago. For several years past I have resided and voted in another state, but holding property and other interests in Cook county. By residing and voting in another state have I lost my legal residence here? If so, can I regain my legal residence here without living a full year in the county? F. B.

If you went to the other state with the intention of making that your legal residence, you cannot vote in this state until you have complied with the constitution of this state, which requires a residence of one year in order to qualify for voting.

EXHIBITING FANATICISM.

Chicago, July 12.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Now that the "Use Nothing German" band have begun, according to pictures in THE TRIBUNE, on an orgy of destruction and the Nuremberg steins and toys and medieval jewelry, miniatures, and heirlooms are to be smashed, doubtless this brand of patriotism will soon be fanned by sensationalism into a public movement.

Why not, therefore, do a thorough job at the outset? There are many Albert Durer's and other pictures of the German school disgracing the wall of the Art institute. President Hutchinson and Director Eggers should at once be called on by the "U. N. G." and be given permission to use their hatchets. Also several thousand volumes by German savants will be found on the scientific and medical shelves of the John Crerar library. Librarian Andrews ought at once show his loyalty by having a big bonfire made of all these volumes which have been used so much by our physicians, inventors, and manufacturers. The law schools should at once stop using Immanuel Kant, and Luther should be cut out of every church name and ritual. German dyes are in textures in nearly every household. "Heraus mit 'em."

The lady who insisted also in yesterday's TRIBUNE that the "beastly monument" to Goethe in Lincoln park because he was once rated as a German should "not be allowed to stand to haunt us" overlooked the status to Schiller, the other poet master mind, and perhaps a dozen other memorials to human achievement that the "Use Nothing German" iconoclasts should attend to.

Things may even come to such a pass that one can picture Raymond Robins, the Chicagoan who recently nearly lost his life pleading with a Bolshevik mob in Russia to preserve for their children some of the art treasures they were sacking, interceding with an unintelligent, irate Illinois crowd possessed of the German fury. For Bolshevism outright is what this sort of thing amounts to in the end, or else that sort of insane madness the present German masters show toward French and Italian cathedrals, hospitals, and everything else that really belong to democracy and the "higher humanities" for which, and not for hate, we are really fighting, according to President Wilson.

Thinking people in Chicago would be inclined to consider this as a passing phase, one of the crudities of democracy and not the real thing, and not worth devoting any time to. It seems to me, however, to show a symptom of poor organization for and lack of engrossment in real war work, just as our failure to meet our state quota in the recent Red Cross drive was another symptom of the same thing. EDWARD L. BURCHARD.

HOMESEEKERS' RATES.

Galesburg, Ill., July 10.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—The government has requested through newspapers, cards, street cars, etc., that we cultivate more land and produce more crops, yet in the face of this the United States railroad administration has canceled homeseekers' excursion rates and established reduced rates to tourists. Men and women who can afford to take pleasure tours in these war times certainly might well afford to pay the regular railroad fare. Would it not be better to give a very low rate to poor men who are seeking homes and who would cultivate our thousands of fertile acres and produce crops which the world so sorely needs? The writer knows of men who went to the great northwest last fall on low railroad rates and now have several thousand acres of what promise to be bumper crops.

In Dakota and Montana there are hundreds of thousands of acres of rich virgin land that if in crops this season would produce from twenty to thirty-five bushels of wheat per acre. Men want these farms but are not able or will not pay the present high railroad fare to get to them. At the present rates a trip taking two days and two nights costs one more than twice what it did a year ago. With the great uncultivated sections, it does seem inconsistent that the beautiful little bluegrass parks adjoining the railroad stations should be plowed up and planted to vegetables. F. S. TAYLOR.

WHAT ARE THESE GIRLS GOING TO DO?

Chicago, July 12.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—What, O what, is the matter with the drinking water? As we are teetotalers and are obliged to drink Lake Michigan straight, we would like the old flavor back again. We are refraining from drinking soda water, ginger ale, and pop on account of the war, so please please look into this matter. Thirstily yours, THREE BACHELOR GIRLS.

TWO MEN NAMED BY FUNKHOUSER IN PLOT CHARGE

Major Says Roy D. Keehn and W. H. Stuart Were Interested.

Maj. Funkhouser yesterday made the charge from the witness stand that certain persons had conspired to oust him from his job as second deputy superintendent of police.

Roy D. Keehn, directing head of the two Hearst Chicago newspapers, and William H. Stuart, a writer for one of them, were named by the major as two of the men who had stated they were going to try "to get him out of office."

The major's conspiracy charge was made as his redirect examination at the hands of Attorney John S. Miller was nearing its end. The mention of the names of the newspapermen threw the hearing before the city civil service commission into a hot debate. One of the most active participants in the argument which followed was President Frazier of the commission.

Frazier Regrets Turn.

He cross questioned the major sharply and expressed regret that such immaterial matter had been brought into the hearing, which had for its only purpose the trial of the major and two of his aids. After the president had finished and the prosecution, represented by Assistant Corporation Counsel Frank S. Righeimer, had finished cross questioning the man on trial, the major got in this final shot:

"I want you to know just why I am here."

Maj. Funkhouser contended that the only vilification that had been directed toward him personally in the columns of the Chicago newspapers had emanated from these two men. Attorney Righeimer, in answer, called the attention of the witness to a number of editorials which had appeared in THE TRIBUNE, the Daily News, the Journal, and the Post. The major insisted that he saw nothing personal in these—that their criticism was aimed at censorship and the city ordinance rather than toward himself.

Tilt Over Clippings.

The editorial clippings were bound in pamphlet form and had been assembled, it was said, by moving picture interests unfriendly to the major's censorship rulings. Attorney Miller endeavored to have it placed in evidence as an exhibit of the case. A lively tilt followed the effort of Mr. Miller to introduce it. Mr. Righeimer insisted it was his personal property. President Frazier snatched the document from Attorney Miller's hands and tore off the identification marks that had been placed on it by the stenographer.

"Let it be understood as the ruling of this commission that this document is not to be admitted to the record," the president said.

"I claim it is one item—one link in proof of a conspiracy," said Attorney Miller.

"If there is a conspiracy to influence this commission we will hear that evidence at the proper time," Mr. Frazier said, "but the investigation of Maj. Funkhouser's office is not to be changed into a trial for conspiracy."

The major's testimony concerning the alleged conspiracy followed a line of questioning at the hands of Attorney Miller concerning the showing of film cutouts to various groups of citizens and officials to disprove the contentions of the picture promoters that perfectly moral and clean films were being mutilated by the major.

Extracts from Testimony.

The testimony, as taken from the transcript of the evidence, follows:

Q.—You were asked by Mr. Righeimer whether you got Mr. Cleveland, the first assistant corporation counsel, to explain to the mayor about exhibiting cutouts and whether you got a letter authorizing you to exhibit those cutouts to civic societies and officers. Was that a letter or an order? A.—That was a letter.

Q.—Yes? A.—I saw the letter. I don't know whether I read it, but Mr. Cleveland read it to me.

Q.—Well, what was its terms or purport? A.—That I would be permitted to show the cutouts to public officials and civic organizations or other organizations of character that were interested in censorship.

Q.—The cutouts that you speak of are what? A.—Those are the scenes in motion pictures that we have eliminated because they are contrary to the ordinance. They may be immoral or obscene, or portray a riotous or disorderly scene, or have a tendency to disturb the public peace, or they may have a tendency to show contempt or create contempt or hatred for any class of law abiding citizens.

Why Cutouts Were Shown.

Q.—And what would be your object to exhibit them to the people you did exhibit them to? A.—Well, we had been mandamused so often we thought it would help stop the general fight on the censorship.

Q.—You also were asked by Mr. Cleveland a question, "showing them to the citizens would not stop the film people, would it?" And you said: "Certainly, because several of the press were particularly antagonistic to censorship, consequently that was the only way we could answer them." Now, how would that also help to stop the film people from exhibiting and seeking mandamus proceedings to compel you to permit them to exhibit objectionable films? A—That was the only way we had to put our side before the public and to stop the vituperation I was being subjected to, particularly by the Hearst paper under the control of Roy D. Keehn.

Questions of Newspapers.

MR. RIGHEIMER—Well, now you finally got Roy Keehn in, didn't you?

CHAIRMAN FRAZIER—Was that the whole object of that, to bring him in? Make it short, Mr. Miller. If that was the whole point that you wanted to get at, why, you have got it.

MR. MILLER—No, I was just asking to make it clear what the corporation counsel has asked about that.

CHAIRMAN FRAZIER—Just a moment. Didn't you speak of several other papers in there?

MR. MILLER—Yes, he says—I will give the question again.

MR. FRAZIER—Now give us the benefit of the others; name the others.

Maj. Funkhouser—On the other papers particularly they came over and looked at the——

President Frazier—Other papers—several papers?

Maj. Funkhouser—THE TRIBUNE came over and looked at the cutouts and from that time they practically said we were justified in making the cutouts.

Seeks Other Names.

Q.—What other papers besides the ones you named had you in mind? A.—Those are the only ones.

Q.—Is that what you meant by several papers? A.—Yes, sir.

Mr. Frazier—Several of the press?

Maj. Funkhouser—That included Mr. Stuart.

Q.—Who else did it include? A.—That was Mr. Stuart and Roy D. Keehn—because that was a personal fight.

Q.—Anybody else? A.—None at all that I had trouble with.

Q.—Were the other papers ever antagonistic to you? A.—But they didn't vilify me.

Mr. Miller—He said several of the press were particularly antagonistic to the censorship.

Maj. Funkhouser—Oh, they were—might have been to the censorship, but not to me personally. These two papers vilified me for over a year and a half.

Mr. Frazier—Well, you have said that. You have got that in. What I want to know is what you mean when you said several papers. A.—Those are the ones I referred to. They are the ones that have a good deal to do with this suit.

Cites Previous Questions.

Mr. Miller—You were also asked this question by Mr. Righeimer: "On the matter of public sentiment, there were a great many of the editorials and advertisements where the comment was not directed against the city but against you personally?" You said, "I didn't so take it." Question: "You don't take it that way?" Answer: "Except in several papers I did."

Maj. Funkhouser—I did. Those are the two papers I mentioned. I don't think the man who owned the papers would permit that if he knew they were doing it for their own spite.

After the discussion over the editorials Chairman Frazier said:

"But we are not going to turn this case now into a trial or something. We don't believe we have any evidence of the existence of a conspiracy as yet. There may be, but it isn't the proper thing to stop this case and go into the trial of a so-called conspiracy. And the whole thing was opened up by going out of the way to name—to make an attack on two papers."

Two Men, Not Two Papers.

Maj. Funkhouser—No, not on two papers, on two men.

Mr. Frazier—Well, two men connected with the two papers.

Maj. Funkhouser—That is right. I want to get that straight. I have no fight with the papers.

Q.—You don't complain that these men are connected in any way with the hearing? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—With this commission? A.—No, no, no, not with the hearing, but with the presentation of these charges. In putting these charges against me—emanating from them.

Q.—The fact it, it is your contention they would like to see you ousted? A.—They have said they would and were going to try to get me out.

Q.—Now, the fact is you went out of your way to tell us that certain people wanted to get you out. This has no influence, I believe, on the commission. A.—I don't say say.

Q.—It wouldn't have any influence if we had not heard it; we heard it from you. A.—Yes, certainly, and I want you to know just why I am here.

We will adjourn. I think if we keep away from these irrelevant matters we will save a lot of time.

Letters Introduced.

Several letters from Chief of Police Schuettler were introduced by Mr. Righeimer to indicate that the chief wanted arrests made in cabarets. This was for the purpose of impeaching the testimony of the major that the chief had asked that no arrests be made in cabarets. The major explained that the so-called high class cabarets were meant when he had talked of the no arrests policy.

Efforts of the defense to offer in evidence the criminal record of a policeman now on the force failed. It was offered to offset the testimony of Chief Alcock, Vincent D. Wyman of counsel of defense said. He stated the chief had testified at length concerning the character of some of Maj. Funkhouser's investigators, and insisted that ex-convicts had no place in the police department.

ALCOCK STOPS POLICE WORK ON PETITIONS

THE use of the Chicago police department to circulate suffrage petitions for a Chicago paper was disclosed yesterday.

A business man complained that uniformed men were soliciting signatures for the petitions and that Chief Alcock had issued a general order, reading:

"Commanding officers are hereby notified to have these petitions filled out at the station and returned to headquarters."

"I positively never issued such an order," the acting chief said, "but I'll make an investigation right now—right this minute."

The chief called aids into his office and learned that one of them had sent out the order. He ordered it countermanded at once. It was countermanded instanter by telephone.

COLUMBIA HULL RAMMED BY LOG

Peoria, Ill., July 12.—[Special.]—The theory that the steamer Columbia, which sank in the Illinois river near here Saturday night, carrying down with it more than eighty-five excursionists from Pekin, sustained a punctured hull by ramming a submerged log near the shore was substantiated today.

W. S. Dunscomb, a diver, examined the hull at 5 o'clock this afternoon. He reported having found a large hole well forward on the starboard side.

The diver will make a more complete examination tomorrow and then will be produced as a witness at the coroner's inquest in Peoria and Tazewell counties.

SEIZED AS FUGITIVE SLACKER.

Deputy United States Marshal John J. Oros yesterday took into custody Michael Shea, 27 years old, 3712 Grand boulevard, who is wanted in Helena, Mont., for failure to register for the draft.

BOOKS and WRITERS of BOOKS Edited by BURTON RASCOE

Do, Re, Mi, Fa, So, La,——

BY BURTON RASCOE.

"ON READING NIETZSCHE" [Moffat, Yard], by Emile Faguet.
"PROPHETS OF DISSENT" [Alfred Knopf], by Otto Heller.
"WAR AND THE COMING PEACE" [Lippincott], by Joseph Jastrow Jr.

EMILE FAGUET, who died in France on the opening day of the last Republican convention in Chicago, was akin to Nietzsche in intellectual bent, though never so forceful and passionate a writer as the lonely Friedrich. His "Le Culte d'Incompétence" (translated in two volumes and published by Dutton under the titles "The Cult of Incompetence" and "The Dread of Responsibility") had a tremendous effect in arousing France from a lethargy wherein the prevailing ambition of young men was to secure a government job and thus be assured a comfortable living without any unnecessary expenditure of energy. The vigorous book was also instrumental in changing the slipshod condition due to a democracy run wild.

Faguet, then, was admirably equipped as a critic of Nietzsche. He takes Nietzsche's volumes one by one and goes through them painstakingly, showing the validity of this argument and the inanity of that, checks up on Nietzsche's contradictions and explains them, makes an excellent brief for Nietzsche as a writer, a poet, and thinker, and arrives at a just and temperate disposition of Nietzsche in the field of creative thought.

The truth is that Nietzsche is to the intellectual what Orison Swett Marden is to the ambitious underclerk: the one urges the intellectual to discipline his instincts, live austerely and vigorously, and to realize all his possibilities as a cultured and healthy animal, that a better race of men may result; the other urges the young undercierk to adhere to the rules of honesty, industry, and obedience that he may some day be sitting at a desk as president of the company.

Mr. Heller has an admirable chapter on Nietzsche as a representative of divergent tendencies, of which Tolstoi, Strindberg, and Maeterlinck are other indicators. His is a well written, coherent, and provocative survey. At one point he calls attention to the fact that Nietzsche's idea of the Eternal Recurrence does not jibe with his idea of the Superman, and since the evidence is all on the side of the cyclic recurrence idea, the idea of the Superman remains a false and grandiose conception impossible of realization and probably undesirable and inconvenient if it were.

Dr. Jastrow's little book is a calm, reflective, and highly idealistic consideration of the war and the problems of peace. Into several paragraphs he has condensed all that has been said or need be said about the origins and cause of the war and the necessity for seeing it through.

I LIKE THIS.

[The following from the Daily News of Wednesday is so sweet and pathetic that it deserves some circulation.]

Dear Sell: I am going to tell teacher on Burty Rascoe and see if she can't be prevailed upon to coax him back to the classroom. For, despite a tendency toward anemic hysteria, me and Steve Crane and Rudge Kipling and Art Machen and Charlie Dickens and all other police reporters in good standing feel convinced that there is promising material in this still flushed and pensive undergraduate. Burty's habit of flying into a rage and slapping the wrists of people with whom he seeks to argue is indeed a regrettable symptom of juvenilia. Nevertheless, I feel quixotically certain that given a diet of red meat and a few more lessons under some rigorous schoolmarm Burty would be able to understand James Joyce. Yours, with Huysmansian bitterness, 'A poor but honest police reporter.'

Having first dropped the requisite tear of compassion over the foregoing, I would suggest, ever so delicately—lest I again wound the tender feelings of this beef eating Nabisco*—that the naïve alignment of "me and Steve and Rudge and Charlie" further reveals a penchant for the incongruous, first betrayed in the honest reporter's essaying an article on Huysmans and again of including Montaigne in a list of fairy tale writers, meant to be a profound flourish of erudition which would knock the natives cold.

It has not occurred to the honest newsman that I have omitted to argue with him for the reason that his notions are so vague and erratic as to admit of no argument. We no longer argue with the man, who proclaims that the earth is flat: we either tolerate him with mild amusement, pity him, or send him to the booby hatch.

*Or is it Zbyszko?

I HAVE carefully read the several thousand words now accumulated in presumed elucidation of James Joyce's "Ulysses" from the typewriters of those eminent exegetes, Margaret Anderson and Keith Preston, Llewellyn Jones and ja, John Doe and Mr. Gus Oomplatz. These red blooded, full chested, tobacco chewing Broncho Billies tell me, variously in effect that honesty is the best policy, a rolling stone gathers no moss, and birds of a feather flock together.

Preston's contribution is the only one I can regard with any sympathy—and it I can actually rejoice in—for the reason that Preston treats the whole thing as an elaborate josh and indulges in a shrewd bit of kidding at the expense of his confrères and of Joyce. This, no doubt, is the ultimate wisdom in a critique of such a subject. True enough, Preston hints that he is hep to Joyce, but he betrays himself in the same paragraph by revealing that he so far misunderstands my by no means esoteric prose as to credit me with finding serious fault with Quiller-Couch's English. If he doesn't get me, I entertain suspicions about his understanding of Joyce.

As for the others, they all point out ludicrously what was obvious from the first installment—viz.: that Joyce in attempting to record these shifting, uncorrelated visual, olfactory, tactile, and auditory impressions and associations we all have but which never get into speech or print. They do not point out what relation this jumble of uncorrelated material has to do with art. From not one of them do I get a hint as to the character of Stephen Dedalus, his relationship to his surroundings, or even what he is by way of being or doing.

Instead they all bawl and yawp that "Ulysses" is art, art, art. All Mr. Oomplatz's and ja's reiteration that it is art does not make it so, any more than would any amount of yawping that a rump steak is a Correggio canvas convince any one except the imbecilic. What "Ulysses" is is an interesting experiment which on the very face of the achievement precludes any possibility of its ever being attempted again. In that measure it is important.

What these lantern jawed, hard muscled, devil may care bruisers further fail to point out, though that, too, was obvious to even casual readers of Freud, Jung, and Frink, is that the apparently meaningless train of impressions and crochety mental associations have a definite relation to character; and that the simplest Freudian rule for the elimination of psychoneuroses is the tabulation and examination of these vagaries with the object of bringing out some subconscious repression that causes nervous breakdowns, insanity, hysteria, erotomania, domestic infelicity, and the like, and, by revealing, end them.

If they had told me this and had told me they are Freudian adepts, and that through "Ulysses" they had obtained an insight into the soul and character of Stephen Dedalus, more complete than that obtained in that extraordinary book, "The Portrait of the Artist as a Young Man," I might have entertained some respect for their intelligence. What they actually said is equivalent to declaring that Michaelangelo's "Creation" is a mural painting in the Sistine chapel, which might be news to them, but is hardly likely to astonish any one else.

I have no doubt that Dr. Frink could read "Ulysses" and discover many things about Joyce that Joyce is not aware of himself. The psycho-analyst, no doubt, would attach a profound importance to the frequent recurrence of "snot green" and similar edifying concepts in "Ulysses," and he would probably find more things wrong with Joyce than the various infirmities we know this ailing teacher possesses. But the screeches of the tough bird apologists cannot be regarded in any other light than that of a joke—on themselves. There is as much art in the various detailed cases in Dr. Frink's "Morbid Fears and Compulsions" [Moffat, Yard] as in the whole of "Ulysses" and considerably more enlightenment.

One can credit Joyce with a tremendous sincerity and even with putting down with unexampled frankness some of those self-revelations we are, very happily, loath to put on exhibit: but such honesty in the revealment of private mental obsessions, though valuable enough in a scientific way, are hardly of any appreciable value aesthetically. No one, with any claim to sanity, would argue, for instance, that Dr. Evans' column contributes to the total of the aesthetically valuable with anything like the regularity of B. L. T.'s column adjoining, with its poetry by Laura Blackburn, Pan, Riquarius, H. D., and the conductor himself.

And yet Dr. Evans' column is the apotheosis of frankness, even of shamelessness; there is not in an entire year the accumulated undressing on the part of the poets mentioned that there is in an average day on the part of the doctor's patients. Scientifically, pragmatically, economically, humanitarianly, Dr. Evans' column has it all over the best poem that ever appeared in the adjacent column; but aesthetically, I daresay it is otherwise.

Mrs. Warren's Digression

BY ELIA W. PEATTIE.

THERE is among many persons of what may be termed a Dionysiac turn of mind, a tendency to look down upon women's clubs—those clubs organized for literary and social purposes, and conducting each year a program which in its entirety is of enormous activity and reach. The objectors and critics are of several sorts, of two sexes, and almost invariably of poor information in respect to what the clubs really do. They pass them by as as the dull academies of the middle aged; the lesser Chautauqua of the partially educated; the retreat of women, who, no longer piquant or provocative, find in this quasi-literary segregation a tepid diversion which they punctuate with virulent elections.

All of these things have I heard said many times; all and more have I felt obtruding itself through the thinly veiled impatience of young, bored and ironic men who were trying to be polite. I have from time to time made myself unpopular at dinner tables by affirming that women's clubs were enlightening, charming, diverting, and places of genuine comradeship. I have lost conversational caste by making these statements and have been looked at askance by young persons in tulle shoulder scarves as one upon whom the mildew of middle age had fallen heavily—a bilious blight, piteous, and repellant.

Yet now that there lies before me Maude Radford Warren's new book, "THE WHITE FLAME OF FRANCE," I wish to reiterate all that I have said concerning the brilliancy of the women's literary clubs and to affirm that I have heard Mrs. Warren deliver, in the form of spirited and apparently spontaneous addresses, the series of papers which make up this extremely readable book. I cannot, of course, go so far as to say that this material is not above the average of what is heard at the clubs, but Mrs. Warren herself would be the first to affirm that in offering it she did not feel that she was outdoing herself or the best that the clubs have to offer. She knew it would be acceptable, but she did not feel that it would be regarded as extraordinary among club addresses.

To the vivid story of how Mrs. Warren went abroad to look in the face of war, so far as a woman might, was added on the occasions on which I heard the addresses, the personality of the speaker, with its veiled fervor and curious assumption of languor through which feeling and power and information forced themselves with dramatic effect upon the audience, and so highly did I value that effect that I overestimated its value. For, upon reading these accounts of what was seen and felt and learned in a war-racked country, I perceive that their value is such that they really needed no adventitious aid.

These little histories of strange travel, these meetings with war worn men who laugh through their weariness, these adventures with actors who sacrifice their ease to divert the men at the front, these horror-stricken glances into ruined towns, into shattered homes, and, over all, the sense of courage and a sort of fine gayety, make a whole which is worth reading and remembering.

Much of the book is very amusing. Really, very amusing, in spite of everything. But it is never flippant, and it does not at any time fail to convey the impression that the writer knows what war costs. [Small, Maynard & Co.]

"Odyssey of a Torpedoed Transport"

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

THE Pamir was just one of the unsung and unhonored members of the merchant marine of France. In February, 1917, an official statement said, "We are without news of the Pamir, which the German radiograms describe as torpedoed." That's all. The Odyssey of the Pamir, now a transport for men, now a carrier of munitions, now a hospital ship, and always an unprotected tramp of the sea, is told in one of the most compelling of all the books which have come out of the war. "The Odyssey of a Torpedoed Transport" [Houghton-Mifflin] it is called.

It is a series of letters from a young officer of the boat, long, rich letters, which are written only in the calm leisure of uninterrupted hours, letters full not only of a charming personality but of records of events upon the seas and of the psychological reaction of the men in the merchant marine to their special part in the war.

It is a remarkable book, beautifully written by a nameless youth and translated by Grace Fallow Norton. It received the Prix Femina-Vie Heureuse as the most important war book of 1917.

Harvard Plays is the name of a series which Brentano's inaugurates with "Plays of the Forty-seven Workshop" and "Plays of the Harvard Dramatic Club." The Workshop volume has an introduction by Prof. Baker of Harvard explaining the aims of the famous "English 47."

It is a pleasure to announce that William Stanley Braithwaite is still in the magazine verse collecting and sorting and labeling business. His Anthology of Magazine Verse for 1918 came out the last of May.

The famous life of George Washington by Mason L. Weems has never been out of print since the first edition was printed in Georgetown 118 years ago. The second edition was printed in Philadelphia, as every one since then has been. The latest, the "Mount Vernon edition," is statistically the eightieth and a product of the Lippincott company.

An English Red Cross nurse, Sister Martin-Nicholson, invalided home after two years of service in hospitals near the front lines, has written a book about her "Experiences on Three Fronts" [Dutton]. She served in Belgium, Russia, and France. She hasn't much use for the Germans as patients!

The Harvard University Press has published a pocket size volume on the geography of Northern France, a knowledge of which Col. Asan of the French army says is indispensable to the American boys over there. "A Handbook of Northern France," it is called. It is the work of Prof. W. M. Davis.

"Dere Mable." [Stokes] is a collection of funny rookie letters by Lieut. Edward Streeter which originally appeared in the Camp Wadsworth "Gas Attack." They aren't half so side splitting as Ring Lardner's corporal punishment letters from Camp Grant, which have been in the Saturday Evening Post lately. They're as good as the original "You know me, Al" tales, than which nothing funnier was ever written.

Within a week of the death of her husband, Mrs. R. Hugh Knyvett actively took up war work, doing as much as she could for the cause for which her husband gave his life. She is doing secretarial work for the American fund for French wounded and intends to stay in New York as long as the war lasts. Capt. Knyvett was one of those fine, clear flames. His very fineness and fire burned his life out.

Samuel French has published the two prize winning plays of the patriotic play contest of the Drama League of America. "Rise Up, Jennie Smith" and "The Land Where Lost Things Go" may be presented by amateurs free of royalty. They were written especially for production in schools, clubs, and Red Cross societies, to stimulate patriotism.

"U. S. Army Facts and Insignia" [Rand McNally], if properly applied will cure the most severe case of ignorance and make it possible to tell at a glance a soldier's rank and branch of service.

"Two Crowded Years" [Extension Press] is the record of the two years of splendid activity which Archbishop Mundelein has spent in Chicago.

The Store will close Saturdays during July and August at one o'clock.

THE STORY OF AMERICA IN FRANCE

By LIEUTENANT CONINGSBY DAWSON

Author of "The Glory of the Trenches," "Carry On: Letters in Wartime," etc.

Cloth. 12mo. $1.25 net.

There have been a good many questions as to what difference America's participation would make in the war and how soon her weight would begin to tell. This book, which a combatant officer was drawn out of the fighting line especially to write on account of his grasp of American affairs, gives an answer to all such questions. It pays a glorious tribute to our boys "over there," and will inspire faith and confidence in our army and in our Government. It is a vivid, prophetic statement of America's program in France. Its brilliant judgments are authoritative and based on observed facts to which no other writer has as yet had access.

On the Other Side Of the Door

WHAT a fool he had been! To let his temper carry him away! The idea of insulting a German Soldier in Belgium! That was certainly a fool American trick.

And now at the other side of the door that poor child—that American girl with her indomitable spirit—perhaps——

If he only could get to her to help!

No wonder he idolized her. To think of one little shy girl from across the seas bearding the lion in his den—facing the whole German Army—the whole force of a victorious soldiery — so ruthless to the women of a conquered country.

It makes a wonderful story. Read how this girl outwitted the German officers—how she set out on her great search—and how she won.

It is a thrilling story of adventure.
It is a great human love story.
It is a tale of rare devotion.

Let Captain Hughes tell you the story—Rupert Hughes, who out of his own intimate life of this terrible war—out of the heart of the struggle—has written a big, powerful, brilliant tale that will last. This is no passing piece of fiction—for once more this most brilliant of writers has told a tale of power and force. Get it at your bookseller's today. Don't miss it.

The First Shot for Liberty

By Corporal Osborne de Varila

Above all an American Book by an American

Corporal de Varila, the red-headed Irish-American who fired the FIRST SHOT FOR AMERICA in the World War, comes from a heroic family that participated in all our wars from the Revolution down. His book is a human document of a lad who left a preparatory school to be among the first to serve his country and has done so with many thrills and with frequent flashes of humor. He tells the story from the time of his enlistment in PERSHING'S ARMY to his going aboard ship; of the passage across; with its dangers; the tearbringing reception by the French people; life in the trenches and daring deeds of our boys on the firing line; the experience of being gassed and life in the hospitals. It is the experience that others of our boys may expect to find.

KAHANAMOKU BREAKS WORLD RECORD FOR 60 YARD SWIM

DUKE HANGS UP MARK OF :29 1-5 IN C. A. A. POOL

Hawaiians Win All Prelims to Great Carnival Today.

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

That Duke Kahanamoku, Clarence Lane, and Harold Kruger, the Hawaiian swimmers who will take part in the Chicago Athletic association's patriotic water carnival in the Lincoln park lagoon today and tomorrow, are in the best of shape was shown yesterday by their performances in the Cherry Circle pool, where an entertainment for members was staged during the noon hour.

The visitors won all the events in which they competed, and Kahanamoku, who won the sixty yard swim, established a new world's record of :29 1-5 for the distance. The best known mark for this distance was :32, held by Cecil Healy of England. Duke was forced to extend himself by Herbert Topp and Walter Earle, the C. A. A. entrants, who also swam the distance under record time. The Hawaiian beat Topp by a scant yard, while Earle lost second place by a touch.

Duke's Work Amazes Spectators.

Kahanamoku's swimming was a revelation to the large crowd of members who saw the contests. Duke used the least effort of any swimmer ever seen in a local tank. He did not fight the water, as local boys do, while his long, powerful strokes, combined with perfect turns, enabled him to gain an early lead which he never was in danger of losing.

The Hawaiians, who know every trick of swimming, sprung a new one on local swimmers and coaches. Seldom in this country do swimmers dive into a tank to warm up as a foot racer does before a contest. Before their races the visitors swam around the polo for a few minutes before taking their starting marks. The local swimmers did not follow their example, but were content to reserve their energy.

The visitors also tried the old trick of diving into the water before the gun was fired in order to get their opponents nervous. It might have had some effect on Topp, a youngster, but it did not worry Earle, Mallin, or Huszagh, who are veterans.

Lane Wins Fifty Yard Race.

Clarence Lane showed he will be a factor in today's fifty yard swim by winning the forty yard event in the fast time of :19. He beat Huszagh of the C. A. A. to the finish wall by a scant yard. Mallen was third, a foot behind his teammate.

Harold Kruger, Hawaiian back stroke swimmer, showed he is ready to make a great effort to break the 100 meter record today by winning the 100 yard back stroke in 1:08 3-5, one-fifth of a second slower than the world's record, held by himself. Kruger went into the lead at the start and gradually increased his lead to five yards over Harold Olson and Herbert Taylor of the C. A. A. at the finish.

The Hawiians closed their performance by winning the three man 180 yard relay race by eight yards from the Cherry Circle trio. Lane, who swam first for the visitors, gained a lead of two yards over Huszagh of the C. A. A. Earle of the local club held his own with Kruger, but Duke increased the lead to eight yards over Topp, anchor man of the C. A. A. team. The Hawaiians swam the distance in 1:29.

"Music and Singing," Too.

Between events the visitors entertained the club members with several selections on Hawaiian string instruments and Duke sang a native song which brought forth rounds of applause. The visitors also gave an exhibition of triple oar swimming and a Chinese relay race. Summaries:

100 yard back stroke—Won by Kruger, Hawaii; Olson, C. A. A., second; Taylor, C. A. A., third. Time, 1:08 3-5.

440 yard swim—Scherer and Combs, C. A. A., dead heat. Time, 6:15.

40 yard swim—Won by Lane, Hawaii; Huszagh, C. A. A., second; Mallen, C. A. A., third. Time, :19.

60 yard swim—Won by Kahanamoku, Hawaii; Topp, C. A. A., second; Earle, C. A. A., third. Time, :29 1-5 [new world's record].

Relay race, 180 yards—Won by Hawaii [Lane, Kruger, Kahanamoku]; C. A. A. second [Huszagh, Earle, Topp]. Time, 1:29.

Duke vs. Perry Today.

Today's program, which will start at 3 o'clock, will be featured by the 50 and 220 yard races for the world's short distance swimming supremacy between Perry McGillivray of Great Lakes training station, national indoor champion, and Kahanamoku, outdoor title holder.

Although Duke holds the world's record in the shorter distance at :23, McGillivray has been going faster than :24 in practice at the station. Perry is used to fresh water and the climate, while Duke is accustomed to swimming in salt water and a much warmer climate. Duke says he can swim just as fast in fresh water, but admits the cold water may handicap him.

McGillivray will have the advantage in the furlong. Perry has swam this distance in 2:24 1-5, while the best Duke has done is 2:26 2-5. In the national championships McGillivray was beaten by Norman Ross of the Olympic A. C. by six inches in one of the closest seen on the coast. Despite the advantage he is supposed to have on past performances, Kahanamoku said he will force McGillivray all the way to win.

Sixteen Events on Card.

Sixteen events have been listed for today, which include races for women, exhibitions of fancy diving from the high and low boards by men and women, water polo games, canoe tilting, life saving demonstrations, and a plunge for distance, in which Ben Princell of the C. A. A., national champion, will attempt to break the world's record of 82 feet 7 inches for plunging in one minute's time. Novelty events and an eight oared race between two crews of the Lincoln Park Boat club also will be held.

In the Wake of the News

By RING W. LARDNER

When it's water, water everywhere,
and not a drop to drink;
When a guy who's dry can either die
or patronize the sink,
How will a wife enjoy a life of twilight tete-a-tete
With him who used to phone and say:
"I won't be home till late?"

When it's water, water everywhere,
and the grand old Forty club Gives dinners where the bill of fare is just a lot of grub,
I wonder if there'll be a stiff with nerve enough to tell
The story of two Irishmen—say, won't that bird get h—ll!"

When it's water, water everywhere;
when January first
Wrings many a moan from guys who've known just one sure cure for thirst,
'Twill be my luck for some rich duck to croak, with me sole heir,
And nuttin' to drink but water, water,
EVERYWHERE!

SOCIETY.

Members of the Dugan club will be interested in the news that Dadie A. Mack Gaffney T. T., now in the service at Fort Leavenworth, thinks he is going to be married tomorrow to a Kate Somebody—her last name has slipped his mind—of Kansas City. "She works in the yards," writes the fond groom, "and she's the best hog killer there and she don't never make less than 9 bucks a day croaking the porkers. That ain't all that's good about her neither because she has got 58 hundred in the bank and theys some knockers says she poisoned her uncle to get it, but I will stop that kind of talk after we are married.

"But the best of it is that it don't cost her nothing to keep house and besides her two girl cousins shes got 12 borders rooming in the house and it don't cost hardly anything to feed them because her and her cousins swipes all the meat from the yards. Half of the guys that bords at the joint works nights and sleeps when the day gang is at the slaughter house so Katie don't only half to make the beds twice a month when she changes them.

"Shes got the same habit like all the K. C. girls of going barefooted and uses the snuff stick. What do you think of that, and her only eight years from Polack.

"I got 5 days off for the honeymoon and we are going to Jeff City to see her brother there in the hoosegow and he will be there 10 years more."

ONLY A CHILD.

BY CHARLES MATHANAY.

[Camp Logan Bugler.]

Synopsis of the first two installments: They had dinner.

PART 3.

That night—yet that night of the same day, this child had found a bidding place in my heart. I knew his friendship had developed for a soldier; nothing could lure him from me but his sleep. At 8 o'clock I was holding him across my lap, for now his lashes had closed over his brown eyes. No longer would he speak of being a soldier, and would his arms clinch my neck. I lay him down on the davenport, then his mother shook him, slowly they walked across the parlor. This child with sleepy red eyes waved his hand—"Good-by, soldier," he exclaimed, looking back until he had disappeared from the room. This child had now left us alone; Miss Halton, her sister, and I now went out and sit on the porch. The moon poured its silver light upon the earth. I sat between the ladies gazing far out into the moonlight. "Mr. Mathanay," said Mary, "I know that Elmer is much pleased with you." I did not even turn my head, but kept on gazing out into the moonlight. "He is only a child, yet he has the ambition to become a Zoave, and maybe some day he will." I then answered and turned my head, her white teeth appeared from behind her smiling lips. I remained at Miss Halton's home until 9:30. "Miss Halton," I said, and stood, "I must be going." The ladies were yet still seated on their porch chairs, they were looking up into my face and both smiling. "Why is your hurry?" questioned Mary. I stood with one leg limbered and arms folded. "I've got to get in early, as I am one of the men up first and last to bed." They laughed at my answer. "O, I see," replied Mary, yet laughing. Miss Halton entered the parlor and returned with my campaign hat. "Thank you," I said as she handed it to me. "Good night, girls," I said as our hands met. "Mr. Mathanay," said Mary, "when you call again bring your bugle and play us the bugle calls; I think they are pretty." "Yes, and Elmer will enjoy to hear them also," replied Miss Halton. "I'll do that, girls," I answered, with my arms folded, and my hat was pushed back on the rear of my head. Then I stood on the top step of the large white porch, I turned half around. "Girls," I said, with my left foot on the next step below. "Don't call him for making friends with me today, he is only a child." "Oh! no," said Miss Halton. "Sure not." "more our hands met, once more we bid each other good night, and I left for Camp Logan.

GREB-M'GOORTY GO TO HAVE ALL TITLE TRIMMINGS

Harry Greb, claimant of the middleweight championship of the United States navy, and Eddie McGoorty, claimant of the middleweight championship of the United States army, have been matched to fight for the championship of the service. O. S. Gooch, acting for the post exchange at Fort Sheridan, closed the match last night after brief negotiations between the two men.

They will box on Saturday afternoon, July 27, at 4 o'clock, in the open air at Fort Sheridan, getting 45 per cent of the gross receipts. All of the remainder of the money will be divided equally between the post exchange and the athletic equipment fund.

The match will be ten rounds at 165 pounds, and will be strictly to a referee's decision.

Miske Beats Gunboat in Jersey City Battle

Jersey City, N. J., July 12.—Billy Miske of St. Paul outfought Gunboat Smith of New York in all but the fifth round of a ten round bout tonight. In the fifth Smith landed a number of effective blows. Miske weighed in at 178 and Smith was a pound heavier.

ACES OF GOLF, FRENCH AIR ACE, AT EDGEWATER

Many Novelty Events at Four Star Red Cross Match Tomorrow.

BY JOE DAVIS.

In addition to securing one of the best cards of the season for their big Red Cross match tomorrow afternoon, when Chick Evans and Walter Hagen will meet Jock Hutchinson and Bob MacDonald, officials of the Edgewater club have arranged a number of special attractions.

Lieut. Flachaire, the French "ace of aces," will give an exhibition flight before the match, and Bob MacDonald, who plays the pipes as well as he plays golf, will render some Scotch war music during the dinner at night.

Red Cross Book on Match.

Another novelty will be a Red Cross book on the golf match. A bookmaking squad has been recruited from among the club officials, and members can wager on their favorites to their hearts' content. Every cent taken in will go to the Red Cross fund.

A $1,000 Overland car has been donated and will be raffled. Former State's Attorney John J. Healy will auction the caddy privileges, and everybody making a bid will receive an assistant caddy badge as a souvenir of his bid, the successful bidder getting the official badge, which entitles him to carry the clubs of the players.

Souvenir score cards will be sold by a committee of 200 women members of the club.

Jackie Band and Sextet.

Phil Gaudin of the Onwentsia club and several other local professionals have volunteered to take charge of the gallery, and this will insure every one a good view of the play.

A jackie band and the Great Lakes sextet will "do their bits" through the afternoon and evening. The club is located at Pratt and Ridge avenues.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Page, 102—15—87, and Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Mason, 119—18—101, won the mixed foursome team event at Exmoor yesterday with a total of 188. Mr. and Mrs. A. B. McCaughey, 103—11—92, and Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Jackson, 114—17—97, were second with 189. Ten teams competed.

Chairman Samuel Kunstadter of the loyalty committee of the Idlewild club reports a total collection of $792.50 at the Fourth of July Red Cross event. Of this amount, $253.50 was realized by raffling a set of clubs donated by Professional Al Naylor.

Play at George Ade's Course.

George Ade has forwarded a one sheet poster in blue and red announcing a Red Cross exhibition at the Hazleden Golf club, Brook, Ind., July 18. Chick Evans and Kenneth Edwards will meet Jock Hutchinson and Bob MacDonald over the nine hole course, which is located on Mr. Ade's farm.

The July tournament of the Western Advertising Golfers' association will be held July 16 at the Hinsdale club.

Curry Stops Jack White, Finish Coming in Sixth

Boston, Mass., July 12.—[Special.]—Joe Curry of New Haven had no trouble in disposing of Jack White, Chicago lightweight, tonight at the Armory A. A. The New Haven boy simply toyed with the Chicago visitor and scored a technical knockout in the sixth round. Curry had White over the ropes, bouncing him with lefts and rights, when the referee stopped it.

JOCK'S TIPS to GOLFERS

BY JOCK HUTCHINSON.

[Glen View Golf Club.]

BEFORE taking up the use of the different clubs and giving my ideas on grips and stances, and the reasons for their use, a few words of caution will not be amiss.

The average beginner develops a great liking for sand in quantity. He builds a two story tee, in the hope of getting a good ball away, and once in a while he does, but from there on his troubles begin, as the ball then has to be played from the face of mother earth.

JOCK HUTCHINSON

Topping is one of the main troubles of the beginner, and the sooner he makes up his mind to "take turf" and get the ball in the air the sooner will he be on the right road.

Professional players seldom top the ball and if the amateur aims to copy from them he must follow their style.

The temporary advantage gained by making a high tee is more than offset by subsequent failures through the green, and these failures lead to a loss of confidence in your clubs and faith in them is half of your battle. Almost every player has a favorite club, which simply means he has confidence in that club to make the shot as planned.

The same rule applies in other branches of sport, the baseball player having his favorite bat, the tennis man his favorite racquet, and the billiard player his favorite cue.

Try and forget score making in the early stages of your golf and pay attention to making the shot in the correct way.

Start right from the beginning. Use a normal tee and in course of time you will be getting the ball up in the air both from the tee and through the green.

CHICK AND JOCK WINNERS BY 1 UP IN WEST VIRGINIA

Wheeling, W. Va., July 12.—[Special.]—Chick Evans and Jock Hutchinson won an exhibition match for the benefit of the Red Cross from Jule Pollock, former West Virginia state champion, and Alex Cunningham, local professional, at the Wheeling Country club today, 1 up. The match was played as a windup feature to the annual West Virginia state championship tourney and attracted a large gallery. Fifteen hundred dollars was realized for the Red Cross.

Evans equaled the course record of sixty-seven, while Hutchinson turned in a card of seventy-four. Pollock's clever putting made the contest close.

The first ball used by Evans sold for $110 and the caddying privilege for him netted $105.

Evans and Warren K. Wood will play Hutchinson and Walter Hagen in a Red Cross match at Pittsburgh tomorrow.

Lincoln Park Oarsmen Enter Duluth Regatta

The Lincoln Park Boat club has accepted the invitation of the Duluth Boat club to take part in its annual regatta in Duluth next Saturday. The local club will send an eight oared crew, a four and two double shells. Members of these crews have been in training since Decoration day and are confident of winning their share of honors in the big events.

CHICAGO PILOT SAVES PLUNGERS AT AURORA; ONLY CHOICE TO WIN

Aurora, Ill., July 12.—[Special.]—Al Whitney, the Chicago driver, saved the day for the speculating public on getaway day at the Aurora races. He was put up behind Buster Boy, a heavily played favorite, in the 2:15 pace after the sorrel horse had lost two heats with his own, W. L. Fisher of Frankfort, Ind., driving. Fisher was taken down. With Whitney up Buster went out and won three heats and the race, to the great joy of the talent.

Eva Abbe, favorite in the stake, the 2:12 pace, was distanced in the first heat. Clipper Jr., a second choice, also got the flag in the second heat. Constowitt, which won, was never backed to any great extent. The 2:24 trot also went to an outsider, Dusty Girl, after a long race.

2:12 pace, purse $1,000.

Three Former Maroons Win Army Commissions

Two former University of Chicago varsity track men are included in the list of winners of commissions made public in Washington yesterday. They are Maurice Barancik and Ralph Cornwell, the former a sprint star and the latter a first rate quarter miler. They won their commissions in the ordnance training course at Camp Meade. Paul W. Gerdes, former Maroon freshman basketball captain, also was made a second lieutenant of ordnance, and detailed to Camp Fremont, Cal.

CROWD SETS RECORD, THREE CHOICES WIN, AT CLEVELAND TROTS

Cleveland, O., July 12.—The largest crowd that ever gathered inside the North Randall race track attended the closing day's meeting of the Grand circuit today. Three favorites and one second choice won. Close finishes and fast time featured the racing.

Miss Harris M., queen of 1917 pacers, won the free for all pace, today's feature event, in most sensational time, after one of the gamest struggles ever witnessed here.

Battle with Single G.

Single G. captured the first heat in a hair raising drive, going the final quarter in :28½. Miss Harris M. was forced to pace the fastest mile of the year in the second mile to withstand the rush of Russell Boy. Finishing the last quarter in :28½, Miss Harris M. was officially timed 2:02¼ for the heat.

The third and deciding lap resulted in another battle between the first two. From the three-quarter pole to the wire Single G. and Miss Harris M. raced neck and neck, pacing the final quarter in :27¾, and the mile in 2:03¾, with the daughter of Peter the Great victorious by the slightest of margins.

Collision in Last Race.

The only accident of the meet resulted in the final heat of the last race. Just after passing the half mile post Alexander the Great and Lee Grand collided, the latter's sulky breaking down and Alexander losing a tire. Betsy Hamlin and Tramp a Bit were forced to pull up.

Good Tires and Good Business

War nas proved the motor car an indispensable business utility.

As a result it is being treated more and more as a business proposition.

Its equipment is purchased with extreme care and judgment. Values are studied. Mileage records are kept carefully.

That is why sales of United States Tires have increased with such rapidity.

United States Tires have demonstrated not only unusual long-mileage qualities but far greater reliability. They give a bigger return on your investment—more continuous use of your car.

There is a United States Tire built especially to fit your particular driving conditions.

That is one great advantage in buying United States Tires.

You have a variety of treads and types from which to choose,

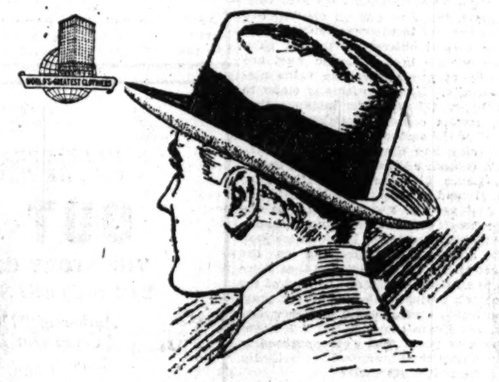

—and but one tire value—the highest.

Any United States Sales and Service Depot dealer will cheerfully aid you in your tire selection.

CUBS DO A WAR DANCE OVER ENFEEBLED BRAVES; SCORE, 8-0

BRUINS SHOW KONEY HE'S SLAB MISFIT

Spavined Bostonese Use First Sacker as a Pitcher.

Just before yesterday's game with the Boston Braves Charley Hollocher, shortstop of the Cubs, was notified by a local draft board to report July 15 for physical examination for military service. This will make the wonderful young shortstop subject to call at any time, and it is not a certainty that he will not be ordered to report for duty before the season closes. It is thought, however, that as long as class 1 of the first drafters had not been exhausted it will be possible for him to go through the entire schedule.

BY I. E. SANBORN.

With Claude Hendrix delivering his best shutout brand of hurling and Boston compelled to use a first baseman on the slab and a pitcher in the outfield, the Cubs had the softest kind of a job yesterday bagging the fourth game of the series from the Braves, 8 to 0.

Manager Stallings of the Braves found himself without a pitcher able to work, having used up all his healthy material in the previous two days. He called for volunteers and Konetchy was first on his feet, so was given the dangerous assignment. As Koney has been a volunteer outfielder since the draft wrecked Boston's supply of outposts it was necessary to fill his place out there with a rookie pitcher named Canavan.

Fred Tries Hard, Anyway.

As an outfielder Canavan looked like a swell pitcher, and conversely Koney, as a pitcher, looked like a good gardener, but that is no indication that Boston might have done better with Canavan on the slab and Koney outfielding.

If the latter had been given the kind of support Hendrix had, he would have given the Cubs quite an argument in spite of the way they hit his nonunion curves. Perhaps because they were jealous of him for butting into the outfield after shining as a first sacker for years, Koney's outer guards threw him down hard in spots, twice letting singles get away from them for unearned bases. But any old way you dope it, Boston hadn't a lookin anywhere down the line yesterday, and it was no wasting real pitching against the brick wall which the Braves were up against.

One Brave Gets to Third.

Five hits were made off Hendrix, including a couple of unnecessary ones in the ninth when Paskert tried for a loop fly which the wind blew away from him and which somebody else might have caught for the final out. Koney followed it with a single which merely delayed the finish without breaking into the row of goose eggs. Claude gave one base on balls and hit one batsman, the recipient of both walks being the same party, Red Smith. Only one Brave reached third base all day and that was after two were out. Four other visitors went as far as second base alive.

It was merely a question of how many hits and runs the Cubs would make, and their limit proved to be eight counters and thirteen swats for a total of seventeen bases, not including the extra sacks to which they were aided by the Brave outfielder.

Goes Fine for One Inning.

Koney got by with only one hit in the first inning, but in the second the Mitchells rapped him hard. He robbed Paskert of a sizzler by stabbing it heroically out of the air, then Deal, Zeider, Killefer, and Hendrix rang up singles in rapid succession. They were so solid nobody could score from second on them, so it required all four hits to get Deal home. Zeider scored on Flack's out. Hollocher walked and Mann popped out.

That lead of two was all the Cubs could establish until the sixth. Paskert opened that with his first hit. Deal singled and Zeider sacrificed them ahead a bag apiece. Killefer fouled out, but Hendrix delivered a timely blow over second, giving Paskert and Deal a ride to the plate. Massey tore in to cut off the second run if possible, but missed the ball and it rolled all the way to the center field fence with Massey in hot pursuit, giving Hendrix time to sprint around the circuit before the pill got back.

Killefer's Understudy Shines.

That raised the Cub total to five. They made it seven in the seventh on a boot by Koney. Merkle's double and Paskert's single helped out by a fumble by Canavan. O'Farrell, who gave Killefer a rest in the closing rounds, opened the eighth with a double and scored on a bobble by Maranville and an infield out. Score:

Notes

Boston again today.

Deal made three hits off Koney in four times up and one of them was a two bagger.

It rained in Pittsburgh, but that was some water on the Cubs' wheel, as it enabled them to gain half a lap on the Giants.

Red Smith was credited with a peculiar steal in the second. Killefer's throw beat him to second all right, but as Zeider caught it he tripped and fell over the bag, giving Red a chance to sneak in safely.

Mann ripped a drive through left center with nobody on in the fifth and tried to make three cushions on it. He beat the ball to third all right, but overslid the base, and Smith slapped him on the shin before he could reëstablish connections.

Paskert, Zeider, and Mann killed off a hit apiece for Hendrix. Paskert stole one from Koney in the second, Zeider knocked down a liner from Massey in the sixth and got his man. Mann made a catapultic catch of a wallop from Herzog, which looked good for two or three bases, in the eighth.

That was not Koney's first offense as a slabman. He finished a game for the St. Louis Cardinals on the old west side park one afternoon when Manager Huggins had used so much strategy that he found himself without a pitcher available for the last half inning. Koney went in and held the game.

With Hollocher on first and none out in the seventh, Mann stung a liner at Maranville, who pinched it off the ground and had an easy double play on Hollocher at first. But the Rabbit threw low and Herzog did not come up with the ball, which squirted a few feet away. Herzog made a dive, hoping to reach the ball and still keep a toe on the bag, but he wasn't long enough.

Washington, D. C., July 12.—Edward Ainsmith, catcher of the Washington American league club, has been ordered to engage in some useful occupation, or be placed in Class A-1 of the draft by his local draft board, it became known today. Joe Judge, first baseman of the club, has been served with a similar notice.

Sherdel of Cards Is Summoned.

BARDS SCORE IN HUNT CLUB SUIT

Ban B. Johnson, C. A. Comiskey, and thirty-two other members of the Jerome Fishing and Hunting club scored yesterday when Judge Charles M. Foell in the Superior court overruled the demurrer of Joseph H. Ray and the other officers and members now in possession of the club's property in Wisconsin.

The game is not over yet, as members in possession, headed by Ray, ex-sheriff of Will county, will now have to answer the bill for accounting which has been filed against them by Comiskey, Johnson, and their friends.

An injunction is still in force restraining the holding of an election of officers or ousting of members until the bill is heard on its merits. In the meantime it is up to Ray as secretary and manager to take care of the bear, elk, and other animals on the club's preserve, most of which were donated by Comiskey.

Babe Ruth's Bat Smashes Sox to Earth Again, 6-3

BY JAMES CRUSINBERRY.

Boston, Mass., July 12.—[Special.]—Babe Ruth, the tripling triphammer of the Boston Red Sox, was in another one of his three base moods today and knocked the wearied White Sox flat almost single handed. Because of a pair of triples and one two bagger, driven out by the stalwart southpaw, the Red Sox won the combat, 6 to 3, further damage being prevented by a terrific thunder storm which ended the game after seven rounds.

When Ruth smote three two baggers yesterday our boys talked as if he was a pretty lucky kid. At present writing we haven't heard whether he was lucky today or not. One thing was certain—there was nothing fluky about the three baggers.

One was a line drive about ten feet from earth that crashed into the terrace in left center. The other was a line drive about eight feet high that went to the corner of right field, close to the foul line. His two bagger was a short fly to right, which Murphy attempted to catch, but couldn't come in fast enough to reach.

Baffles the Outfielders.

The outfielders seem all crossed up on just what to do when this fellow comes up to bat. Yesterday they played him to pull the ball to right field, and he poled three doubles down the left foul line. Today they laid for him in that territory, and he showed them he could hit 'em to all parts of the field. Even his short fly fell safe because the outfielder was playing too deep.

Joe Benz was on the slab, opposed by Sam Jones, and it might have been a close combat if Ruth had been sick in bed or something.

Benz set the locals down three in a row in the first, but Ruth started the second with his two bagger. Whiteman bunted him along to third and he scored when Scott got an infield single on the squeeze play.

Sox Lead for Half an Inning.

Ruth didn't come up in the third, so Benz didn't have anything to worry about, and in the first of the fourth his mates assaulted the enemy for two runs, putting him one to the good. After one was out Eddie Collins reached second on an error, Risberg walked and J. Collins was hit by a pitched ball, filling the sacks. In this crisis Weaver hammered a single to center, scoring two, but McMullin spoiled the fun by slapping into a double play.

After Benz had retired Strunk in the last of the fourth, along came Ruth again and drove his triple to left center. Weaver made a hurried relay to third, trying to nail him, and heaved the ball over McMullin's head, so Ruth went on home, tying things.

In the fifth the Red Sox really scored without Ruth's assistance, but they needed the help of an error. Then in the sixth Ruth put the game on ice because he saw rain coming. Strunk started with a single and Babe drove out his other triple, then he came home a moment later on Scott's hit.

Hits by McMullin, Benz and Liebold got a run for the Sox in the seventh, and a fumble and wild throw by Eddie Collins, following Shean's hit, gave Boston another just before the storm broke. Score:

NOTES

Boston, Mass., July 12.—[Special.]—Dave Danforth is slated to try his luck against Ruth tomorrow.

There were fully 5,000 fans present today. Most of them came out mainly to see Ruth swat 'em.

It rained hard for about three-quarters of an hour, after which the sun came out, so the crowd got home without getting wet.

One New York critic, in discussing Ruth, stated it was better for a pitcher to give him four bad ones and one base than one good one and four bases, and he seems to have about the correct dope.

A scheme was hatched to play a double header tomorrow, advancing the Monday game. Comiskey's consent was obtained, but a wire from B. B. Johnson didn't lend enthusiasm to the scheme, so it was abandoned. Boston had a chance to play an exhibition game Monday.

AUTO CLUB BUREAU PUSHES $60,000,000 GOOD ROADS BONDS

BY SHEPPARD BUTLER.

To further the campaign of education in favor of the $60,000,000 good roads bond issue, which Illinoisans will vote on this fall, the Chicago Automobile club has installed a good roads bureau, which now occupies a suite of rooms in the main section of the clubhouse. The organization has its own stenographic and clerical force, and its activities will be directed by Harry Newman, chairman of the club's recently formed good roads committee.

Through correspondence and the sending out of literature and maps, the bureau proposes to see to it that every voter in northern Illinois is made familiar with the arguments for the bond issue. Members of the club also will be delegated as speakers at meetings in various parts of the Chicago territory, and it is probable that a series of motor tours—to be known as "good roads runs" will be organized.

Duray Entered for Race Here.

The Chicago speedway management received its first entry yesterday for the international sweepstakes, to be run on Sunday, July 28. Harry S. Harkness, wiring from New York in behalf of Arthur Duray, the former European champion.

Harkness reserved the right to name the car Duray will drive, which would indicate that the Belgian may try one of the New Yorker's Delages. It is thought more probable, however, that he will stick to the Frontenac, with which he was compelled to drop out of last month's Derby on the last lap of the race.

Picturesque ceremonies will mark the opening of half a mile of new concrete roadway through the village of Niles Center tomorrow. For the climax of the proceedings the pavement will be waxed and everybody will be expected to dance. The new construction work is forty feet wide and continues the present Lincoln avenue pavement to Brown's Corners.

The Chicago Motor club begins its summer series of cross country runs tomorrow, the cavalcade leaving the clubhouse at 8:30 a. m. for Cedar Lake, Ind. On July 28 there will be a run to Fox Lake, on Aug. 11 to Bass Lake, and on Aug. 25 to Round Lake.

PIRATES GET HOOSIER PLAYER.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 12.—James C. McGill, owner of the Indianapolis ball club, tonight announced he had sold Infielder Roy Ellam to Pittsburgh. Indianapolis will get a player to be named besides cash in the deal. Infielder Eddie McDonald, formerly of Birmingham, has been secured by Indianapolis.

JUNIOR NET MEET AT ONWENTSIA.

A junior tennis tournament will be played at Onwentsia club, Lake Forest, beginning next Wednesday. The events will be a singles handicap for boys under 18 years and a similar event for girls.

Woods and Waters By LARRY ST. JOHN

QUESTIONS THEY ASK.

Chicago. — [To the Editor.] — 1. I know a quarry where there are some big bass. What is the best way to catch them? 2. What are some good books on fish and fishing? 3. Where can I buy helgramites? G. M. E.

Answers—1. The subject of catching quarry bass has been discussed at various times in this column. There is no way to get these fish, and if we knew of one we certainly would not publish it. The general rules, however, are to keep quiet, don't stand up on a high bank in the sunlight, but get as close to the water as possible, and fish against the sun if you can. Better still, fish at night. For night casting the luminous baits have caught many a good quarry bass; the most successful seem to be surface baits that "muss up" the water considerably. Sometimes an outlandish lure, such as a dragon fly, piece of chicken skin, or chunk of liver, will turn the trick. About the best we can do is to wish you luck! 2. We would recommend "American Food and Game Fishes," by Jordan and Evermann; "Salmon and Trout," by Dean Sage; "The Book of the Black Bass" and "Bass, Pike, Perch, and Others," by Henshall, and "Lake and Stream Game Fishing," by Dixie Carroll. You might also glean an idea or two from "Practical Bait Casting," by Larry St. John. 3. Who can answer this question which bobs up every day or so? Whoever has helgramites for sale can make a young wagon load of money judging from the inquiries we get. So far we have been unable to learn of anyone who has these critters for sale.

Chicago.—[To the Editor.]—Where can I get the "Game and Fish Book for 1918"? J. T.

Answer—We presume you mean the fish and game laws of Illinois. They have not been changed this year and you can get a copy from the division of fish and game, Springfield, Ill.

Chicago—[To the Editor.]—When will hunting be allowed in Illinois? F. W.

Answer—The first season to open will be on squirrels, Aug. 1. The season on rabbits and water fowl opens Sept. 1.

ROUND TRIP RACE OF WHEELERS TO WHEELING TODAY

Revival of Bicycle Event Draws 76 Local and Visiting Scorchers.

Seventy-six riders ranging in ages from 13 to 44 years, will take part in the first revival of the Chicago to Wheeling and return bicycle road race to be held today under auspices of the Bicycle Dealers' Association of Cook County.

The contestants have received handicaps as high as twenty-five minutes, while the large number of time prizes to be awarded should insure an interesting race. Because of the unknown ability of most of the riders, twenty-seven of whom are ice and roller skaters, the race is expected to be won by a rider unknown to the bicycle game.

Speeders from Out of Town.

Although most of the riders will represent local clubs, Milwaukee and Indiana towns have sent crack riders who are expected to make strong bids for the honors. Harry Olson of Michigan City is expected to make a strong bid.

The race will start from California and North avenues at 1 o'clock. The riders having the largest handicaps will be sent away first, while the scratch men will be well on their way before the handicap riders get near the turning point, where they will be compelled to dismount and sign their names in a book to show they have covered the entire course.

No Punctures No Blowouts

Essenkay
A TIRE FILLER

eliminates all troubles and expense of punctures and blowouts by taking the place of air in tires and thereby removing the cause.

No Inner Tubes

Essenkay is a light, flexible, resilient, synthetic substance, molded in cylindrical form, to fit all size tires, possessing all of the good qualities of fine Para rubber—yet has no rubber in its composition. Essenkay takes the place of air and inner tubes in tires and will not expand or contract under changes of heat, cold or atmospheric conditions. The pressure in the tires is constantly uniform, which lengthens the life of the casing.

First Cost—Last Cost

Essenkay is in use on thousands of pleasure cars, trucks and converted tractors. Many Municipalities, Departments of the Government, Metropolitan Newspapers have increased truck efficiency to 100% and cut tire costs by installing Essenkay in tires. After a tire has given from 10,000 to 18,000 miles and the casing worn to the last layer of fabric, the Essenkay can be transferred to new casings; the first cost is the last cost.

Over 25,000 Users

Essenkay is endorsed by over 25,000 motorists who have used it under every possible condition of roads, hill climbing and overloading.

Essenkay is guaranteed against crumbling, flattening, hardening, being affected by heat, cold or atmospheric conditions, or against deterioration in any form. No extra tires—rims—tubes—no pumps—no jacks.

FASHION'S BLUE BOOK

BY CORINNE LOWE.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—Is it the war, or why this juxtaposition? At all events, we have seen it again and again. It is a large touring car "manned" by a lady and decorated by the lady's husband.

Certainly there can be no doubt about it. More and more women are driving cars. It doesn't seem to make any difference how little the girl is, or how big the car is, or how the trucks try to cut in, or what the dray wagon drivers think about it. There they sit and drive through the most crowded streets of New York. As for the roads along the Hudson, one woman after another is seen taking clinging vine husband out for a spin.

For driving either in town or out the nicest coat for July and August wear is one of natural colored pongee. Here we have a particularly smart model shown by one of the leading specialty shops.

THE SUCCESSFUL HOME GARDEN

BY J. F. H. HEIDE.

NO. 131.

[Copyright: 1918: By J. F. H. Heide.]

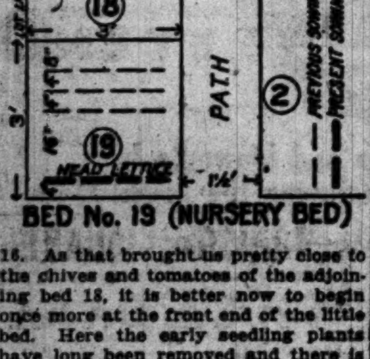

Today's War Garden Demonstration.

Except for the necessary hoeing, keeping a close watch for plant lice and other insects, pruning tomato vines, and gathering in the harvest, the vegetable garden affords little recreation during the summer months. There should be ample time to visit the nearest of the three TRIBUNE demonstration gardens at Lincoln park, Garfield park, and the University of Chicago. The men conducting these take pleasure in enlightening you on whatever difficulties you may have encountered.

On bed No. 8 we begin next week to harvest the most advanced of the Early Jersey Wakefield cabbage planted about April 29.

On bed No. 12 the second crop of lettuce and radishes, sown about June 8, is ready for use and should be cleared to make room for the parsnips. The latter show splendid development in all soils now.

Bed No. 19, the nursery bed, has now only three rows of seedling plants in preparation: the cauliflower for bed No. 10, the kohlrabi for bed No. 5, and the All Season head lettuce for bed No. 16. As that brought us pretty close to the chives and tomatoes of the adjoining bed 18, it is better now to begin once more at the front end of the little bed. Here the early seedling plants have long been removed and there is more room.

BED No. 19 (NURSERY BED)

Four inches from the front end we now sow a row of May King head lettuce, in a drill about one-half inch deep, about three to five seeds to the inch. The variety is not imperative. If the gardener has any All Season or other variety of head lettuce on hand it will answer as well. The seedlings will be used about Aug. 17 to follow the sweet corn on bed No. 15.

Right here we may answer the often recurring question, "Why were not radishes and lettuce planted with corn on beds 14, 15, and 16?" It is because they would have matured at a time when we were surfeited with lettuce and radishes from other beds and would have been wasted. Nothing else would have matured in time to admit of hoeing and hilling the corn. The war garden plan has not disclosed a fault.

Value of Milk as Food.

There are reasons why a reprint of all but the recipes in a bulletin recently put out by the University of Illinois ought to be worth while. For one reason, the subject of milk should receive not only our weekly attention, but our daily consideration, and the title of this bulletin is "Milk." The author is Miss Ruth Wheeler, assistant professor of household science.

It says: "Use more milk; it is an important factor of safety in the diet." With some milk in the diet we are pretty sure not to go all wrong in our eating and going all wrong is much easier than thousands guess.

Preceding its two recipes for whey lemonade and whey honey, it says: "If you make your cheese and throw away the whey you waste more than one-fourth the vital food value of the milk."

Under the heading "Skimmed Milk and Butter" it says: "Skimmed (separated) milk has about half the food value of whole milk. It is a valuable source of minerals and of protein. Adults may take their pint a day in this form if they eat butter or fat from meat and eggs or oleomargarine made from beef fat. If the fat in the diet is chiefly nut butter, lard, or vegetable oil, whole milk is advisable. Butter is not indispensable. If you cannot afford it or the government for a time should need all there is, no one who has milk will suffer. On the other hand, if you prefer butter and can afford it, eat it when the food administration does not ask you to save it."

The paragraphs on the value of milk as food read: "It is not easy to give the family just the proteins and minerals and fatty foods they must have to maintain perfect health. Milk contains them all. It is the most valuable of all foods. No proteins are better for growth than milk proteins. No other food contains so nearly perfect a balance of minerals for building bones and tissues. Milk contains both types of the essential accessory substances without which health and even life is impossible. One of these is associated with milk fat. Other foods contain these substances, but few single foods contain them all in so useful a form. As a source of protein one quart of milk is equal to seven ounces of sirloin steak or four and three-tenths eggs. At 15 cents a quart milk is as cheap a source of protein as sirloin steak at 35 cents a pound."

"Get whole milk. Use every drop of it. Plan to use it before it sours unless you can take time to make use of every bit of it afterward. Give the children whole milk to drink. It is a good scheme to plan the children's meals around milk as the chief food, giving each one quart a day, adding especially cereals and, to supply the iron which is present in too small amount, egg yolk, green vegetables, spinach, carrots, and peas. Other vegetables and fruits are valuable to keep the digestive system in good condition as well as additional food. Grownups should have a pint of milk a day."

In Memory of T. M. Weddell.

"His Gethsemane," verses by Alfred E. Walker in tribute to Thomas MacMillan Weddell, killed in naval aviation in France, has been set to music by Adolph Weidig, and will be sung tomorrow morning in the special memorial service for the young airman in the Union church, Hinsdale. He was the son of T. R. Weddell, editor of insurance news for THE TRIBUNE.

Patriotic Program Marks Centennial Day at Camp Meeting

BY THE REV. W. B. NORTON.

Illinois centennial day at the Desplaines campmeeting yesterday was marked by addresses by Bishop Thomas Nicholson and former Gov. Charles S. Deneen, the raising of a United States flag and a service flag, and the singing of patriotic songs. The Rev. Frank D. Sheets, district superintendent of the Chicago western district, presided.

Just before Mr. Deneen began speaking, a surprise was sprung on the Rev. F. F. Farmiloe, pastor of the Pullman Methodist Episcopal church, whose seventy-second birthday fell yesterday. Dr. Farmiloe has been fifty-two years in the active ministry, most of the period in or near Chicago. He was given a purse, and congratulatory addresses were made by the Rev. H. V. Holt of the Gary Memorial church, Wheaton, and the Rev. A. F. Clark, superintendent of the Chicago northern district.

Dr. Clark said he had been led to enter the ministry through the influence of Dr. Farmiloe. Dr. Farmiloe has been invited to deliver a semi-centennial address at the coming session of the Rock River conference. Dr. Farmiloe declined to investigate the amount of money given him.

"I'll take that home to my wife," he said, "and let her count it and have it."

Former Gov. Deneen said Illinois was a self-made state and had a record which placed her among the foremost of the nation and as the home of Abraham Lincoln and U. S. Grant in the days of the civil war the foremost state in the eyes of the world.

"We are better as citizens when taken altogether than when taken individually," he said, "just as a crowd is more courageous than the individuals making up the crowd are when taken alone. The state gives 34 per cent of its taxes to charity. If as individuals we are called upon to do that most people squirm.

"Illinois is the first and only state to make a soil survey of its entire area. Its laws on mining have been copied, not only by other states, but by several countries of the old world."

He paid a tribute to the men who voted to make Illinois a free instead of a slave state, and to Nathaniel Pope, who, he said, had the vision of the future clear enough to propose the legislation which added sixty-one miles to the northern boundary of the state in order to give us a harbor on Lake Michigan. He urged that a suitable monument be erected to Pope on the shores of the lake.

At the flag raising the address was delivered by the Rev. Charles A. Gage, pastor of Olivet church. Prayer was offered by the Rev. J. S. Ladd Thomas, pastor of Austin church, and the address of acceptance in behalf of the camp meeting association was made by Arthur R. Clark, president of the association. D. L. Spooner led in singing in a new patriotic song, "It's My Flag, Too."

The stars in the service flag represented the families of the campers on the grounds. There were eighteen stars, one being a gold one as a memorial of William Siljander, who died in France.

Today will be young people's day. The principal address will be delivered at 3 o'clock by Bishop W. A. Quayle. Bishop Quayle will preach tomorrow at morning and afternoon services.

To Study Epilepsy Problem.

After a series of meetings the Epileptographic society of Chicago has been formed for the purpose of studying the epilepsy problem and to continue research into what the organizers term "this most sadly neglected malady."

The organizers of the society are the Rev. Vincent Brummer, St. James' church, Lemont, Ill.; the Rev. George J. Blatter, St. Peter and Paul's church, South Chicago; the Rev. Anthony H. Leising, Chicago; the Rev. Joseph B. Illig, Greenville, Mich.; the Rev. Jeremiah E. Madden, Church of the Epiphany; Dr. E. C. Sayre, Dr. A. F. Henning, Dr. William Held, and Dr. N. B. Hobart, all of Chicago.

Hospital Dedication.

Highland Park's new $100,000 hospital will be dedicated tomorrow at 3 p. m. Louis Kreidler and Miss Irene Pavloska of the Chicago Grand Opera company will sing patriotic songs, and a jackie band from the Great Lakes Naval Training station will furnish martial music. Mayor Samuel M. Hastings of Highland Park, a member of the advisory board, will act as chairman. Walter H. Baldwin is president of the institution.

Foreign Language Committee to Keep Boosting Loyalty

The foreign language committee of the Liberty loan, under whose auspices the Fourth of July celebration for Americans of foreign blood strains was held, met at dinner last night at the La Salle. It heard reports of the celebration, and also a report from Felix J. Streyckmans, its chairman, concerning the presidential celebration at Mount Vernon, at which he was chairman of the thirty-three separate groups represented there.

After hearing Mr. Streyckmans' report, including his address on behalf of the various groups delivered at Mount Vernon, the diners also heard short talks from Charles G. Schwartz, Prof. H. A. Miller of Oberlin college, Assistant Attorney General C. W. Middlekauff of Springfield, A. J. Cermak, and others.

Stress was laid at the meeting upon the excellent showing made by many of the foreign language groups in the local Fourth celebration, resulting in Chicago's celebration being the greatest of the kind ever held in this country.

The palm was given the Bohemians, with a parade which took over two hours passing a given point, as Mr. Cermak explained, and the four celebrations of the Poles, in which over 100,000 took part, representing nearly every Polish family in Chicago. The celebration of the Lithuanians, Swedes, Germans, Norwegians, and Jugo-Slavs also came in for encomiums.

It was determined to preserve the organization for the next Liberty loan drive, and for all other patriotic purposes. It was also made clear that this organization has been largely instrumental in supplying propaganda to be used abroad in furtherance of American aims in the war, and to spread knowledge of the fact of American unity of effort and thought.

Masonic Degrees for Fighters.

Oriental consistory, Scottish Rite Masons, tomorrow will confer degrees from the fourth to the thirty-second on a class of over two hundred candidates, composed exclusively of soldiers and sailors from Fort Sheridan and the Great Lakes station.

Elaborate preparations have been completed for the reception of this special army and navy class at the Consistory cathedral, Dearborn street and Walton place. Luncheon will be served at noon and a dinner at night to the soldiers and sailors and members of the consistory.

Following the ritualistic work, a patriotic-religous service will be given, in which a section of the naval band from Great Lakes will take part.

This special meeting is held to enable the soldier and sailor Masons to receive the higher grades before leaving for service at the front.

School Superintendent's Week.

Three hundred school principals and superintendents are expected to participate in the initial celebration of Superintendents' week, beginning Monday at the University of Chicago.

Lectures on new methods in administration of schools will feature the convention. Supt. William A. Greeson of Grand Rapids, Mich., will announce results of his investigations in the field of school census. Supt. John W. Withers of St. Louis will point out late developments in the training of teachers in service. Supt. Frank E. Spaulding of Cleveland, O., will offer suggestions as to budgets and finance.

Other talks are scheduled by Prof. Charles Hubbard Judd, Assistant Professor William S. Gray, Prof. John M. Coulter, Prof. Richard G. Moulton, and Harold O. Rugg of the University of Chicago.

ASK ME! ASK ME!

By Mae Tinée.

FOND DU LAC: Parrots and buttermilk. What are yours?

BROWN EYES: Better break the news gently to Mr. Griffith. I'll say that offers like yours only come once in a lifetime!

MARGARET H.: I'll send you the names of some theatrical agencies if you care to mail me a stamped, addressed envelope. But I canna' give them in this colyum! Sorry!

ENTHUSIASM: You didn't sign your name, so I don't know what else to call you. This does vurr' well, however! Yes, wasn't it a good picture! And you've read the "dear old TRIBUNE" for twenty years! Fine! And it got better every day, didn't it?

J. K.: Corinne Griffith is with Vitagraph. That's the idea!

ADMIRER OF BOTH: Another query about Corinne! She's getting to be a popular lady, evidently. She's with Vitagraph and appears every once in a while in Vitagraph program productions. Alma Hanlon has been "free lancing" more or less for some time. If you care to write her she can be reached at Bayside, L. I. I'm awfully sorry you've had to wait for your answer. Your letter must have gotten lost.

PEEVED: I don't wonder you are! I'll give the owner a good sound talking to. That is, I'll tell him how you feel and see just what the trouble was. Then I'll tell you what he said under this said head. I say unto you—"Watch!"

SUBSCRIBER: Just send your plot in synopsis form—that is, like an exceedingly short story, eliminating unnecessary description. Send it to the scenario editor of whatever company you wish to consider it with stamped and self-addressed envelope if you wish it returned. Always keep a carbon copy. I have a list of the various producing companies if you care to send me a stamped, addressed envelope for it. I'll do me best!

HONEST ABE: Well, na-ow! I should say NOT! There's such a thing as being too honest, you know.

MUSKEGON, MICH.: All right, let's chat. Experts at the game know all sorts of ways for fixing you up so you'll photograph well. Regular features are, of course, always desirable. I didn't get the envelope. Where do you suppose it went to?

FIREFLY, CHICAGO: Shine, little glow worm, etc. Why, Alma Reubens took the part you mention in "The Painted Lady." I guess so. Yes, Madge Kennedy is married—to Harold Bolster, vice president of the Goldwyn company. You're welcome.

SIXTEEN: Don't you think we'd better discuss that matter by letter? I'd rather not answer your question in the paper. Besides, there's something I want to tell you. Let me have your address, please.

MIKE W. L.: Sure, Mike! I usually put two stripes in the socks I knit—one for luck and one for—well, let me see—to save wool, I guess!

Knitters Are Needed Now More Than Ever

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

WAS IT YOU!

Have you ever been met by an irate husband in a long, dark street that seemed for the moment to have no turning? O, it is a terrible feeling, let me assure you, while the experience is fresh within my memory.

And why is an irate husband, you ask? Because he is the husband of an irate-r wife. And she was irate-d to death over something I said in this 'ere column the other day about women who knit while men must fight!

There was something in his eye that looked awful like blood to me, but, as I said before, the street had no turning just at that moment, so I had to face it.

"You insulted my wife," he said with a threatening leeway gesture. "Yes, you did. She told me so. And she has a lot of friends to back her up, too. You said she ought to be ashamed knitting sweaters for herself when there was so much knitting needed by the soldier boys. And she says you don't know anything about it because the Red Cross said they didn't need any more knitted articles and weren't giving out wool.

"You're in wrong with the whole gang of them up there in our neighborhood," he threatened.

Well, when there came a turn in the street I ran down it faster than Skinny ever did and jumped into a telephone booth, called Red Cross headquarters, and asked them if I was all wrong.

They reassured me that wool for sweaters and helmets and wristlets was aplenty and the need of them great, but that there was a shortage on sock wool, which, however, would be relieved shortly.

Just wait until I meet irate hubby in that lane without a turning.

But that wasn't why I tell you this. Instead, I want to correct any impression that knitters are no longer needed. They're needed more than they ever were!

HIGH SCHOOL GIRL: I SHALL tell you how to become plump and also give you directions for facial massage and my formula for skin food if you will send me a stamped, addressed envelope.

ALICE: FRUIT ACIDS, SUCH AS grape juice, orange and lemon juice, and apples, stimulate a flow of saliva and are cleansing to the teeth. An apple eaten in the evening will mechanically and chemically cleanse the teeth and if followed by proper brushing will protect them from the action of bacteria during the night. I shall be glad to send you my remedy for pyorrhea if you will send me a stamped, addressed envelope.

Bright Sayings of the Children

"The Tribune" will pay $1 in thrift stamps for each children saying printed. The story told must never have been printed in any magazine or paper. It is not possible to acknowledge or return unavailable contributions. Please write on one side of the paper. Address bright sayings to Aunty Bee, "Tribune," Chicago.

Katherine was fond of poached eggs and her mother generally used a small frying pan which she considered convenient for this purpose. One morning Katherine was not well and her mother told her that she would cook an egg for her breakfast. "O, do!" exclaimed Katherine, "and I like it fried in water." M. T.

Willie was upstairs when his nurse called to him to hurry, as a little girl was waiting downstairs to play with him.

"What is her name?" asked Willie.

"Mary Jane," answered the nurse.

Willie hurried downstairs and, upon seeing Mary Jane, said: "She is a very little girl to have two names. I am bigger and my name is only Willie." I. G. F.

George and Marion were playing out in the yard. I overheard Marion say, "Come on, George, let's play house, and you can be my husband."

But George replied, scornfully: "Aw, I don't want to be a husband. I want to be a horse." M. R.

Tells Best Way to Get Efficiency

Efficiency methods in industrial and other plants are best secured through team work between the executive and the industrial engineer, according to speakers at the semi-monthly meeting of the Western Efficiency society in the Auditorium hotel last night.

The third generation, said C. H. Thorne, chairman of the board of directors of Montgomery Ward & Co., who presided, that is now coming on and assuming charge of industrial and business affairs, must adopt new methods of control that will bring results without delay or congestion. He said the methods must fit what each unit was striving to attain in the shortest time and with the least resistance. The old methods, he said, were too slow.

H. N. Stronck, vice president of the Illinois Engineering and Audit company, and H. Thorpe Kessler, plant manager of Rosenwald & Weil, also spoke.

GO TO CHURCH SUNDAY

"Some people speak approvingly of the postponement of the faith and practice of the Christian life during the summer vacation period, and refer candidly to 'taking up their duties when they return to town.' As if any period could be devoid of the sense of the Divine Presence to the Christian believer. It is just this fallacy, a recurrence of an earlier evil, which will go on separating our faith from our recreations, our conscience from our dealings, and our devotional attitude from our social relations, and making it appear that we believe in a double life. That is our problem; to saturate our practical life with the spirit of the Master."
—William C. Millikan, Grace Methodist Episcopal church.

Bastille Fete at Lake Forest Is the Day's Event

Society will turn out in full force for the "Fête de la Bastille," in the gardens of Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Brewster's residence in Lake Forest from 4 o'clock this afternoon until 11 o'clock tonight. The fête is being given for the benefit of the fatherless children of France, and on the grounds there will be an information booth where one can obtain all details concerning the adoption of little French orphans. There will be all sorts of festival entertainments.

News comes from Oconomowoc, where many Chicagoans are summering, that it is a busy place these days. Yesterday there was opened a white elephant sale and street carnival which is being continued today, and in which many Chicago women are actively interested. The proceeds will go to the Red Cross. The sale is being held at Draper hall, and all sorts of articles are offered, including hardware, stoves, washing machines, wearing apparel, and musical instruments. Mrs. George W. Dixon of 2706 Michigan avenue and Miss Edna Dixon of 2131 Michigan avenue have charge of the street carnival and the moving picture show, and Mrs. William Nelson Pelouze of 12 West Delaware place is in the hat booth.

The visiting French aviators will be the guests of the South Shore Country club tomorrow night at the French Independence day celebration. Lieut. Georges Flachaire will give an exhibition of war flying over the club grounds at 6 o'clock, and afterwards in the ballroom Lieut. Flachaire, Lieut. Henri Farré, and M. Antonin Barthelemy will speak. Lieut. Joseph Dobelle will sing trench songs. Two of Lieut. Farré's paintings will be exhibited in the clubhouse.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard T. Crane Jr. will give a dinner tonight at the Saddle and Cycle club for Lieut. Farré and Lieut. Flachaire.

Mr. and Mrs. Moise Dreyfus of Glencoe will give a dinner for the French aviators and the members of the executive committee of the American Fund for French Wounded on Wednesday night at the Lake Shore Country club. Mrs. Dreyfus is chairman of the propaganda committee of Le Cercle Français, which will be in charge of the aerial exhibit at the Art Institute next Thursday.

The Gamma chapter of the Iota Beta Phi sorority will give a "jitney" dance this evening at the Evanston Golf club. The dances will be a "jitney" each, and the proceeds will go to the soldiers' and sailors' recreation fund.

Members of the White Sulphur Springs colony in West Virginia had their first experience in actual canteen work last Sunday, when soldiers passed through the resort. The troops were showered with cigarets, candy, and other gifts. Miss Marion Strobel, who is with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Strobel, is among recent arrivals at the springs.

The members of Le Cenacle will be entertained today at luncheon at the residence of Mrs. George A. Hughes of 111 Eastwood avenue. Lieut. Winthrop Scott of the ordnance department at Washington, who, with his mother, is a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Auguste Babize, will speak.

A tea dance will be given this afternoon from 3 until 6 o'clock at the Edgewater Beach hotel. Private William Yount will speak.

Announcement is made of the birth of a son to Capt. and Mrs. Wayne Chatfield-Taylor on July 7 at Michael Reese hospital. Mrs. Chatfield-Taylor, who was formerly Miss Adele Blow, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George P. Blow of La Salle. Capt. Chatfield-Taylor, who is stationed at Camp Grant with a machine gun battalion, has obtained leave to come to Chicago. Mrs. Blow is also in Chicago, at the Parkway hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Swift and family are spending the summer at their Lake Geneva residence, Hortense Villa. Their daughter, Mrs. Huntington Henry, is with them.

Mrs. George Sturges, who with her children is spending the summer at Lake Geneva with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George G. Parker, left last week for a visit to her husband, Capt. Sturges, who is stationed at Manhattan, Kas.

The allied arts Red Cross unit will give its fortnightly dance for soldiers and sailors this evening in the ballroom of the Virginia hotel. The hostesses for the evening include Mrs. Heaton Owsley, Mrs. Thomas H. Barry, Mrs. Edward Martin, and Mrs. W. H. Whiteford.

A real war luncheon will be part of the picnic to be given at the residence of Mrs. Catherine Waugh McCulloch in Evanston this afternoon for the visitors and members of the Woman's Bar Association of Illinois. Members of the Woman's Medical association of the city will be guests of the bar association. One of the "stunts" which the women are looking forward to is the military drill to be given under the direction of an officer from Fort Sheridan. Mrs. McCulloch is president of the bar association. Miss Martha Elvert is chairman of the arrangements committee, and Miss Ella Zeelzer will undertake to line up every woman lawyer in the state to subscribe for war savings stamps. The Marseillaise will be sung to celebrate Bastille day, and the question of the compulsory education of the foreign born in English will be discussed with a view to possible legislation.

Mr. and Mrs. Newton Macy Wagner of Kansas City, Mo., will arrive this week to visit Mrs. Wagner's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Donald MacMillan of 222 East Pearson street.

Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Blanchard of 2221 Washington boulevard have returned from their summer residence at Lauderdale Lakes, where they entertained Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Blanchard.

Mrs. McCulloch will open her residence in Evanston this afternoon for a picnic for the members of the Woman's Bar Association of Illinois and of the Woman's Medical Association of Chicago. Mrs. McCulloch is president of the Woman's Bar association and Miss Martha Elvert is chairman of the committee on arrangements.

Evanston Girl Weds Kansan.

Miss Marian Dana, daughter of A. W. Dana, 2020 Sherman avenue, Evanston, was married to Arthur T. Shakeshaft of Topeka, Kas., on Thursday. Mrs. Shakeshaft is a former student at Northwestern and Mr. Shakeshaft is a graduate of Washburn college in Topeka.

WOMEN IN WARTIME

Women, do you sincerely believe in this war? Do you know why we are in it and why we must fight it to a finish, even if it takes all our man power and all our money? Do you want to help in every way in YOUR power to win this war quickly?

One way in which you can do this is by aiding in recruiting the men who are to fight the war. The civilian committee in charge of marine recruiting is asking for 300 men and women at once to assist in securing men for this branch of the service.

Each will be expected to pledge himself or herself to enlist one marine a month. The committee in charge is in hopes that a large number of women's organizations will pledge all of their members to this work. In this case a subcommittee of club officials will be formed to manage the work. Headquarters will be at 224 South Clark street. Mrs. Martha Abt has already volunteered for this service. She addressed five meetings in the loop yesterday in the interest of marine recruiting. So far the loop drive has been confined to the daylight hours, but beginning tonight every station will be open and a concert will be given by a band of veterans of the Spanish war, who will resurrect some of the tunes of that time as a reminder of the gallant conduct of the marines in the Spanish war. The first part of the program will be given at Dearborn and Randolph streets, the second at 4 West Jackson street.

Once in a while a favorite golf club betrays its owner. At least that's the excuse the owner gives for a bad slice, and the club is sent to the attic in disgrace. The war recreation board begs that all such clubs which are perhaps not just suited to the build of their owners be brought to 120 West Adams street and left for the use of the soldiers and sailors who occasionally have a chance to play and have to forego the pleasure for lack of equipment.

President James of the University of Illinois has expressed the desire of the college to coöperate with the State Council of Defense in securing agricultural training for young women. In a letter to Mrs. Annie M. Dow, vice chairman of the woman's committee, President James writes: "We have opened to young women the same course in agriculture that is given men, and a most hearty welcome awaits them."

A new information bureau for soldiers and sailors passing through the Northwestern station was opened yesterday by the Red Cross canteen service. Mrs. Harmon Harris was in charge.

"Sign the junk pledge and win the war." This is the slogan adopted yesterday by the woman's committee of the salvage bureau of Chicago chapter, American Red Cross.

The ward chairmen are sending in large numbers of pledges daily. More than 500 have been received from the Twenty-first ward, of which Mrs. John M. O'Connor is chairman, and the Twenty-seventh ward, in charge of Mrs. Henry G. Zander, has sent in a similar number.

Miss Elizabeth Wallace of the University of Chicago, who has just returned from France, where she worked with the repatriates, yesterday told of the needs of the French children at the food conservation station, 28 South Wabash avenue. A large audience listened and afterwards sampled the conservation cookies, which are selling like the proverbial hot cakes.

Mrs. Russell Tyson of the American fund for French wounded and Mrs. James Keeley of the war recreation board have been requested by the Association of Commerce to act as hostesses to the heads of all the women's organizations in the city who have been invited to the dedication of the new soldiers and sailors' pavilion in Grant park on Bastile day, tomorrow. The French aviators now in the city will participate in the dedication ceremonies.

Japanese Red Cross Guests.

Chicago chapter of the Red Cross will have as its guests for this week end members of the Japanese Red Cross mission, who will arrive today at 11:40 a. m. The personnel of the party is as follows: Prince Yoshihisa Tokugawa, member of the house of peers, director of the Japanese Red Cross society; Dr. Arata Ninagawa, doctor of law; Dr. Shigemi Sawamura, doctor of medical science; Yasushi Naito, Sadaka Kageyama, Hedeo Yoshida, and Hideya Furusawa. Companions: Count Kuwashi Katsu, brother of Prince Tokugawa, and Chuichiro Fujimori.

Y. M. C. A. Seeks Drivers.

Wealthy Chicagoans who own and operate several automobiles and employ, in some instances, as many as three chauffeurs, are asked to dispense with their extra drivers and assign them to Y. M. C. A. work. Frank Kimball, chairman of the Chicago recruiting committee, 1500 Y. M. C. A. building, makes this suggestion, as he has just received word from New York that Paris has wired that the red triangle needs 150 trained chauffeurs and mechanics in France without delay.

Park Board Will Provide the Site for Hero Memorial

The temporary memorial to Chicago's soldiers and sailors who give their lives to the cause of democracy in the present war will consist of inscribed tablets to be placed between the columns of the colonnade at the north end of Grant park, provided permission is granted by the south park board.

This was determined yesterday at a meeting of the memorial committee, headed by Ald. Kostner, chairman of the council committee on home defense. Charles H. Wacker, head of the Chicago plan commission; Frank J. Logan, vice president of the Art institute, and Charles L. Hutchinson, acting chairman of the park board, also attended the conference.

A request for the use of the colonnade will be made by a committee of aldermen and citizens next Thursday at a meeting of the park board. Mr. Hutchinson said the matter would have to be placed before the park body, but assured the committee that a site would be granted in the downtown park.

It is the plan to erect the permanent memorial monument later in the vicinity of the colonnade.

Ald. Kostner announced last night that Mr. Wacker had put up $100 for a cash prize to artists for a design for a memorial certificate to be presented to families of soldiers who gave their lives to the cause of democracy.

"The idea of presenting such honor certificates was suggested by Mr. Wacker," the alderman said. "Now Mr. Wacker has offered this cash prize for the best design. The contest is open to any artist. The judges will be composed of the art commission of the Art institute."

CHICAGO NOT OVERBUILT, SAYS HENRY BOSTROM

Commissioner Takes Issue with Real Estate Men.

Real Estate Transfers

Real estate transfers filed for record yesterday totaled 177 in number, involving $194,464, comprising 143 in the city and 35 in the outlying townships, including 11 under the Torrens system. Transfers were as follows:

Lake View	9	Calumet	1
Hyde Park	25	West Town	40
Cicero	13	Lyons	4
South Town	13	Proviso	2
Lake	22	Thornton	10
Stickney	8	Norwood Park	1
Jefferson	18	Evanston	3
North Town	5	Barrington	1
Rogers Park	1	Worth	1

As was to be expected, the transfer figures for the first half of the year show a considerable falling off, both in respect to the number as well as total consideration, although considerable less than seemed probable two or three months ago, the June figures showing a decided improvement over the earlier months.

For the six months there were 22,365 deeds filed for record, with a total consideration of $30,872,262, as compared with 26,386 and total considerations of $49,126,921 for the corresponding period of 1917. This is a loss of 4,021 in number and $18,253,750 in considerations. The June figures are 3,380, with total considerations of $4,833,907, as against 4,077 and total considerations of $5,960,216, a loss in number of 197 and in considerations $1,126,309.

Torrens Deeds Less.

Under the Torrens system there were 2,039 deeds filed for record, with total considerations of $1,702,076, for the first half of the present year, as against 2,573, with total considerations for $2,586,895, for the corresponding period of 1917, a loss of 534 in number and $884,729 in considerations.

Applications for initial registration show a large falling off, the number being 271 for the present year, as against 517 for the same period in 1917.

Building Falls Off 60 Per Cent.

Building Commissioner Henry Bostrom, in his report of building operations for the first half of the year, which shows a falling off of about 60 per cent, as compared with the same period in 1917, takes issue with the many real estate men who have asserted that Chicago was overbuilt.

Mr. Bostrom says: "A careful survey in this direction will prove that the town is not overbuilt as to housing facilities for its population, but, on the other hand, there should be erected more buildings, and the ones that are untenanted on account of decay and bad housing conditions should be removed. The depreciation of buildings in general has been the cause of lowering the value of property. They should be removed and replaced by newer and more modern structures. The same applies to manufacturing plants."

Oakwood Boulevard Sale.

The market happenings of the day were of a rather unimportant character, including several sales of medium priced apartment and residence property. The four story eight apartment building of seven rooms at 717-19 Oakwood boulevard, lot 50x150 feet, having a gross annual rental of about $5,000, has been sold by Searle S. Barnett to A. A. Raisler of Appleton, Wis., for a reported consideration of $44,000, subject to an incumbrance of $27,000, the buyer giving in exchange a forty-five room hotel at Appleton, known as the Briggs hotel. George W. Stewart represented both parties.

The apartment property at the southeast corner of Fifty-fourth street and Harper avenue, a twelve flat building on 50x125 feet of ground, has been sold by Carrie R. Taylor to John C. O'Brien for an indicated consideration of $46,000, subject to an incumbrance of $38,000. The building is about three years old and has a gross annual rental of about $7,500.

Ingleside Avenue Transfer.

Record was made of the transfer by John T. White to Sherman T. Cooper of the apartment property in Ingleside avenue, sixty-two feet north of Forty-eighth street, lot 61x95 feet, east front, for an indicated consideration of $33,000, subject to an incumbrance of $22,000.

The new residence in Forest avenue, Glencoe, just north of Maple Hill road, lot 105x225 feet, southwest front, a ten room and three bath colonial structure, just completed, has been sold by Gustav Lindahl to Augustus A. Allen for an indicated consideration of $20,075, subject to an incumbrance of $11,575.

ANOTHER PERSHING

Third Member of This Fighting Family Wins a Lieutenant's Commission at Newport News.

The Pershing family of the U. S. A. just naturally can't keep out of a good fight. Most distinguished, of course, is Gen. John J. Pershing, who is actively engaged in finishing off a little job which the Yanks have started in France.

Then there is Lieut. Frank Pershing, former University of Chicago football star, who occupies a more lowly position in Uncle Sam's military machine, but uncomplainingly "saws wood" in the ordnance department somewhere in France.

And now there is another Officer Pershing. He is James F. Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. James F. Pershing of the Chicago Beach hotel, and brother of Frank. Lieut. James F. Pershing Jr. was commissioned at the officers' training camp at Newport News, Va., last Thursday. He is 24 years old and enlisted eight months ago.

The residence property in Pratt boulevard, 300 feet east of Morton street, lot 100x187 feet, south front, with colonial dwelling, has been sold by Charles W. Moore to Josephine S. Dixon for a stated consideration of $23,000, subject to an incumbrance of $10,000.

Mrs. Bass Gives Trust Deed.

In connection with the purchase by Mrs. Clara F. Bass of the property at the southeast corner of North Michigan avenue and Lake street for $251,280, she has given a trust deed to the Chicago Title and Trust company securing a loan of $150,000, five years, at 5½ per cent.

The Hart Manufacturing company, manufacturers of surgical dressings, etc., has purchased the property at 1140-44 West Forty-seventh place, 50x125 feet, and have begun work on the construction of a two story building to cost about $15,000. Holton, Seelye & Co. are building and financing the project.

Stock Sale Brings Arrest Under Blue Sky Law

George Weiser, part owner of the Acme Auto Sheet Metal works, 923 West Washington street, was arrested last night on a charge of selling 1,000 shares of stock in the Liberty Silver company without a state license under the "blue sky" law. Harry A. Moskowitz, 206 West Superior street, alleges he paid Weiser $225 for the stock.

Weiser denied he violated the law. He was released on a $1,000 bond and will be arraigned this morning.

Mrs. Kratzert Given $750 in Heart Balm Verdict

Despite the assertions of Frederick P. McNaughton, 2467 Geneva terrace, that he had told Mrs. Marie Kratzert and her friends that he was not matrimonially inclined, a jury before Judge Pam in the Superior court yesterday morning awarded her $750 for his breach of promise to marry her. Mrs. Kratzert, who lives at 600 York place, sought $25,000 damages.

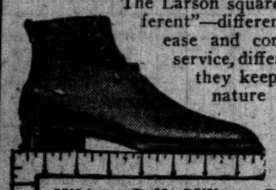

Aldermen to Get $87,500 in Back Pay on July 20

An $87,500 aldermanic "pot" will be divided on July 20. The city council has ordered the money paid. This represents the difference between $3,000 and $3,500 a year as aldermanic pay per year. The council recently appropriated the amount to pay the salary increase which was authorized in 1916.

POLITICAL EARS COCKED TO HEAR FORD BLOWOUT

Wiseacres Figure He Will Quit the Senate Race; Many Back Osborn.

BY ARTHUR M. EVANS.

Grand Rapids, Mich., July 12.—[Special.]—This is the home of Senator William Alden Smith and the great doubt. Incredulity is the Grand Rapids pose. A strong disbelief that Henry Ford will stick in the fight is echoed from many directions. The Smith men in particular have an abiding conviction that the flivver king will climb out of the trenches before primary day, Aug. 27. But they have no documents to travel on; no more papers, in fact, than had Mme. Schwimmer, promoter of the peace ship enterprise.

They base their conjectures upon the fact that Ford has government contracts. To become senator, they point out, he would have to turn the contracts over to somebody else.

This argument, in fact, was sprung by James Couzens, who recently said he himself could not run for senator because his interest in the Ford plant made him ineligible. Couzens is going to run for mayor of Detroit, and his statement on the senatorship was taken as an effort to discourage Ford's candidacy.

Want Smith in Race.

Senator Smith's friends are trying to pull him into the race. Long ago he avowed that wild flivvers could not drag him into the going. Since then he has been off again, on again, off again. His footwork would make Charlie Chaplain green-eyed.

Just now Smith's boosters are positive he will be on again before the filings close, and they argue that if Smith does run it will mean that Ford will not. They say that Smith and Ford are too good friends to let a little thing like the senatorship come between them, and to back this up they remark that Ford once gave Smith an automobile as a token of esteem.

Vice President Marshall passed through the city a few night ago, and said it was too bad Senator Smith had not come out for reelection, as he had been a consistent supporter of President Wilson's war policies, and the Smith men are pinning quite a nosegay of hopes on this.

Grand Rapids Skeptics' Home.

All of which explains why Grand Rapids seems to be largely inhabited by a race of skeptics, and why T. R., if he heads this way, may discover the headwaters of the River of Doubt are in Michigan instead of South America. Yes, indeed, to use one of Senator Smith's mots, "the eye of vox populi" has an incredulous squint here.

As to how the situation might be affected if Senator Smith enters the race, the politicians are all at sea. If Ford should not run, they think Smith would cut into Truman H. Newberry's preserves more than into those of Chase S. Osborn, as Smith would pull from the standpat group. If Ford should stick, they figure Smith might injure both Newberry and Osborn more than Ford.

Smith Supporters Grow Tired.

Meanwhile former Gov. Osborn and Mr. Newberry are both cutting into Grand Rapids. Many of Smith's friends have become tired waiting and have taken him at his word when he said he would not run. The old line organization men in general are with Newberry, but the younger set in politics and many of the old timers are organizing for Osborn.

Among the Osborn boosters is Fred A. Maynard, former attorney general of Michigan and for fourteen years special counsel of the department of justice at Washington, in which capacity he successfully prosecuted important land fraud cases in the west.

"Chase Osborn is the Roosevelt type, and to elect him would be like sending another Zach Chandler to the senate from Michigan," Mr. Maynard said. "He would shine from the start. Like Roosevelt, he sometimes talks too much, but it's only noise and fustian. Intellectually he is sound, and, like Roosevelt, he is never wrong when it comes to making a decision. He has been in advance of his times.

"I doubt if there is a man in the senate today who has the encyclopedic knowledge that Osborn possesses.

"Mr. Maybury is an unknown in Michigan.

"If Mr. Ford were elected it would cause two vacancies—one vacancy in the industrial world and one vacancy in the senate. He is a mechanical genius, a wizard at industrial organization, but he has not the equipment for the senate."

CANDIDATES FOR LEGISLATURE IN RUSH TO FILE

Today Petitions Will Flood Secretary of State and the County Clerk.

The greatest field of candidates for the Illinois legislature—in point of numbers—will start tomorrow at Springfield for the house of representatives. In one district, the Fourth, known as the stockyards territory, there will be at least twenty-five Democratic primary aspirants who will file petitions at Springfield this morning.

The early morning mail delivered to the secretary of State in Springfield and to the county clerk in Chicago will carry the petitions for nominations that are to have the first consideration. Secretary of State Emmerson and County Clerk Sweitzer have issued formal notice that petitions that were placed in the mails in time for first delivery with the regular mail this morning shall have the first consideration.

Brundage Men Forehanded.

The petition for candidates for state, congressional, and legislative offices who are allied with the Brundage neutrals went to Springfield in the custody of Emil J. Wenstlaff, assistant secretary of the Republican county committee, with the arrangement that they were to be placed in the mails at Springfield at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon. John F. O'Malley took down to the state capital the petitions of the Democratic candidates for these offices, with the same purpose in view.

Because of the wet and dry fight for control of the two branches of the legislature the drys are concentrating particularly upon downstate district candidates for the house. The single issue, so far as the drys are concerned, is ratification of the prohibition amendment to the federal constitution.

Sullivan's Men at Top.

In the absence of a filing of an anti-Sullivan Democratic county slate, it seems to be a foregone conclusion that the Sullivan regulars will have first place for every office.

At the Hotel Morrison headquarters of the anti-Sullivan Democrats it was stated that no slate has been prepared, and the condition of affairs seems to exist, as it has all through the week, that nothing is to be decided until after the arrival of Senator Lewis and former Mayor Harrison. Both may get to Chicago today. State's Attorney Hoyne said that Monday is to be the earliest that a conclusion is likely to be reached.

SHRAPNEL

A mock drumhead court martial will be the feature of the day at the junior jackies' picnic today at Riverview park. Between 3,000 and 4,000 of the juvenile jack tars, with their mothers, fathers, and big brothers and sisters, are expected. The jackies' band from the Great Lakes will play. There will be dancing, races, a baseball game, and other amusements.

Military organizations, formed or in process of formation, which desire recognition as units of the State Council of Defense Volunteer Training corps must first agree to enter the reserve militia when qualified. This was determined yesterday by formal resolution of the State Council of Defense. There are about seventy such units.

Dr. Albert Edward Halstead, former chief surgeon at St. Luke's hospital, is now a lieutenant colonel in the national army. Word was received in Chicago yesterday of his arrival in France, also that he had been made director of the U. S. A. base hospital 53.

An appeal for engineers of inventive ability, who have had experience in designing small parts, has been made by J. A. Patterson, in charge of the division of engineering and education of the United States employment agency. The engineers are wanted for the purpose of perfecting a device for war uses.

Open house for the jackies and soldiers is to be a regular Sunday afternoon affair for homes in Glencoe with the organization of the Glencoe committee of the war recreation board. The Glencoe citizens are planning to take charge of the entertainment at Ravinia park for the men in uniform on Aug. 3 and 4.

STOCKHOLDERS IN MAIL ORDER CO. ASK RECEIVER

Say Cash Balance of "$5,000,000" Concern Is $25.

Buyers of stock in the Riley-Schubert-Grossman company, so-called mail order house, a "$5,000,000 concern," according to its own stock books, came into federal court yesterday with a bankruptcy petition and a tale of woe. It is alleged the company reaped money by sales like this:

Preferred stock	$1,000,000
Common stock	200,000
Profit sharing certificates	225,000
Goods sold but not delivered	15,000
Total	$1,440,000

With this very nice showing of money received, it is alleged the company is in financial straits, having on hand in cash the modest little sum of $25. It was admitted, however, that there are accounts receivable totaling $125 and merchandise worth perhaps $1,000.

Some Liabilities.

However, the complaint points out, this does not tell the story. Listed as on the wrong side of the ledger are these liabilities:

Profit sharing certificates	$15,000
Printing, stationery, etc.	50,000
Contractors and building material	8,000
Due stockholders on questioned contracts	3,500
Total liabilities	$76,500

But even this is not all the wail of the stockholders. It is alleged that the company has been doing a business of about $1,000 a month while losing $4,000 a month.

Judge Landis, after hearing a little of the complaint yesterday, set the hearing for receivership over to July 15. Attorney H. M. Ashton, representing Charles C. Yager, Katherine Losey, Margaret Doherty, and other stockholders, charged before Judge Landis that the "Schubert" in the firm is Miss Alice Schubert, a sister in law of Grossman.

Says Concern's Solvent.

Julius N. Heldman, attorney for the Riley-Schubert-Grossman company, stated last night that the application for involuntary bankruptcy and plea for a receivership was the result of a plot by disgruntled stockholders.

RICHBERG STAYS IN GAS FIGHT, PAY OR DELAY

Says He Won't Surrender Litigation Control to the City Administration.

A meeting of the city council committee on gas litigation will be held this afternoon to frame a request on Mayor Thompson that he order his appointees to cease holding up payrolls for attorneys, experts, engineers, and accountants in the city's fight to recover for consumers an alleged overcharge of $10,000,000 from the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company.

Donald R. Richberg, special counsel for the city in the gas litigation matter, declared he would not resign and thus give the administration control of the gas rate situation. He charged that the administration would like to have him resign, but that he would remain "on the job" no matter how long his salary was withheld.

Ettelson Still Balks.

Corporation Counsel Ettelson said he would not approve vouchers for payments to the attorneys or to accountants. He said he would approve the vouchers of E. W. Bemis, the city's public utility expert, and for engineers, but not accountants and special attorneys.

The mayor undoubtedly will act on the advice he receives from the law department. This unless Corporation Counsel Ettelson changes his mind will leave the matter exactly as it now is, no pay for the special attorneys and some of the accountants.

Committee May Resign.

If the mayor does not recede from the stand taken by the law department, it is considered likely that the gas litigation committee will resign and explain that it was helpless because the administration held up the pay rolls.

We close Saturdays during July and August at 6 P. M.

YANKEE FARMER TO STRIKE HARD WALLOP AT HUN

Sensation Expected in Every Country Now at War.

BY HENRY M. HYDE.

Quite without his knowledge, the American farmer is about to strike a powerful and direct blow in the war against Germany. How this blow is to be struck may not be stated now. It will be a vital part of the allied offensive. It may fall on the battle front in Europe within the next six weeks. And it is expected to be potent. It will create a sensation in every country at war. In the central empires the sensation will be one of rage and the beginnings of despair.

Meanwhile one who has just traveled half across the continent may say that never has he seen anything like the crops which the American farmer has made and is in the process of making. To ride through Ohio and Indiana, for instance, is to travel through a solid stretch of farming land almost every visible inch of which has been cultivated to the limit.

Crops Far as Eye Can Reach.

For hundreds of miles one looks out on either hand at grain and corn and hay fields running right up to the railroad right of way and off as far as the horizon. And the crops are magnificent. No turn of the weather can now hurt the wheat, for that is already in the shock, if it has been stacked ready for the thrasher.

One would say that twice as much wheat has been grown in this district as ever before. The tall, heavy shocks stand close together over the great yellow stubble fields, promising plenty of white flour next winter for our armies in Europe, for the half million men in the navy, for the people of our allies, and, last of all, for domestic consumption, with such reasonable restrictions as Mr. Hoover may see fit to ask.

Timothy Ready for Mower.

The clover hay—and the crop was never taller or thicker—is already cut and in the barn or stack. The timothy is ready for the mower, and one saw at several points in Ohio mowing machines at work, driven by small girls who looked to be not more than 13 or 14 years old. Not only has the middle western farmer planted and raised a great crop, but he and all the members of his family are hard to work to harvest it.

Vast quantities of oats, just beginning to turn yellow and standing thick and tall in the waving fields, will be ready to harvest within a week or two. In some places the binders were already busy, and one saw again women doing the heavy work of driving and guiding the machines, while men followed to stack the shocks.

Where wheat or oats or hay had not been grown, corn was planted, and the yellow harvest fields were varied by wide stretches of green, where the maize plants already had grown so tall that it was only possible to cultivate them with a single horse plow.

Bumper Crop Guaranteed.

In some limited districts there apparently had been drought, and the lower leaves of the corn plant had grown brown on the stalk. But in most of the country traveled the corn fields showed the rich dark green color which is the delight of the farmer's eye, and which guarantees—given decent weather conditions—a bumper crop this fall.

The grain and hay which thrives on cool, damp weather is now practically out of the way. To mature the corn the country needs more rain and then hot sunshine. So patriotic citizens will find no fault for complaint if the weather man promises showers, to be followed by hot weather.

That such evidences of tremendous crops are not confined to the middle west is proven by the testimony of men who have traveled over the rest of the country. I talked in Washington with a veteran observer who had just returned from a trip which carried him to Texas and through all of the great granger states north and east of the Lone Star. The long and terrible drought in Texas has been broken. In most parts of the state fine rains have fallen.

Calls Crops Wonderful.

The crops, he says with lyrical enthusiasm, are wonderful. Himself a Texan, he declares that down in his native state they are thrashing out more than thirty bushels of wheat to the acre. He makes similar reports of those parts of Oklahoma, Kansas, and Nebraska through which he has journeyed.

"I don't need even to look at the government crop reports," he says. "I have seen with my own eyes such crops growing and already in the barns and bins as I never saw before."

From the south comes the same story. In Virginia, for instance, tens of thousands of acres have been planted to wheat which have been idle for years. The crop is good. The thrashing machine will have its busiest season this year in the Old Dominion.

Hoover has placarded the country with posters announcing that "Food Will Win the War." It will not be the fault of the American farmer if this year does not make the prediction come True.

Police Warn Against Fake Federal Agent

A general warning has been sent out by the police to beware of a man about 30 years old who represents himself as a government employé in search of rooms for munition workers.

INTO ACTION

First Woman Physician to Join U. S. Forces in France Writes of Conditions.

DR. FRANCES E. HAINES.

"Safe in France" was the word yesterday from the first woman physician to join the expeditionary forces. She is Dr. Frances E. Haines, formerly anesthetist at the Presbyterian hospital.

In a letter to her mother, Mrs. Julia E. Haines, 1618 West Adams street, Dr. Haines described her successful trip and commented upon conditions as she found them. She declared that the American soldiers are very numerous and very welcome. Women, she said, are better treated in England and France than in Germany, but they are infinitely better off under the Stars and Stripes.

Dr. Haines' uniform was designed by herself, at the request of Surgeon General Gorgas, who declared her choice should be the standard for women physicians who follow her overseas.

JOS. E. BOURGET TO BE ORGANIST AT HOLY NAME

The Rev. Joseph E. Bourget, at present chaplain of St. Bernard's hospital, 6337 Harvard avenue, has been appointed by Archbishop George W. Mundelein as the successor to the interned Hans Merx, as organist of the Holy Name cathedral and musical director of the Chicago archdiocese.

THE REV. JOSEPH E. BOURGET.

Father Bourget, although not actively engaged in those lines for about twelve years, is an experienced musician. He was born of French parentage in Levis, Canada, opposite Quebec, and was graduated from the Dominion conservatory, at Quebec, and later studied in Europe and under Prof. William Middelschulte of Chicago. From 1900 to 1903 he was organist of the cathedral at Chicoutimi, Canada. From that time until 1916 he was pastor at Irwin, Ill., and professor of music at St. Viator's college, nearby at Kankakee. A year ago he was forced to travel for his health, and made a tour around the world. Since his return he has been at the hospital. Father Bourget plans many new changes in the work of the musical director after he begins his duties Sept. 1.

Trade Wastes Cause of Death of Fish in Lake

Trade wastes from munition plants are responsible for the killing of fish in the lake, Health Commissioner Robertson declared yesterday. Many complaints have been received about the fishy taste and odor of the water. Thousands of dead fish have been washed up on the shore in the last few days.

BROTHER TO JOIN SLAYER IN JAIL FOR NEW KILLING

'Puggy' Anderson Admits Shooting Saloon Man on July 4.

Three weeks after his brother, Dennis Anderson, a condemned murderer, was saved from the gallows by a governor's reprieve, John Anderson, 17 years old, according to a confession made to the police last night, shot and killed a saloonkeeper in a holdup.

Today he will join his brother in the county jail.

The slaying of Edward Eggert, a saloonkeeper at 1932 West Sixty-third street, is the crime which the police say John Anderson alias "Puggy," has confessed. Rudolph Carr, a pal, he says, was with him. Both fired several shots at the saloonkeeper, according to John. Anderson seemed anxious to take the responsibility of being the one who fired the fatal shot.

Confession Implicates Carr.

John's confession implicates Carr, who, the police say, was convicted of killing a druggist at Garfield boulevard and Ashland avenue several years ago in a holdup. The police say Carr served nearly five years in the Pontiac reformatory. He was paroled a few months ago.

The killing of Eggert occurred shortly after midnight on the morning of July 4. Eggert was alone in his saloon when Anderson and Carr entered. Anderson ordered "two beers." He passed on through the saloon to a rear room.

On his return to the bar he had his revolver trained on the saloonkeeper. Eggert dropped the two glasses of beer and rushed toward Anderson. As he did so the holdup man fired, he says.

Anderson advanced toward the saloonkeeper, emptying his gun.

Two Robbers Escape.

Both robbers fled.

Last Wednesday Sergt. Michael Grady of the South Wabash avenue station arrested three men on suspicion that they were freight car thieves. One of them sent for Grady on Thursday and told him of a conversation he overheard in a saloon in relation to the Eggert murder. He said he heard the names of "Puggy" Anderson, "Ruddy" Carr, and Harry Miller mentioned as the ones who committed the murder.

Sergt. Grady arrested Anderson at 6318 Langley avenue, where he roomed. Carr and Miller were arrested by Sergts. Hart and Clark of the Englewood station, in which district the saloonkeeper was killed.

Anderson, according to Sergt. Grady, broke down and confessed after hours of stolid indifference.

Brother Killed Policeman.

Dennis Anderson was convicted of the slaying of Patrick J. Lavin, Oct. 29, 1917. Lavin was lieutenant of the special police service of the Chicago Junction railway. Anderson was a watchman under Lavin, whose duties were to prevent burglaries of freight cars in the yards.

On the night of the killing Lavin found Anderson breaking into a car. He arrested his assistant and took him to a switch shanty to telephone the police. While using the telephone Anderson snatched Lavin's revolver and shot him.

Doctor Shot in Bandit Row Asks $25,000 from the City

Dr. J. H. Hancock, 6200 Washington boulevard, appeared before the council finance committee yesterday to urge that a claim he has against the city for $25,000 be allowed.

Last fall, during a revolver battle between police and bandits at Crawford avenue and Congress street, the physician was accidentally shot in the left eye by a policeman and intentionally shot in the right arm by one of the bandits. The bandit, pursued by police, jumped on the running board of the physician's automobile and ordered him to "speed up."

The physician said he is rapidly going blind. He said the sight of his left eye is gone, and the other is becoming weaker. The physician has no legal claim against the city, but can collect $5,000 under a state law. The committee took the matter under advisement.

TEACHING FRIEND WIFE TO PLAY

EXPERT STUDIES KING WILL BUT NEVER READS IT

Chirographist Incurious as to Its Provisions.

How coldly incurious is the scientific examination of legal documents by chirographic experts was disclosed before Probate Judge Horner yesterday by Dr. E. B. Ewell, the first authority on handwriting to declare genuine the disputed "second will" of the late James C. King, disposing of an estate estimated at approximately $3,000,000.

Dr. Ewell asserted that, although he had examined the signatures to the alleged will, studied the typing of the document itself, and in other ways investigated its authenticity, he had never read the contents.

"No, sir," he replied to a question by Attorney Reichmann, for the Northern Trust company, "I never read the documents submitted to me. I don't want to know what they contain."

"You examined the typing on this?"

"Yes, but I took pains to read the characters backwards, so that I wouldn't know what was in it," replied the incurious doctor.

Another Expert Testifies.

William Pengally, another handwriting expert, declared that in his opinion the signatures to the alleged will are genuine.

H. C. Leidemann of Oak Park gave attorneys for Mrs. Melvin a jolt when he was put on the stand by them to identify the signature of Dr. Addison S. Melvin and refused to do so.

"Somebody else might have written it," he asserted.

"Didn't you tell me in Oak Park that the signature was genuine?" demanded Attorney Woods. Leidemann shook his head.

"Didn't you write me a letter saying you did not wish to testify in this case?" asked the attorney. Leidemann replied affirmatively.

Bank Employé Excused.

"And you are now employed by a bank?"

"Yes."

"That's all."

Attorneys Reichmann and Keehn left last night for St. Louis to take the testimony of Gus Meachim, another handwriting expert.

Lieut. Tobin's associate in the exploit was Eugene Blanchard Jones, son of Ira A. Jones of Wilmette.

WOMAN SPEAKS 14 LANGUAGES IN SLACKER INQUIRY

Mrs. Rose Reiter, government interpreter, spoke thirteen languages yesterday morning and fourteen last night. Mrs. Reiter, who has an almost uncanny gift of tongues, has for a long time been the official pinch hitter when an interpreter was badly needed at the federal building.

MRS. ROSE REITER.

Yesterday some thousand or more men from many lands passed through the federal building mill in course of weeding out slackers taken in recent raids. Mrs. Reiter was translating for a young man. He finally said, "I was born in Bulgaria and talk no language but Bulgarian."

"Why, I never learned Bulgarian," gasped Mrs. Reiter. Yet she had been translating satisfactorily. She accounts for it by the fact that she understands so many languages of middle Europe that another of close relationship comes almost automatically. Mrs. Reiter was born in Paris.

She is considered proficient in French, English, German, Hungarian, Bohemian, Polish, Slovak, Dalmatian, Croatian, Russian, Lithuanian, Ukrainian, and Holland Dutch. One day not long ago, after she had interpreted six or eight languages consecutively, Judge Landis leaned over his bench and asked if she knew all the languages there are.

BOY OF 9 ADMITS HE STOLE PURSE.

Richard Sherlack, 9 years old, of 726 Fair place, after his arrest on complaint of Miss Anna Travnak of 757 Uhland street, admitted he had snatched her purse, containing $0.70, and buried it in a vacant lot. He was held for hearing.

EMERSON GETS 30 YEARS FOR TIERNEY MURDER

Changes Plea to Guilty When Confession Is Admitted.

When Judge Jacob Hopkins in the Criminal court yesterday ruled that Harry Emerson's confession to complicity in the murder of Dennis Tierney and the robbery of $2,700 from the Randolph street station of the Illinois Central railroad on Feb. 2, was admissible, Emerson forthwith changed his plea of "not guilty" to "guilty" and took a sentence of thirty years in the penitentiary.

Emerson had been on trial before Judge Hopkins for several days. The confession that caused him to change his plea in the midst of the trial was one he made to the state's attorney when he was arrested some months ago. Emerson's attorney, W. W. O'Brien, fought hard to keep the confession out of the evidence.

Feared Death Penalty.

The admission of the confession so strengthened the state's case that Emerson apparently feared the death penalty. Assistant State's Attorneys Prystalski and Stanton contended that the confession was voluntarily made and that he was given no promises for making it, and testimony to that effect was introduced.

Miss Florence Sullivan, a daughter of Mrs. Tillie Sullivan, 4140 West Monroe street, from whose home the robbers left to commit the robbery and murder on the night of Feb. 2, testified regarding money gifts Emerson gave her after the robbery and told how he displayed a "large roll of bills."

One of Four in Crime.

Emerson was one of four men who committed the robbery. According to his confession he was not the man who fired the shot that killed Tierney, from whom the money was taken in a holdup early in the evening, but he stated the shooting of Tierney was done by George Raymond, who several days after the robbery was shot and killed in a sensational pistol duel with the police on the west side near the Sullivan home. Thomas O'Connor and James Howard, the other two men named in Emerson's confession, have never been apprehended.

CHILDREN WATCH CIRCUS 'HIT TOWN'

Chicago children found the real circus flavor yesterday when they saw the five special trains of the Barnum & Bailey show empty their gorgeous loads upon the lot at White City and beheld the "big top" going up for the first performances. Two shows were given yesterday, two more will be given today, and two more tomorrow. Today there will be a real circus parade, such as Chicago children seldom see, in the Sixty-third street region.

She Gets $1,125 in $25,000 Breach of Promise Suit

Instead of $11,000, according to reports Wednesday night, Mrs. Mata Marie Weber was allowed only $1,125 by a jury in her suit for $25,000 damages against Henry G. Weber of Rogers Park, real estate owner. Mrs. Weber had sued on a charge of breach of promise to marry, when Weber married another woman after he learned his marriage to the plaintiff was illegal because it had been performed shortly after she had obtained a divorce.

Morphine in powdered form, found under a postage stamp on a letter, resulted yesterday in the holding of Belle Blue, a Negress, 20 East Thirty-eighth street, for trial under $2,000 bond before Lewis F. TRACTION ACTION DIGS ITSELF IN FOR THE SUMMER Vacations of Aldermen Stall Preparation of Ordinance.

Traction legislation has struck a snag and there was every indication yesterday that the ordinances for unification of the surface and elevated lines and a subway system would be laid on the shelf until autumn.

There were several reasons advanced for this. One was that the ordinance cannot be whipped into shape now, and that it will be impossible to hold the city council away from its summer vacation any longer.

Assuming that action is to be postponed, the traction question cannot be passed on by the voters at the November election, as the traction scheme contemplated.

A meeting of the local transportation committee was scheduled yesterday to consider the ordinance, but the lack of a quorum prevented this. Ald. H. D. Capitain, chairman of the committee, said he would call another meeting Monday, but was not hopeful that the proposed ordinance would be ready in time to receive council consideration before the adjournment.

Fisher Opposes Provisions.

Another reason given for the abandonment of the proposed ordinance now was that Walter L. Fisher, the city's special attorney in traction affairs, is openly opposed to most of the provisions of the measure.

Mr. Fisher proposed that the "trustee plan" be adopted and made a part of the ordinance. The subcommittee which had charge of the negotiations rejected this and approved a recommendation of the Chicago traction and subway commission that a board of control be created by the city council to have charge of the unified system for the city.

Mr. Fisher also opposed the rate of return allowed in the ordinance. The commission recommended that the companies be allowed a return of 6 per cent on their valuation, as fixed by the commission and city ordinances, plus 45 per cent of the net receipts, which should never fall below 1 per cent of the gross receipts. The commission took no account of the present outstanding securities of the traction companies. It was estimated that the commission's return would be an average of 6.95 per cent per year.

Lean and Fat Years.

The subcommittee recommended and approved a return of 6 per cent on the valuation, plus 1-35 of 1 per cent, if earned. This additional return was so arranged that if not earned in a "lean" year it could be made up in any succeeding "fat" year, a virtual guarantee of 6.35 on the valuation.

The traction companies asked for the 6 per cent, plus 1½ per cent of the gross, but finally agreed to accept the 6.35 recommended by the subcommittee with the understanding that the board of control would have the authority to raise the 5 cent fare or the 2 cent proposed charge for transfers between the surface lines and the rapid transit system to make up the return.

Mr. Fisher declared against the rate of return matter. He said the subcommittee's recommendation was a virtual "rakeoff" of from $2,000,000 to $2,500,000 a year for the traction companies. He said the "trustee plan" was the only scheme not against public policy. He said it would provide municipal operation of the unified system and, in time, municipal ownership, as well as "service at cost."

Considered "Too Utopian."

Officials of the traction companies would not seriously consider the "trustee plan," even when Mr. Fisher offered his resignation to the transportation committee. Even the members of the committee said Mr. Fisher's plan was "too utopian" for serious consideration.

One of the problems the subcommittee had to deal with was that nothing could be done without the consent of the traction companies. The subcommittee could not draw up an ordinance which did not previously meet with the approval of the traction heads, as the surface car line franchises have nine years more to run and the elevated lines about twenty-seven years.

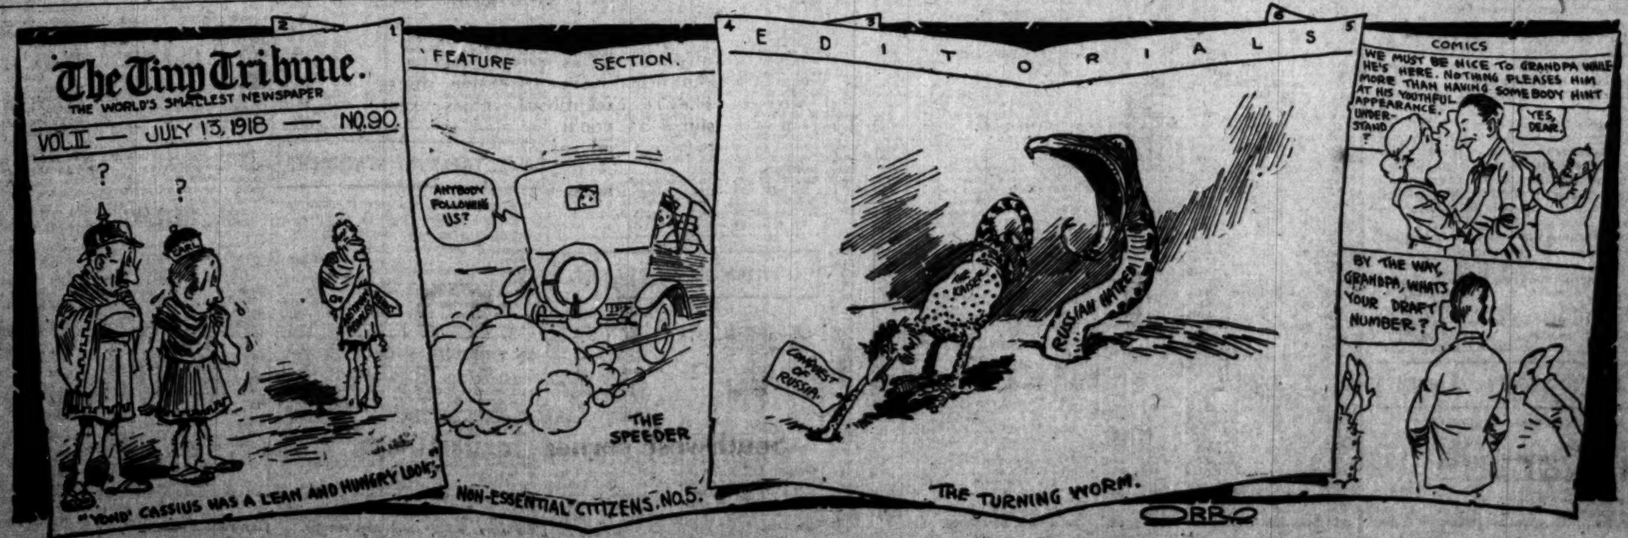

The ordinance, as laid out by the subcommittee, provided for an extensive traction betterment program. It provided for the expenditure of approximately $250,000,000 for subways and extensions of the surface and elevated systems during the proposed thirty year life of the franchise. To carry out the provisions of the ordinance it would be necessary to get enabling acts from the legislature, and it was proposed to do this at the legislature's next session and after the voters had acted on the ordinance in November.

Report Cost $250,000.

William Barclay Parsons, Robert Ridgway, and Bion J. Arnold were the members of the Chicago traction and subway commission which drew up a report on the city's traction needs, which the subcommittee closely followed. The report cost upward of $250,000. Mr. Fisher acted as attorney for the commission, but recently stated that he was consulted only on legal matters.

Arrested on Nurse's Charge After Long Hunt

John H. Joice of 4423 Magnolia avenue, accused of selling to Miss Margaret Smith, a nurse in the isolation hospital, a fake mortgage for $1,000, was arrested yesterday after a search leading several times across the continent.

CHICAGO FEARS BLOW AT ITS EXPORT TRADE

Will Protest to McAdoo Plan to Stop Through Bills of Lading.

BY GLENN GRISWOLD.

The order of the railroad administration discontinuing after Sept. 30 the issuance by railroads of through export bills of lading may have the effect of crippling the export business of Chicago and interior centers and to destroy the foreign business built up by Chicago banks, according to foreign trade and banking experts, who will protest to Mr. McAdoo.

H. G. P. Deans, vice president of the Merchants' Loan and Trust company and manager of the bank's foreign department, has written letters to 200 exporters in Chicago territory outlining the situation. Scores of replies have been made by business men, who will coöperate in seeking a change in the policy of the railroad administration.

Eastern Competitor Has Advantage.

The order means that instead of receiving for his goods shipped a bankable through bill of lading carrying title to the goods until they are delivered and paid for abroad, the shipper receives only a domestic bill of lading guaranteeing their delivery at seaboard. His competitor located at seaboard can obtain, immediately, a bankable bill of lading which can be forwarded to the foreign port to be in the hands of the buyer when the goods arrive.

The Chicago exporter must wait until the goods are received by the steamship company and have the steamship bill of lading returned to him and then sent by his bank back to the buyer's bank for collection, which means that the document bearing title to the goods does not reach the buyer until his purchases have been held up in customs compound for some time.

The only alternative for the interior shipper is to maintain agents and bankers in each port through which he might ship. This process is so costly as to handicap the large exporter and eliminate the small one operating on limited capital.

Southerner Has Remedy.

Mr. Deans in his letter says in part:

"A southern house has written me that in their opinion the matter might be simplified if the steamship lines would immediately issue ocean bills of lading in exchange for domestic bills of lading before the arrival of the shipment at the port, but I doubt if the steamship lines would consent to such a practice, and if they did the bills of lading would probably bear a clause relieving the steamship company of responsibility until the shipment had actually come into their possession.

"Bills of lading issued with such a clause could not be readily negotiated at the bank, and it has to be remembered that most foreign credits opened in favor of American exporting houses specifically require that drafts be accompanied by through bills of lading.

Sees Hardship to Chicago.

"To my mind the new order, if it becomes effective, will prove a great hardship to Chicago and other interior cities.

"Chicago exporters have been doing a fine Asiatic business for some time past. That business has been built up through export bills of lading issued here and the foreign merchant has become accustomed to those export bills of lading and to the Chicago way of doing business. If the general practice of issuing through export bills of lading is discontinued and the American shipper is required to get a steamship bill of lading at the port, his business relations with his foreign customers are likely to be much disturbed, for no foreign buyer likes to see his goods lie for thirty days or more in the customs compound at any Asiatic port because he is unable to get delivery through the nonarrival of the shipping documents, something that is very likely to occur if this new regulation goes into effect."

The matter will be brought to the attention of the Chicago Association of Commerce and the Illinois Manufacturers' association today.

Local Banks See No Sign of Easier Money

Local banking interests do not find in their advices from country correspondents a suggestion of easier money conditions. Banks are taking note of the volume of subscriptions to treasury certificates which they are expected to make. They do not complain of conditions, but what they have to say suggests that consideration must be given by the government to the available amount of credit.

In Chicago the larger banks note the credit expansion of the members of this federal reserve district, the net being shown in bank notes to the amount of about one-quarter million dollars.

CHICAGO STOCK TRANSACTIONS

On the local stock exchange business was dull. Some activity developed in Union Carbide and Carbon. Friends of the stock talk of a further advance. The volume of the stock outstanding, however, is so large that the street is generally uncertain about the chance for a rise. Packing house shares were neglected. Other issues were devoid of interest.

ROADS FEAR LOSS OF THOUSANDS TO MUNITIONS JOBS

Labor Crisis Expected After Back Wages Are Paid.

The railroads fear the loss of thousands of employés and a threatening labor situation as soon as they have paid the five months' back pay due under the increases in wages ordered by the railroad administration. The roads are striving to perfect arrangements to meet the labor crisis before they have made payment and released the men.

A hasty survey made by operating officials indicates that employés numbered in the hundred thousands are waiting until they collect their back pay before quitting the carriers to go into munition factories and other places of employment paying much higher wages. The roads, even under the new scale of wages, cannot hope to compete in the labor market with war industries.

Equals Month's Pay.

The back pay for which the men are waiting is on the average equal to about a month's pay. For members of the brotherhoods it amounts to 30 to 35 per cent of their pay for five months and for unorganized workers the amount is 10 to 15 per cent.

The government is doing all it can to prevent an exodus of workers, but it is unable to forcibly keep them at work. All roads have been ordered to prevent the posting of bulletins on railroad property offering higher wages to railroad employés in war industries. There are about 75,000 railroad employés in Chicago affected by the situation.

Roads Short of Cash.

Chicago railroads are several million dollars short of the money needed to pay back wages due, which amounts to as much as $5,000,000 for individual roads. Committees representing the various brotherhoods are visiting railroad offices demanding the wages due. In the majority of cases the government has not disbursed sufficient funds to the carriers to enable the payments to be made.

A typical case is that of the Chicago and Alton. It owes its men $1,000,000 in back wages. Officials frankly tell the men that the payrolls are practically completed and the road is ready to make payment except that it has not sufficient money to meet the call.

TALK OF THE STREET

Stocks appear to have reached an equilibrium and are apparently waiting further developments, good or bad. With the outlook favorable it would not take much to put prices up, according to a large New York commission house. The latter continues: "Fears of a German drive are disappearing. It will doubtless come, but will find the allies ready. The latest suggestion of peace by the German chancellor sounds much like what we heard from that quarter before previous thrusts. Hence the disposition is to be cautious in buying stocks. The market is sold to a standstill. Few publicly held stocks have come out on the present market. Such sales as have been made are merely an outpouring of the speculative holdings."

The call money market was firm with rates holding at 6 per cent, the level at which money has been loaned during the last seven days. The heavy government withdrawals of tax money have proved a drain on the banks and for that reason credit has been harder to secure than at any time in several weeks. The money pool advanced substantial amounts in order that no considerable advance in rates should be experienced.

United Motor stocks have occasioned interest. They advanced 1¼ points. Chevrolet, after moving up 4 points, lost one-half of the improvement. Airplane stocks were quiet and unchanged.

Directors of the United States Steel corporation are scheduled to meet on July 30 to act on dividends and review the statement of earnings for the second quarter of the current calendar year. What action will be taken by the board in the matter of common stock dividend is regarded by Wall street as a guess. It is thought, however, that the corporation is prepared to make a liberal allowance for increased taxes and with this in view a falling off in earnings compared with the corresponding quarter in 1917 is not to be expected.

According to Wall street gossip, Southern Pacific stock is being bought on account of evidence that the Mexican situation is improving and will be certain to make larger the company's earnings yield from Mexican sources.

Warburg May Not Stay on Federal Reserve Board

Washington, D. C., July 12.—[Special.]—Paul M. Warburg, whose term as member of the federal reserve board expires on Aug. 10 next, probably will not be reappointed, according to information obtained in official circles today.

Friends of Mr. Warburg say that he will refuse a reappointment because he has decided to retire from public life. At his office, however, it was stated today that he is awaiting the pleasure of President Wilson and will consider it a duty to serve, if reappointed.

The belief that Mr. Warburg will not be reappointed is based upon a number of considerations, one of them being frequent differences of opinion between him and Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo. Moreover, there would be strong opposition in the senate to confirmation of the reappointment.

Mr. Warburg was born in Germany and was naturalized an American only a few years ago. One of his brothers is an officer of the Imperial bank of Germany. Another is in the German secret service, said to be stationed in Switzerland. Mr. Warburg himself was a confidant of Ambassador von Bernstorff.

HOWARD NATIONAL CLAIM DIRECTOR.

J. H. Howard, general claim agent for the Chicago and Alton, has been appointed national director of claims for the United States railways, with headquarters in Washington. This is a newly created position, made necessary by abolishment of railway litigation.

ATTITUDE OF SLACKER BANKS ANGERS TRAYLOR

Asks Why He Has to Be "Eternally Hounding" to Buy Notes.

M. A. Traylor, director of sales of United States treasury certificates for this district, fearing that a few banks may be forced to assume a harmful burden to make a success of the current flotation, issued an appeal yesterday, in which he asks why it should be necessary "for us to be eternally hounding bankers" in an effort to make them do their full patriotic duty in the matter of government financing.

He points out that the district is still short $25,000,000 of its quota of $105,000,000, and while subscription books do not close until July 16, it has been past experience that only small and scattered subscriptions are received after the first two or three days of sale.

Many Large Banks Slackers.

Many large banks have subscribed nothing and others have taken 1 per cent of the amount of their resources instead of 2½ per cent, which is their quota. Mr. Traylor says results to date are discouraging in many ways and warns bankers of the consequences to the war finance program if the present attitude of many of them is maintained.

He says: "Every bank in the district should, and, in fact, we believe does now, know what is expected of them. They understand that an offering of certificates will be made each alternate Tuesday; that the allotment to the Seventh district will be $105,000,000, and that each bank will be expected to subscribe approximately 2½ per cent of its resources to each offering.

Puzzled Over Attitude.

"All this simply means that the government needs the above amount of money at exactly and specifically the dates mentioned, and that it is depending upon the banks to produce precisely the amount requested and on the dates stated.

"With this knowledge we are puzzled to understand why it should be necessary for us to be eternally hounding bankers to send in their subscriptions and to make those subscriptions for the full amount of their quota.

"Always businesslike and prompt in all their transactions of an ordinary character, should they not be doubly keen and quick to do their part in matters of this character?"

MARSHALL FIELD REVIEW.

Marshall Field & Co., in their weekly view of the dry goods trade, say:

"Wholesale distribution of dry goods for the week is substantially ahead of shipments for the corresponding period a year ago. Road sales for immediate delivery show a good increase over those of last year, while sales for future delivery are slightly under the figures for 1917. Customers have visited the market in about the same numbers as in the same week a year ago. Collections are normal."

IN FOREIGN STOCK MARKETS.

LONDON, July 12.—The supply of money exceeded the demand on the market today. Discounts were steady.

On the stock exchange, as is usual at the last of the week, trading was quiet, but the tone was good. In practically all sections the price changes favored holders, notably in the case of oil shares and shipping, and industrial stocks. Banks, with the exception of Brazilians, were weak.

PARIS, July 12.—Trading was dull on the bourse today. Rentes, 61 francs 80 centimes. Exchange on London, 27 francs 16 centimes. Five per cent loan, 88 francs 45 centimes. The bourse will be closed next Monday.

STOCKS FIRM IN TYPICAL DULL SUMMER MARKET

Underlying Strength Shown in Most Issues.

[New York Times Financial Review.]

New York, July 12.—[Special.]—Typical midsummer conditions obtained on the stock exchange today, with long periods during the lunch hour when the ticker remained silent, but the market showed evidence of underlying strength, following the rather sharp declines which marked the previous session.

Most issues today were dull but firm; an exception was supplied by Reading, which ran second to Steel in point of activity and sold off at one time more than a full point from Thursday's closing price.

Steel opened with an overnight gain and did not sell within half a point of its low price of the preceding session. Total dealings on the stock exchange were less than half those of Thursday.

Public Won't Follow.

Such activity as has occasionally featured the stock market of late has resulted from professional operations, and these have grown smaller with the public persistently refusing to accept the lead supplied by the floor traders. The news has not been of a kind to stimulate speculation, and many traders have taken advantage of the quiet to get away for vacations.

The indications are that interest will not be revived until the present period of preparation on the western front has been terminated. It has been expected that the Germans would launch another great offensive attack before this, and most traders put themselves in a position to act on the news when it should come by getting out of their stocks. The feeling is still prevalent that a huge new offensive will be started by the enemy while weather conditions are favorable, but day after day goes by with the allies improving their position without an indication of the expected attack.

Street Watches Rails.

Although it has lost in railroad shares many speculative possibilities while the present system of control endures, Wall street watched attentively today for the news of meeting of railway executives and representatives of security holders with a view to discovering what further concessions the officials might obtain from the government before signing the long delayed contracts.

U. S. to Lend Denver and Salt Lake $1,300,000

Brighton, Colo., July 12.—The United States government is to lend the Denver and Salt Lake (Moffat) railroad $1,300,000, of which $1,000,000 will be used for improvements. The loan became possible today when Judge Harry S. Class of Brighton authorized the issuance of $1,300,000 worth of 6 per cent receiver's certificates maturing in two years.

MARINE SITUATION UNCHANGED.

After a special meeting of the directors of the International Mercantile Marine company, President P. S. Francis said there was no change in the situation as regarded the negotiations pending.

RAIL CHIEFS AND OWNERS AT ODDS OVER CONTRACT

Executives' Committee Calls Draft in Main Acceptable.

New York, July 12.—[Special.]—What was characterized by many of those present as the most remarkable meeting of executive officials and stockholders of American railroads ever held in the history of the United States took place here today for the purpose of discussing the terms of a tentative draft of a general form of contract submitted by representatives of the United States railroad administration.

Officials of approximately eighty railroads were present as members of the railway executives' advisory committee, which had called the meeting, while, on the other hand, representatives of the National Association of Owners of Railroad Securities, who had been invited to be present, spoke for the owners of some $18,000,000,000 worth or railroad securities.

"In the Main Acceptable."

At the end of a session lasting nearly four hours what appeared on the surface like a difference of opinion between the railway executives and the representatives of the security holders developed. On behalf of the railway executives' advisory committee Thomas De Witt Cuyler, the chairman, issued the following statement:

"Today's meeting was for the purpose of receiving the report of our counsel and of considering the government's proposed railroad contract draft dated July 5. The committee feels that the proposed contract is, in the main, acceptable. There are some points which the committee desires to discuss further with the government's representatives. These will be taken up as soon as practicable."

Call Draft Unacceptable.

On the other hand, the moment the meeting broke up S. Davies Warfield, president of the National Association of Owners of Railroad Securities, called the representatives of his association who had attended the meeting with him together in a corner of a room and in a few minutes drew up and passed the following resolution on behalf of the two special committees and the financial committee of the association, of which they formed a quorum:

"Resolved, That in the judgment of the committees representing the National Association of Owners of Railroad Securities, the tentative draft of contract of July 5, submitted by representatives of the government, is unacceptable in the particulars set forth in the letter of the committees of July 11, addressed to the chairman of the railway executives' advisory committee, and that the committees representing the association proceed by further negotiation and by appeal to the director general with the effort to secure the modifications therein described.

"Resolved, That to that end counsel for the committees are instructed to prepare as promptly as possible amendments covering the desired changes for the consideration of the committees.

"Resolved, That in making such efforts the committees coöperate with the railway executives' advisory committee."

More Apparent than Real.

It developed, however, from conversations with a number of representatives of both parties that the difference of opinion was more apparent than real, being, in fact, in large measure a matter of phraseology.

GRAIN ADVANCE MEETS SELLING FOR PROFITS

General Covering by the Shorts Brings Corn Bulge.

BY CHARLES D. MICHAELS.

Grains advanced to the highest of the season yesterday and met liberal selling for profits. Closing trades, while not at the best, were at gains of 2@2¼c on corn and ⅝@1⅛c on oats in Chicago. In the southwest gains on corn were 1⅞@3⅝c and on oats ⅝@1⅛c. Oats in Minneapolis closed ⅛@1⅛c higher and in Winnipeg 1⅛c higher for the day.

Provisions advanced and closed with gains of 5c on pork, 7½c on lard, and 5@10c on short ribs.

Corn in Rapid Bulge.

General covering by shorts, with numerous stop loss orders and light offerings, resulted in a bulge of 4⅛@5c in corn early. On the advance there was profit taking by the best buyers of late, and when the reports that President Wilson was to veto the agricultural appropriation bill became known some of the early buyers started to unload. The finish, while at good net gains, was well toward the bottom, with July at $1.61⅛, August at $1.61⅝, and September at $1.61.

Commission houses, headed by Lamson, Block-Maloney, and Ware & Leland, were buyers early, and turned sellers on the bulge. Riordon-Winsor, Bartlett-Frazier, Lamson, and Wagner were heavy sellers, generally regarded as taking profits on grain bought recently. Lamson and Wagner sold July, which went to a premium of ⅛c over August for the first time. There was also general profit taking by some of the leading local longs. The local element made strenuous efforts to bull the market after the reaction set in, with but poor success.

Sample values were strong and 5c higher early, but closed at the low point, with some sales 10c under the early high. The edge was off the demand at the last. Receipts were 255 cars.

Stop Loss Orders Bull Oats.

Numerous stop loss orders were uncovered in July oats at the start, and they advanced to 78½c, or 4c over Thursday's finish, before resting orders in the hands of commission houses checked the upturn. McKenna-Rodgers, King-Farnum, the Armour Grain company, and Ware & Leland were active buyers early, and found very little for sale until the price touched 78c. Lamson was a heavy seller on the bulge, and the close was within ⅝c of the bottom at 75⅝c.

Deferred deliveries were advanced with the July and in sympathy with corn, but rains in western Kansas and in western North Dakota and South Dakota, combined with the president's vetoing of the agricultural bill which contained the $2.40 government guaranteed minimum wheat price, led to considerable change in sentiment. August finished at 71⅝c and September at 70⅝c, both being about the inside figure of the day.

The most effective selling of the deferred deliveries was by Bartlett-Frazier, Logan & Bryan, Clement-Curtis, and Ware & Leland. Cash houses hedged against purchases to arrive, country offerings increasing on the early advance. Nothing was heard of seaboard demand, while domestic sales were 70,000 bu.

Flax Seed Drops Rapidly.

Rye offerings were small and in good demand, with prices 5c higher. No. 2 on spot sold at $1.85, and to arrive, five days' shipment, at $1.72. At the last $1.76 was bid for the same shipment, while $1.63 was offered for sixty days'. Milwaukee was 5c higher, and Minneapolis 2c higher. Receipts here were 1 car and in the northwest 3 cars.

Barley was stronger, due to the milling demand, and prices advanced 2@3c, with sales at $1.10@1.28. Minneapolis was up 2@5c. Receipts here were 4 cars and in the northwest 17 cars.

Flax seed broke badly as the result of rains where most needed, in the Dakotas and Canada. Duluth closed 18@20c lower; July, $4.40; October, $4.45. Winnipeg, 21⅛@22⅛c lower; July, $4.24½; October, $4.22½. The three leading markets had 13 cars.

Provisions Offerings Light.

Limited selling pressure, higher hogs and corn, combined with light receipts, were the basis for an advance in provisions, but best prices were not fully held at the last. Short ribs received the most attention, but the trade in all was not large.

Fresh meats were 1c higher. Cash business in meats was fair, and shipments were 2,864,000 lbs, against 3,033,000 lbs last year; of lard, they were 357,000 lbs, against 381,000 lbs last year. Sales of lard were 100,000 lbs regular at 15c under July. Leaf lard is up to $24.75. Deliveries for the day were 100,000 lbs each of lard and ribs on July trades. Hogs closed 15@25c higher, with receipts more than last year's. Prices follow:

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

ACTION of President Wilson in vetoing the $2.40 wheat bill was as a majority of the grain trade expected. All arrangements had been made for a basis of $2.26 at Chicago, $2.24 at St. Louis, and $2.18 at Kansas City for No. 1 northern spring, hard winter, red winter durum, and hard white wheat. These figures were based on the new rate of freights and government prices. News from Washington late yesterday said it was not regarded probable that congress would pass the measure over the veto. Farmers have been holding back in selling wheat in the southwest, expecting to get 40c more than the price previously fixed. Expectations are that they will sell more freely within a few days.

The bulge in corn yesterday was regarded by those who have been very bullish of late as sufficient for the time being, and they are inclined to look for a good reaction. There was some August sold out yesterday that was bought on the break in June. The local pit element at the last was generally regarded as long, while the best buyers when prices were materially lower were generally out of their lines, and some of them were short. The country, which has been buying on every break of late, sold freely, and the local element which has been fighting the advance had the corn at the close last night. The technical position of the market was generally regarded as weak, and a sharp break would not surprise those in close touch with conditions.

Until there is a marked change in the general condition of the cash corn market and the No. 5 grades get down to around a delivery basis again some well posted people say that reactions in futures are likely to be of short duration. About a week ago some No. 4 and No. 5 sold at a delivery basis, but on Thursday the same grades were 6@11c above that basis. This has been one of the principal influences in causing the advance of late, although the local element has not been in touch with the actual conditions for some time past.

Corn and oat futures at the top yesterday were the highest so far this season. July corn showed an advance from the low point of last week of 17⅝c, and August of 15½c. White corn is up 25@30c for the better grades. July oats are up 7c, and August 17c; the close on July oats yesterday, however, was only 1⅝c above that of a week ago, and August and September are practically unchanged. More bears are to be found on oats than in corn.

There were 20,000 bu corn delivered on July contracts yesterday. Henry Rang took 25,000 bu and says he has shipping orders.

Corn flour has advanced to $6.00 per 100 lbs, and is selling faster than of late. Best makers are being taken in preference to lower priced offerings of doubtful character. There were offers of corn flour yesterday at $5.40, while buyers of high class goods paid $6.00.

A few minutes recess will be taken by the Board of Trade at 11:30 a. m. today for the purpose of adopting resolutions concerning the celebration on July 14 and extending felicitations of the trade to the chamber of commerce of the French republic.

Railroads are to rush grain to market as fast as possible. The regional directors of the railroads have issued orders that all grain cars must be loaded to capacity. No delay must be had in making up trains to move them rapidly to terminal markets. No order has been issued to give wheat preferential treatment, and all grains are to fare alike for the present.

At a meeting between representatives of the Chicago grain trade and the bureau of markets of the United States department of agriculture here yesterday afternoon ways and means of getting uniformity in the inspection of corn were discussed. There has been some complaint of late over corn from one market missing grade on shipment to another. Views of the local trade were asked as to how this could be overcome. Four inspectors in the various markets have had their licenses revoked of late.

Local millers are shut down, as they have had no wheat to grind, receipts being less than 60,000 bu this week, against 315,000 bu last year. It is expected that the movement will be enlarged next week and they will have enough to start up on. New flour is being offered sparingly from the southwest.

Illinois has a spring wheat crop of 3,420,000 bu, against none last year. Condition is 95. Rye crop, 1,007,000 bu, compared with 786,000 bu last year. Condition 93, against 1 last year, and a ten year average of 89. S. D. Fessenden, field agent of the department of agriculture for the United States, says farm reserves of all wheat in Illinois July 1 were 0.8 per cent, against 1.3 per cent last year, and a ten year average of 3.1 per cent.

CASH GRAIN NEWS

NO SALES of grain to the seaboard were reported yesterday. Domestic shipping sales were 60,000 bu corn and 70,000 bu oats. Deliveries on July contracts were 30,000 bu corn.

Cash corn here was in active demand for white and prices 5c higher, but the close was easy at the low point. Other kinds were unchanged. St. Louis was slow and unchanged to 2c higher, Kansas City strong and 5@7c higher on white and 5c higher on yellow and mixed, Peoria unchanged to 7c higher on grades and 2@5c higher on sample, and Milwaukee 5c higher.

Cash oats failed to follow the advance in futures, and were only ¼@⅜c higher here. St. Louis was 1@1½c higher. Kansas City unchanged to 1c higher on mixed and 2c higher on white, Omaha ½c higher, Peoria, ¾@1c higher, and Milwaukee 1c higher.

Demand for cash wheat at Chicago was fair with little change in prices. At St. Louis mills were after the grain with low moisture content. Dark hard wheat at Kansas City, according to J. E. Bennett's final report, was unchanged, but the close on hard and yellow hard was slow, with prices unchanged to 5c lower, with most of the decline on yellow. Red winter was unchanged to ½c higher, closing slow. Receipts at St. Louis, Kansas City, and Omaha aggregated 684 cars, against 354 cars a week ago, and 30 cars last year.

COFFEE PRICES.

NEW YORK, July 12.—Reiterated reports of damage to the Brazil crop failed to sustain an opening advance of 5 to 8 points in coffee futures. There was a renewal of yesterday's buying movement at the start which probably included some further buying for Brazilian account, but the market met considerable realizing around 8.67c for September and 8.91c for December. The approach of the maximum price level may have accounted for this to some extent, while there was also selling on the later Santos cables reporting a reaction of 75 to 100 reis in futures there. Prices eased and closed at net declines of 1 to 3 points. July, 8.36c; September, 8.56c; October, 8.63c; December, 8.77c; January, 8.83c; March, 8.97c; May, 9.12c. Spot coffee quiet; Rio 7s, 8⅝c; Santos 4s, 11⅝c. Santos 4s were said to be offered at 12c London credits. Prices in New York follow:

SUGAR MARKETS.

CHICAGO, July 12.—Standard granulated cane and beet sugar, refiners' prices, per 100 lbs, $7.978 in brls and $7.956 in bags.

NEW YORK.—SUGAR—The raw sugar market was unchanged at 4.985c for Cubas cost and freight, equal to 6.055c for centrifugal. The committee reported purchases of 88,200 bags of Porto Ricos. In refined prices remain at the fixed level of 7.50c for fine granulated. There was a fair business, and while refiners were said to be able to handle all certificates offered them, there was some delay in issuing them.

FINANCIAL NOTES

IN line with assisting the large packing and similar industries to procure new capital to meet the increase in the volume of production and the increased prices of raw materials, the capital issues committee yesterday gave its approval to the sale of $2,500,000 five year 7 per cent sinking fund gold notes of Peet Brothers Manufacturing company of Kansas City, which is one of the largest producers of soap and glycerin in the United States. Lee, Higginson & Co. and Ames, Emerich & Co. have purchased the issue of notes and will shortly offer them for investment.

For eleven years the Doheny Mexican petroleum interests and the Lord Cowdray-Mexican Eagle oil interests have been in litigation concerning the ownership of valuable oil territory in the southern half of the oil district between Tampico and Tuxpam. A new company is to be formed to take over these properties, and the division between the Mexican Petroleum and the Mexican Eagle is understood to be fifty-fifty, with Doheny taking the presidency for the first year and Cowdray for the second year.

Latest figures of United States Steel stockholders show that distribution of common stock has reached a new record. At closing of books on May 31 there were 63,507 holders of issue against 61,044 three months previously, 51,689 in December, and 43,342 a year ago.

Western Union Telegraph, with total revenue of $42,776,182 in the first six months of 1918, saved $6,129,436 for net profit after interest and taxes. This compares with $36,416,175 gross revenue and with $6,825,891 net after charges in the first half of 1917. The 1918 balance is equal to $6.14 a share on Western Union stock, compared with $6.94 a share for the corresponding part of the previous year.

The railroad administration at Washington has addressed a query to all the railroads asking what their 1918 locomotive requirements will be. This inquiry is regarded as a prelude to a new large order for locomotives to be placed by the government. The last government order for locomotives, placed about three months ago, was 14,500.

PRODUCE TRADE

EGGS advanced ½c for storage firsts. Stocks in storage at leading markets since June 29 decreased 52,000 cases and at Chicago are off 70,000 cases. Butter at Chicago advanced ½c and all eastern markets were firm, with no surplus offerings, although at Philadelphia storage stocks show a slight increase. Live roosters were ½c higher and broilers lower.

Potatoes were in fair supply, with 29 cars in and 197 cars on track. Former prices were secured.

INSURANCE NEWS IN ALL BRANCHES EAST AND WEST

Report Is Made Public on Sherman & Ellis Concerns.

BY THOMAS R. WEDDELL.

The report on the examination of the Associated Employers' Reciprocal of Chicago, Sherman & Ellis, Inc., attorney in fact, has finally been made public. It was made by the insurance departments of Illinois, Wisconsin, Kentucky, Kansas, and Missouri, and was begun last December.

The report shows the admitted assets to be $792,437, of which nearly $380,000 consists of stocks, bonds, certificates of deposit and cash, and $352,000 of uncollected premiums less than ninety days due. The main item of liabilities is the reserve for unpaid claims, amounting to $475,001. There are other liability items amounting to $89,641, of which more than $76,000 is amounts due the attorney in fact. The items under the head of "subscribers' credits" amount to $227,794, consisting of advance deposits (100 per cent), $185,590; surplus paid in, $18,565, and savings on closed accounts, $23,638.

The examiners state that they counted the cash and securities in the offices of the several exchanges, which were combined to form the present reciprocal, on the same day, "avoiding any confusion in its assets," and that the books of the several exchanges were proved to be correct. The examiners disallowed as assets $106,129 in notes given for account of surplus. They computed the claim reserve by estimating the liability for each outstanding claim, except the Illinois claims for 1917, the liability on these being computed on the basis of 62 per cent of earned premiums, less amounts paid on claims accruing during 1917.

INSURANCE SOLDIERS.

The casualty list yesterday morning carried the name of Lieut. Jonett F. Singleton of New York City, who died of wounds in France. He was a son of J. P. Singleton, assistant general agent of the western department of the Niagara Fire, and lived in Evanston until the family removed to New York last year. Lieut. Singleton had been a student at Princeton before entering the service.

Charles Turner Shepard, son of Walter T. Shepard, vice president and manager of agencies for the Lincoln National Life of Indiana, who was in France with the marines, was reported recently as killed.

MANUFACTURERS' POLICY.

The National Automobile Underwriters' conference has sent out its new form of manufacturers' output policy, with rules and rates. It will be used especially in the west, where the bulk of the automobile manufacturing is done. The writing of a policy covering less than the entire output of the manufacturer, except machines for export, is forbidden, as is also any valued policy form. The floating liability is limited to 20 per cent of the highest named located liability, and in no event is it to exceed $25,000.

AVIATOR MITCHEL'S INSURANCE.

Former Mayor John Purroy Mitchel of New York, who entered the aviation service and was killed recently, took out an ordinary life policy for $144,000 in the Travelers about two years ago. When he entered the aviation section he paid an additional premium. Mr. Mitchel also had the $10,000 of government insurance and $5,000 in another company.

INSURANCE NOTES.

A number of the larger American companies writing fire and marine insurance are forming an organization for the development of foreign business. They propose to coöperate in an investigation of insurance conditions in South America, preliminary to a decision as to pushing for business in that part of the world.

H. C. Alba, who has been with the Oklahoma inspection bureau, is acting as special agent for the Queen in Oklahoma, as E. E. Olinger, who had that state, has been given a leave of absence for a year to go into Y. M. C. A. work with the army.

The fire insurance loss ratio in Georgia for 1917 was 80.4 per cent, in spite of a recent increase in rates. This compares with a loss ratio of 100.1 per cent in 1916 and an average for the last five years of 70.9 per cent.

The Kentucky state insurance board held a conference in Chicago yesterday with the Kentucky committee over some of the details connected with the surcharge which went into effect in that state July 1.

The various insurance risks carried by the Du Pont interests are now believed to constitute the largest line of insurance in the United States, amounting to approximately $250,000,000.

Very large lines of additional insurance are being put on by concerns having war contracts. The Youngstown Tube Works is placing $10,000,000 and is exhausting the facilities.

Walter E. Heim, counter man for B. W. Hosmer & Co., has enlisted in the navy, and leaves today for Great Lakes station.

COTTON TRADE NEWS

NEW YORK, July 12.—A good advance on the southwestern drouth complaints was followed by reactions of 30 to 39. October sold off from 24.99 points and closed with the general list closing barely steady at a net decline of 8 to 24 points.

There was a renewal of yesterday's buying movement at the start, with advances of 2 to 8 points higher. July, after opening 9 points advanced to 4 points above last night's close in the absence of notices. New crop deliveries sold 18 to 26 points higher, with buying promoted by the western belt forecast for partly cloudy to clear weather in Texas. There were some private reports of showers in Texas, however, which encouraged realizing for over the week end. The detailed weather report for the Houston district showed no precipitation of consequence, with temperatures of 100 degrees or over at twenty-seven stations, but failed to bring in any fresh buying of consequence. Prices reached the lowest levels in the late trading and closed at about the low point of the day on most positions.

Reports that a few new bales were beginning to show up in extreme south Texas may possibly have been a factor on the setback, and there appeared to be a feeling that the crop was doing fairly well except for parts of the southwest. The more urgent demand from shorts appeared to have been supplied. Exports were 1,160 bales, making 3,912,397 so far this season. Port receipts, 6,389. United States port stocks, 1,070,785. Prices follow:

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.	Prev. close.

Spot cotton quiet. Middling, 32.80c.

NEW ORLEANS, July 12.—Cotton was nervous and unsettled as the result of conflicting opinions regarding weather conditions in the western belt. Closing prices 8 points lower to 6 points higher. July, 26.80c; October, 23.72c; December, 23.17c; January, 23.06c; March, 23.04c. Spot quiet, unchanged; middling, 30.25c.

LIVERPOOL, July 12.—COTTON—Spot quiet; prices easy; good middling, 23.67c; middling, 22.04c; low middling, 21.51c; good ordinary, 20.52c; ordinary, 19.99c. Sales 2,000 bales, including 1,500 American. Receipts, 19,000; American, 10,500 bales. Futures closed quiet. New contracts: July, 21.90c; August, 20.71c; September, 19.77c; October, 19.28c; November, 19c. Old contracts, fixed prices: July, 20.89c.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, July 12.—Cotton goods were more active. Yarns quiet. Wool trading further restricted by the government announcement of its purpose to control South American wools coming into this country.

GASTON-WILLIAMS.

The directors of Gaston-Williams & Wigmore are scheduled to meet on July 18, when the quarterly dividend distribution will be acted upon.
